New Airport For District Backed by Senate Vote

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

The Senate yesterday approved and sent to the House a bill authorizing a new 14-million-dollar civilian airport in the Washington metropolitan area.

Action was unanimous after Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) withdrew an earlier objection, on grounds he wanted to study several amendments offered on the floor.

The airport bill cleared the Senate after several Senators questioned the "need for two civilian airports in one city" and why District taxpayers are not footing part of the proposed cost.

Senator Ernest W. McFarland (D., Ariz.), who steered the measure through the Senate, answered that mounting air traffic in the Washington area has reached the "dangerous saturation point" and is due for a 40-percent increase during the next five years.

Greater Responsibility

Because this is the Nation's Capital, he said, a "far greater financial responsibility falls on the Federal Government here than in other municipalities."

Senator Andrew F. Schoeppel (R., Kan.), for the Republican leadership, offered several amendments aimed to insure that new airports would be administered under the same leasing regulations as the National Airport.

"We certainly do not object to the need for another civilian airport here," Schoeppel told the Senate.

At that point McCarran made his unexpected objection to the bill's immediate passage, explaining he thought the Senate was "being a little hasty" in acting on a 14-million-dollar item, and that he wanted to study the floor amendments offered by Schoeppel and promptly accepted by McFarland.

Withdraws Objection

Later, after conferring with McFarland, the Nevada Senator withdrew his objection, and the bill went to the House.

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.), author of the measure, started vigorous agitation for prompt action shortly after the airplane crash last November 1 at National Airport which killed 55 passengers, and followed up after the December 12 crash there which took a toll of six lives.

Where the new airport would be located if approved still is indefinite, but a site near Annandale, Va., has been most frequently mentioned.

The Senate bill directs consultation with the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and nearby planning groups on site locations.

Bowling Alley Blaze Fells 40 Firemen

By Jean Reiff and Melvin Altshuler
Post Reporters

A "man-punishing" fire yesterday morning ravaged the Brookland Bowling Alleys at 3726 10th st. ne.

Choking billows of gas and smoke overcame at least 40 firemen, and two others were injured when a section of the building collapsed.

One estimate placed loss to the two-story brick structure and its 28 bowling alleys at $100,000.

Contain the Blaze

But firemen successfully contained the fire before it could set off 12 stores on both sides of the bowling alleys.

What was to come was heralded at 4:45 a. m. by a "soft explosion" that blasted windows in the front of the recreation center. It was heard by Edward Dunn of 5108 Crittendon st., Hyattsville, a bus driver on his way to work.

Dunn turned in the alarm at 4:45. Within 15 minutes three more alarms had been sounded, and by 6:37, two special alarms had been called.

By 8:10 a. m., when the fire was declared under control, 22 engine and truck companies had responded, together with two rescue squads and two ambulances.

These were the problems firemen had to contend with:

Smoke—so dense and overpowering that one out of every three of the 120 firemen responding to the alarms required treatment. Most returned to duty, but about a dozen required hospitalization or hospital treatment.

Gas—presumably phosgene gas emanating from the highly waxed floors of the bowling alleys.

Lack of ventilation—serious to the point where pneumatic drills and rams were used to break holes in the sides of the building.

Heat, which Fire Chief Joseph A. Mayhew said generated unnoticed two hours before the "whoosh" that released it and brought the flames into the open.

Of the difficulties, Chief Mayhew said:

"As far as the punishment to the men was concerned, the fire

Teen-Agers Pinned When Lift Halts; Is Quickly Repaired

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

The Washington Monument elevator jammed at 5:30 p. m. yesterday at the 480-foot level, and four of about 30 Tennessee high school students aboard fainted.

All were teen-agers. One collapsed in the elevator, and was carried the hundreds of steps down. Another fainted on the way to the ground. The other two passed out on the lawn.

The District Rescue Squad took the girls to Emergency Hospital, where they were treated, and were released last night.

Repairs were made to the elevator mechanism, and the lift was in operation again by closing time last night.

The girls are Patsy Whittamore, Jeanette Kiser, Doris Lawhorn and Dorothy McConnell. They are members of a group of 51 students of Lynnview High School, Kingsport, Tenn., here since Monday on a sightseeing tour.

Miss Whittamore fainted in the elevator, and the other students started the long trek down with her. The Monument has 998 steps, and the elevator jammed not far from the 555-foot top.

The victim was met at the 370-foot level by the rescue squad.

A contributing factor to Miss Whittamore's fainting apparently was an attempt she made earlier to climb the Monument.

Percy Porter, elevator operator, said he was taking the elevator up when he saw Miss Whittamore ill on the steps about half-way up. She was with three other girls.

He picked them up, Porter said, and at the top of the Monument,

Acheson Asks ITO Approval, Inviting Fight

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Secretary Acheson took his courage in both hands yesterday by asking Congress to approve American membership in the proposed International Trade Organization.

He acted with full knowledge that he was courting a major fight on Capitol Hill. The ITO has been a controversial issue ever since March, 1948, when delegates of 54 countries signed a charter of fair trading practices and agreed to set up a new United Nations agency in the field of world trade.

Leading Democrats as well as Republicans in Congress have been cool to the charter, and have wanted action postponed until the next session. Important business and professional groups have opposed it in whole or in part.

Among the avowed opponents have been the National Association of Manufacturers, the United States Chamber of Commerce, the American Tariff League, the Foreign Trade Council, the American Bar Association and the Daughters of the American Revolution.

But other important groups have announced their support of the ITO—among them most of the national women's organizations and church groups, the Congress of Industrial Organizations, the Farmers' Union, the National Council of Importers, and—with reservations—the Committee for Economic Development.

With this background, and with a renewed go-ahead signal from President Truman, Acheson asked the House Foreign Affairs Committee for action now.

"American leadership in world affairs," he said, "has always depended on our willingness to trans-

Senate Votes Honors to 10 Lost Airmen

By The Associated Press

The Senate in a mood of cold fury unanimously voted praise and decorations yesterday for the 10 United States airmen lost in what this country calls a Russian attack on an unarmed plane over the Baltic.

The vote of 66 to 0 was preceded by denunciations of the Russian action as "criminal" and "barbarous" and by demands for steps to see that nothing of the sort happens again.

It followed by about an hour a contemptuous State Department dismissal of a Russian charge that the American plane was on a mission of deliberate provocation.

Michael McDermott, department press officer, told a news conference he had read the story, which appeared in the controlled Moscow magazine New Times, but had "pretty much forgotten what lies they told." He described the magazine itself as "beyond contempt."

Protest Harshly Worded

On Tuesday the State Department fired back a harshly worded counter-protest in response to Moscow's charge that the plane violated Soviet territory and attacked interceptors.

Meanwhile, unofficial backing for the United States view that the plane was downed over the open sea came from American Air Force officers in Germany.

The ship believed to be involved was a Navy Privateer that took off from Wiesbaden April 8 on what United States officials report as a routine training flight to Copenhagen. It was not heard from after it crossed the German coast. The United States version is that it carried no weapons with which it could make such an attack as the Russians reported.

American airmen at Wiesbaden said the plane, with a cruising speed of 175 miles an hour, would have had to make a "beeline" flight with heavy tailwinds to reach the Latvian area where the Russians said the encounter took place, at the reported time. Actually, the officers said, it was to follow an angular "dogleg" course that would have made it impossible.

Lucas Sets Off Reaction

Senator Lucas (D., Ill.), the Democratic leader, set off the Senate reaction yesterday with a call for condemnation of "a ruthless action by barbarous forces."

Offering the resolution to decorate the American fliers posthumously, Lucas said the "criminal action" was a challenge to nations of the free world. On that ground he called for the bipartisan support that he got.

Republican Leader Wherry (Neb.) called the surprise resolution "a fine thing," but said there has been "a lack of bipartisan foreign policy that's gotten us into difficulties."

Senator Mundt (R., S. D.) suggested a formal protest through the United Nations. He said this country should "do more than pass resolutions."

Lucas agreed that might be a wise thing, but said the State Department has taken vigorous action. The resolution, requiring House action, will demonstrate to the world that Congress as a whole is back of the United States stand, he said.

There was little prospect that House action will come in less than two weeks. Until the House is through with the appropriation bill,

Miss Bettie Renner, murdered on vacation

The body of Miss Bettie Renner, 38, an attractive Washington woman lawyer was found yesterday in a lonely well near Nassau in the Bahama Islands, apparently the victim of a sex murder.

Slacks had been stripped from the body, and only a brassiere remained on it, according to Associated Press dispatches. Police pumped out the well, which was in an abandoned quarry in a pine wood, after they found Miss Renner's bicycle nearby.

Miss Renner was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Renner of 1720 21st st. nw. She recently associated with the office of a private law firm here, but previously was with the Department of Justice, and the War Crimes Commission in Tokyo.

DAR Election Contest Opens As Delegates Hail Nominees

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

The Daughters of the American Revolution got down to their serious political business last night as they heard nominating speeches for 34 candidates who aspire to the "highest national offices."

Today and tonight the Daughters will vote, and eliminate all but 18 of the earnest and hopeful "generals." All indications are that they face a close windup.

Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne, retiring president general, who has not yet publicly avowed her support for Mrs. Edwin Stanton Lammers as her successor, has done everything but.

Mrs. Lammers sat in Mrs. O'Byrne's box during the half-hour concert which preceded last night's session. Mrs. Lammers preceded Mrs. O'Byrne down the left aisle of Constitution Hall when candidates took their places on the stage. Mrs. James B. Patton, the opposing candidate, took the right aisle—without Mrs. O'Byrne.

Reports that Mrs. O'Byrne would go a step further to attend a reception late last night honoring Mrs. Lammers, and take her place in the receiving line, proved unfounded. When she left Constitution Hall Mrs. O'Byrne said she was going to bed.

But as the nominating speeches droned on, and all the DARs who could crowd into the auditorium listened intently, observers wondered whether Mrs. O'Byrne's support would be enough to squeeze Mrs. Lammers through.

Indications were that neither of the two president-general candidates would take her whole slate into office. And it appeared a certainty that most of the State delegations were widely split on two points—the Patton-Lammers issue and the straight ticket issue.

Early in the day, a rumor circulated that ballots to be cast today would be thrown out if delegates did not vote the straight ticket. Mrs. O'Byrne publicly announced that the rumor was an at-

Rail Walkout Set April 26 On 4 Systems

Chicago, April 19 (AP).—Railroad firemen and enginemen today called a strike for 6 a. m. (local time) next Wednesday against four vast railroad systems. It would cut off vital segments of the Nation's rail transportation.

The strike is directed against these roads:

The Pennsylvania system west of Harrisburg, New York Central west of Buffalo, Michigan Central west of the Detroit River, the CCC & St. Louis (Big Four), the Ohio Central Lines, Santa Fe (proper) and Santa Fe (Coast lines) and the Southern Railway System.

David B. Robertson of Cleveland, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, left the door open to a possible predeadline settlement, however, saying:

"If they (the railroads) feel some progress is being made toward settlement, the strike may be postponed."

The strike was called to back up the union's demand for an extra man on multiple-unit Diesel locomotives. The union also demanded that a fireman be assigned to a number of small Diesels now operated principally in yard service by a lone engineer.

The action can be taken legally under provisions of the National Railway Labor Act because the union has complied with all the steps of that law.

Slot Machine Ban Passes Senate; Blow At Criminals

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Without a word of debate, the Senate yesterday passed a bill to ban interstate shipment of slot machines, a measure calculated to smash the one-armed bandit business, reputed to pick American pockets to the tune of two billion dollars annually.

The measure makes an exception for shipment into States where the machines are legal, either Statewide, as in Nevada, or by county option, as in Maryland. But in such cases the Governor must certify to that legality.

A major objective of the Attorney General's crime conference of February, the bill now goes to the House where action is uncertain. Chairman Crosser (D., Ohio) of the House Interstate Commerce Committee so far has as yet to even call hearings on a similar bill introduced early this year by Representative Preston (D., Ga.). Crosser has said he thinks such a measure is unconstitutional.

In testimony at the Capitol this year, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said such a bill "would certainly slow up" the operations of gambling syndicates. It was at this time that he called gambling "the nest egg of the criminal underworld which operates throughout this country."

The bill approved yesterday during a routine calendar call also requires every manufacturer and dealer in slot machines to register and to report monthly who bought his machines. Each machine must be separately marked for easy identification.

Whenever a machine is transported or used in violation of the law it will be seized by the Federal Government and, presumably, destroyed. In sending the measure to Congress, the Justice Department (which drafted it in conjunction with the crime conference) said such Federal destruction of confiscated machines had been urged by State and municipal officials as "one of the most effective means" of dealing with the one-armed bandits.

Exclude Vending Machines

Actually, the bill bans shipment across State lines of any "gambling device," which is defined to mean "any machine or mechanical device, or parts thereof, designed or adopted for gambling or any use by which the user as a result of the application of any element of chance may become entitled to receive, directly or indirectly, anything of value."

Sander's License Revoked by State In 'Mercy' Death

Concord, N. H., April 19 (U.P.).—Dr. Hermann N. Sander was stripped of his physician's license by the State Board of Registration in Medicine today despite his "mercy murder" trial acquittal in the death of a woman cancer patient.

Dr. John S. Wheeler, secretary of the five-member board, said the decision to revoke the 41-year-old Candia physician's New Hampshire license was "unanimous."

Dr. Wheeler said Dr. Sander, acquitted March 9 in the death of Mrs. Abbie Borroto, could appeal the board's decision to the State Supreme Court, or could apply to the board for reinstatement of his license after June 19.

The board said:

"The action of Dr. Sander indicates he failed to meet the requirements of morality imposed upon him by his profession and by law.

"It is likewise clear a physician's moral obligation to his patient and to his profession is to engage only in medical practices designed to cure or alleviate disease. His action is morally reprehensive according to medical standards.

"Obviously, no physician can be allowed to perform 'senseless acts for which no adequate explanation is possible.'"

Baltimore, April 19 (AP).—Thirteen-year-old Ellen Virginia Brooks became excited about winning a scholarship and died.

She was to have graduated in June from St. Gregory's parochial school and had taken a competitive examination for a four-year scholarship at Mount St. Agnes Academy.

With that, said her mother, she collapsed. She was buried today.

Belgians Reported Ready to Accept Leopold's Plan

Brussels, April 19 (U.P.).—Belgium's principal political parties tonight were reported ready to restore King Leopold 3d to the throne under a plan that would deprive him temporarily of royal powers.

The plan, suggested by the King, would transfer his prerogatives to his son, 19-year-old Crown Prince Baudouin.

After a conference of leaders of the Social Christian, Liberal and Socialist parties, Liberal leader Roger Motz said:

"We agreed on the sovereign's proposal."

The King's proposal provides he could resume his powers whenever he and the government agree the time was right.

Farm Senators Block Action On D. C. Daylight Time Bill

Chances of District residents switching to daylight-saving time on time this summer were almost snuffed out yesterday by two farm bloc Senators.

The Senate measure authorizing the District Commissioners to proclaim DST annually was blocked by Senator John L. McClellan (D., Ark.), with the support of Senator Willis A. Robertson (D., Va.).

The Senate action—almost a perennial performance by rural area Senators—came a few hours after the House District Committee sent a fast-time bill for this summer only to the House floor by a bare one-vote margin, 10-9.

Representative John L. McMillan (D., S. C.), chairman of the House District Committee, said he will seek a House vote on the bill Monday, which is District Day.

Meeting behind closed doors, the House group gave its hairline approval, after receiving the Commissioners' report on the recent citizen poll which showed District residents 3 to 1 in favor of daylight-saving time.

Since the measure came up in the Senate on a calendar call, it took only one objection to put it back on the legislative shelf. McClellan voiced the actual objection. He and Robertson both contended fast time in the District would work a "hardship" on nearby Maryland and Virginia farmers shipping produce here.

Majority Leader Scott Lucas (D., Ill.) accused them of a "very selfish" move and said he did not see how the measure could be reconsidered until the next calendar call, "probably a month from now."

Both the House and Senate DST versions, if passed, would call for

Mrs. Keleher Awarded $950; Jury Cuts Ford's Fee to $2000

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

A District Court jury of 11 men and one woman last night awarded Mrs. Anna T. (Dolly) Keleher $950 from her former lawyer, Charles E. Ford.

By their verdict, reached after 2 hours and 10 minutes of deliberation, the jurors found:

1. That Ford was entitled to a fee of only $2000 from Mrs. Keleher, not the $5000 he first sought, or the $2950 he later agreed to.

2. That Ford gave $3500 of Mrs. Keleher's money to her gambler husband, John B. (Dapper Jack) Keleher, with his client's permission, not without, as she had claimed.

She was suing him for $6450—the $3500, plus $2950 she said she gave Ford four years ago for safekeeping and never saw again.

The decision came at the end of a day in which Mrs. Keleher's attorney, James J. Laughlin, threw the book at Ford, in what court veterans described as one of the bitterest attacks in memory by one lawyer on another.

The courtroom was crowded all day, for the most part with lawyers familiar with the open animosity between Ford and Laughlin, the two best-known criminal lawyers in Washington.

Laughlin labeled Ford "the bollweevil in the adminsitration of justice in the District" and a "Judas

Fennell Bars Morals Trial To Reporters; May Reconsider

Three newspaper reporters yesterday took exception to an order of a Municipal Court judge excluding them from a criminal trial.

The judge, Aubrey B. Fennell, said he would reexamine his position during the night and give decision today, if possible.

The reporters making the protest were Wallace E. Clayton of The Washington Star, George L. Norris of The Washington Times-Herald and Joseph Paull of The Washington Post.

The trial from which the reporters—and the public—were excluded was the prosecution of Robert Snead Williams, jr., 45, of 4537 49th st. nw. He is accused of indecently exposing himself April 10 on Massachusetts ave. nw., near American University.

After remaining outside the courtroom, at the judge's request, while the two teen-age girl complainants testified, Clayton and Norris yesterday afternoon sought to reenter the room.

Judge Fennell halted the case and said the lawyers on both sides of the case had requested a closed trial. He asked the lawyers whether they had changed their position.

Defense Attorney Paul Connolly, jr., asked that the "visitors" be kept from the courtroom. Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King, the prosecutor, remained silent.

Later, Clayton, Norris and Paull all walked into the court.

Once again, Judge Fennell halted

Issue of U. S. Secrets Halts Maragon Trial

By The Associated Press

Federal attorneys called a sudden recess in the perjury trial of John Maragon yesterday pending a decision on whether to drop a major charge in the four-count indictment or risk exposure of Government secrets in open court.

The question centered on a 1946 episode in Maragon's affairs involving his relations with the Allied Molasses Co. of Perth Amboy, N. J.

That was the case in which President Truman's military aide, Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, figured during the Senate's investigation last summer into the operations of "five percenters"—agents who get a fee, usually 5 percent, for helping businessmen in deals with the Government.

Vaughan and Maragon used to be friends, and Maragon, a one-time Kansas City bootblack, once had a pass to the White House.

Vaughan acknowledged at the Senate inquiry that he might have phoned Agriculture Department officials on behalf of Allied Molasses, which was having trouble with the department.

The firm had been accused of violating rationing regulations. Its molasses quota was suspended, and it was trying to get the suspension lifted when Vaughan allegedly interceded.

Phone Calls From Vaughan

Two Agriculture Department officials testified they got telephone calls from Vaughan about the case. One of them, Herbert C. Hathorn, told the Senate investigating committee that Vaughan got rough and threatened to get his job. Vaughan denied any such pressure tactics.

One of the major charges against Maragon is that he lied to the Senate committee last July 28 when he swore under oath that he had not negotiated any "Government business" and had received no pay for doing business with the Government.

Harold M. Ross, president of Allied Molasses, told the Senate group last summer that he and his uncle, Milton R. Polland, Milwaukee insurance man, paid Maragon over $1200 for an unsuccessful attempt to straighten out the company's quota difficulties with the Agriculture Department in 1946.

Ross was sworn in as a witness yesterday, but before he could testify the Government attorneys signaled Federal Judge Jennings Bailey for a conference at the bench.

After a long huddle, Judge Bailey ordered a recess until today to give the prosecutors time to decide whether they should consent to a public airing of confidential FBI and Agriculture Department records on the Allied Molasses case.

Under a defense subpena, the records were brought into court Tuesday, but the officials who produced them said they were under orders not to turn over any confidential data to the court or to the defense.

Judge Bailey had ordered the records brought in, but reserved his decision on whether they should be admitted as evidence.

After the recess, defense counsel Irvin Goldstein told newsmen the Government faced the prospect of either dropping one of its key charges or "running the risk of us looking at those files."

Reporters asked Goldstein if he thought the Government was anxious to keep the files secret because Vaughan figures in the Allied Molasses case.

"I can't say what they're afraid of," Goldstein replied.

Chief Prosecutor Charles Murray said the Government asked for the recess so it could consider and state its position on admitting the files as evidence.

Murphy said he couldn't say whether the Government might withdraw part of its charges built around the Allied Molasses case.

CIO Jobless Groups Seek Aid at Capitol

Delegations from three States yesterday rapped on the doors of official Washington in a CIO-sponsored move to dramatize the "desperate plight" of the Nation's postwar crop of unemployed industrial workers.

From Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Utah the committees of jobless came here to plead for immediate relief for the destitute, and programs to provide work in the depressed areas. They will be joined today by another delegation from Rhode Island.

Mine workers, textile workers, brass workers, and the rest all had personal, tragic stories to tell of losing jobs because of industrial mechanization, exhausting their unemployment compensation, of facing eviction and starvation, of friends committing suicide out of desperation, in a time of national prosperity.

Immediate goal of the unemployed—estimated at 1 out of 13 workers by the CIO—is to obtain speedy extension of unemployment compensation to 52 weeks in depressed industrial areas having 9 percent or more joblessness, according to Everett Kassalow, director of the CIO Full Employment Committee.

Next objective is to obtain work projects, not only public works and constructions, but recreational and public health projects as well in order to provide a diversity of jobs.

Cost of Real Estate Lobby Estimated at $130,000 a Year

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The National Association of Real Estate Boards yesterday told Congress it spends some $130,000 a year on lobbying activities.

Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president of the association, testified on the realtors' trade association activities before the House Select Committee on Lobbying Activities.

His appearance was marked by an outburst of vigorous protest from the association's counsel, Joseph B. Fleming, against "leaks" of carefully selected excerpts from Nelson's private correspondence to certain columnists after all correspondence had been turned over to the committee.

Fleming protested against the leak of excerpts ripped from context in a letter Nelson wrote to T. K. Maenner of Omaha, Nebr., association president.

Chairman Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.) affirmed his complete confidence in the committee staff and asked Fleming if he were sure the "leak" had not been from the association's own office.

Brown Suspicious of Staff

But Representative Clarence H. Brown (R., Ohio) struck in that he believed there had been leaks from the committee staff, and did not in fact think there was any question about it.

Fleming pointed to that fact that certain columnists had quoted Nelson's private letter to Maenner in which he said:

"I do not believe in democracy. I think it stinks." In the same letter Nelson said he did not think women should be allowed to vote.

Buchanan released the full context of the letter.

The paragraph in question read: "Now and then there are those who are worried about my own political philosophy. I assure you that I don't try to inject it in any way into our activites, but it is so different from that of most of our members that I know it would not be acceptable.

"I do not believe in democracy. I think it stinks. I believe in a republic operated by elected representatives who are permitted to do the job, as the board of directors should. I don't think anybody except direct taxpayers should be allowed to vote.

Opposes Voting by Women

"I don't believe women should be allowed to vote at all. Ever since they started, our public affairs have been in a worse mess than ever.

"I don't think any form of government is any good which doesn't recognize merit and ability. I am convinced that our present popularity contests in public life are bound to lead to disaster and to some form of dictatorship as the currency is progressively devaluated by public spending in order to buy votes."

Questioning by committee members of both parties developed that these views, as Nelson stressed, were his own personal opinions and not those of the association and, in fact, had nothing to do with the subject under investigation—the association's lobby.

Nelson issued a statement showing the historical record that this Government was founded as a Republic, and not on the basis of what Nelson termed "the uncontrolled rule of a numerical majority."

Brown quipped that the release of the letter might get Nelson in trouble with his wife.

Nelson, grinning, said she agreed with him on votes for women.

The committee's concentration on the fuss over Nelson's own personal views prevented their inquiry into the full context of the letter.

Unexplained therefore was one paragraph reading:

"My personal contacts with the radio chains have been of great value. Also some of the favors we have had from other great associations, especially the NAM are matters which cannot be discussed but which have built up our organization in many intangible ways."

The committee likewise failed to inquire into Nelson's statement to the head of the association that "the time has come for a new slant on the whole field of city planning which I think is bogged down."

"We need some new slants on cutting housing costs, which labor is now ready to consider and which would have good public support.

"We can help our business by a few new slants on the license laws.

"Above all, we need to put vigor and fight into our attacks on the tax problem. Real estate taxes all over the country have increased over 20 percent in the last few years. We also need a few new slants on our congressional politics."

There were reports that when the committee resumes its session today, Buchanan will seek to probe further into the attitude of the association toward the tax problem.

The head of Republic Steel Corp. yesterday urged Congress to "proceed with caution" in "tampering" with big business.

Republic's president, C. M. White, reminded a House Judiciary Subcommittee that "bigness . . . made this country great" and cited a string of evidence to support his point. The subcommittee is investigating alleged monopoly in the steel industry.

"We have won two wars," White declared, "and big business was a powerful factor in their winning. We have a big standard of living. We are a big-eating and a big-spending country.

"We have big hospitals, big schools, big churches, big Government, big farms, big stores, big railroads, big automobile companies, big fertilizer and oil companies, big farm cooperatives, big unions, big exploration and research programs, anud we are giving away big sums of money all over the world presumably to protect our way of life.

"Our way of life is really our high standard of living . . . developed from the fact that we are a mass-production country."

White said his own company bought from more than 12,000 different firms and sold directly to some 14,000. To hurt big business, he added, would be to "hurt little business and every man, woman and child in this country."

Before White took the witness stand, Frank Smith of Cartersville, Ga., charged that Republic had prevented him from selling iron ore to a competitive company on the basis of a contract he had signed with White's firm. He said the contract provided that he must sell all his product to Republic but did not obligate Republic to buy any minimum amount from him.

White said this form of contract was "customary" in the South, but that Smith could easily have got relief if he had applied to Republic.

He added that Republic had closed one of its own mines in the South and had curtailed production at another in order to provide a market for small iron mine owners. This was done, he explained, not as a magnanimous gesture, but because Republic felt that whatever it could do to raise the South's economic level would be to its own benefit.

Democrats Split on Farm Support Plans

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

A long-expected break in the ranks of the supporters of the present expensive farm price support program showed up yesterday after a meeting of Democratic farm leaders with President Truman.

Chairman Harold D. Cooley (D., N. C.) of the potent House Agriculture Committee, revealed the break. He told newsmen that he warned Mr. Truman and Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan that price supports for perishables may have to be junked.

His program would limit price protection to the so-called basics, or storable commodities. These are cotton, corn, wheat, tobacco, rice and peanuts. It would drop supports from eggs, potatoes, dairy products, hogs, etc.

He also told them, he added, that the adinistration's farm program, generally known as the Brannan Plan, didn't have a chance, at least at this session. He added that it had been "repudiated" by Congress, although it still is on Mr. Truman's list of issues in this year's campaign.

He asked them to "come up with something better," and added that he would "provide a forum" before his committee.

Cooleys remarks set off a chain of reactions:

1. Brannan seemed surprised. He stated that "the whole field of price supports was surveyed" at the meeting but that he didn't understand that Cooley had suggested such violent changes.

2. A smoldering row between Northern and Southern Congressmen was blown into flame. Coming on top of repeal of oleomargarine taxes and the liberalization of acreage allotments for cotton and peanuts while strict rules were adopted for potatoes, the statement met bitter criticism. Representative August H. Andresen (R., Minn.) remarked that "Cooley is primarily interested in Southern-grown cotton, peanuts, tobacco, rice, and Oklahoma and Texas wheat. I didn't think he was ready yet to junk the rest of the States."

Andresen added that the "basics" would be the crops that will "ultimately break the support program." Of the four billion invested in price support program, he said about three fourths were on the southern crops, plus corn.

One high official at the Agriculture Department commented on the Cooley statement: "If we get the two billion for Commodity Credit Corporation this time, it'll be the last." He referred to the bill for two billion dollars more for the CCC price support program. The agency has about used up the 4750 million dollars it was granted for price supports.

Attending the White House conference with Cooley were Speaker Sam Rayburn (Texas) and Democratic Leader John W. McCormick (Mass.) who arranged the parley, and Representative Stephen Pace (D., Ga.) The meeting lasted more than an hour—unusually long for such an affair.

Egg Buying Makes High Record for 1950

Uncle Sam bought more eggs under the farm price support system this week than in any week this year, the Associated Press reported from Chicago.

It bought 4,237,448 pounds, brings the total for the year to almost 20-million pounds — or the equivalent of 90 million dozens of shell eggs.

That is about seven eggs for every man, woman and child in the country. The Government buys them to keep prices up.

Czechs Tell U. S. to Close USIS Offices

JOSEPH C. KOLAREK
Expulsion ordered

Prague, April 19 (U.P.).—Czechoslovakia today ordered the expulsion of a United States press attache and asked the United States to close its two Information Service offices.

At the same time, six Czechs were put on trial as traitors and American spies. The two chief defendants—former Army Maj. Jaromir Nechansky, 34, and Veleslav Wahl, a 28-year-old student—pleaded guilty.

Nechansky admitted collecting information on uranium mines for the United States and Wahl gave a similar recital of guilt.

The Foreign Ministry demanded in a note to the United States Embassy that:

1. United States Press Attache Joseph Kolarek of Baltimore, chief of United States Information Service activities in Czechoslovakia, be recalled within a "reasonable time.'

2. The USIS offices in Prague and Bratislava be closed by noon Saturday.

The note accused Kolarek of abusing his diplomatic privileges by directing anti-Czech spy activities.

It charged the USIS spread "untrue reports," incited the public against the Government and "used its Czechoslovak employes for espionage activities . . . under threats of losing their jobs."

The note cited as proof the trial of the two former USIS employes, Dagmar Kacerovska and Lubomir Elsner, who a few days ago, were sentenced to 15 and 18 years respectively as traitors and spies.

In addition to Nechansky and Wahl, three other men and a woman went on trial for treason today. They were accused of operating a spy ring under the alleged orders of Walter Birge, former chief of the political section at the United States Embassy.

[The Associated Press reported that in another trial, 15 Czechs and Jaromir Zastera, a student claiming American nationality, convicted of treason and espionage, were given sentences ranging from death to two years' imprisonment. The 20-year-old defendant claiming American citizenship was sentenced to 18 years and expulsion after his sentence is served.]

(In Washington, it was said the United States may ban Czech publications in the United States in retaliation. The State Department said the Czechs ordered USIS libraries closed because of "fear of the expression of truth."

(The ban stems from a Communist desire to "insulate the Czechoslovak people" from the West, declared Michael McDermott, State Department press officer.)

Hongkong (Thursday), April 20 (U.P.).—The Chinese Communists mobilized reinforcements today for their beachhead on Hainan Island, and it appeared the long-awaited, full-scale invasion was under way.

Reports from the mainland said Red troops were pouring into Luichow Peninsula for transport across the 10-mile strait to Hainan in an all-out assault on the Nationalist base.

Pro-Nationalist reports said a second invasion forces of some 200 junks had put to sea from Luichow, but it reported this force was routed by combined air and naval attacks.

Pro-Communist newspapers said Communist President Mao Tze-tung issued the invasion order while in Moscow consulting with the Kremlin and that the Chusan Island blockade base and Formosa itself were next on the list.

The Nationalists had claimed a major success in the battle for Hainan, but military observers believed it was only the opening phase and that Red reinforcements would be thrown into battle regardless of losses.

The Nationalists said they defeated the original landing force, but at the same time admitted 1000 Communists had broken through government lines and escaped into the mountains, where they were reported under heavy bombardment.

A Central News Agency dispatch early today said a second Communist invasion fleet tried to slip across to Hainan Tuesday to support the Communist beachhead, but was intercepted by air and naval units and "many" junks were sunk.

It appeared the Communists suffered thousands of casualties but nevertheless had been able to maintain their beachhead.

Rebels Quit In Makassar as Troops Arrive

Jakarta, United States of Indonesia, April 19 (AP).—Rebel soldiers in Makassar surrendered unconditionally today as federal troops swarmed ashore on Celebes beaches south of that city, the Indonesian government announced. No bloodshed was reported.

Coupled with this announcement was an official declaration that the imprisoned Sultan Hamid 2d, a former cabinet member described by the government as the brains behind Capt. R. P. P. (Turk) Westerling's west Java revolt in January, has confessed he plotted for Westerling to kill Indonesia's three top military chiefs. All are still alive. Westerling is in jail in Singapore awaiting deportation by the British.

The sultan was arrested April 5, the day of the Makassar revolt. The date appears to be the only connection between the two cases.

Tibet Seeking 'Understanding' With Red China

Calcutta, India, April 19 (AP).—A member of a Tibetan delegation announced today his party will attempt to make arrangements for meetings with Chinese Communists to try for a "better understanding" between Red China and Tibet.

Tsechag Thupden Gyalpo told reporters his mission did not propose to cross into China, but would meet Peiping's representatives either in Burma, Thailand or Hongkong. He said Peiping had been informed of the mission by the Tibetan radio at Lhasa, but the Communists' reaction has not yet been received.

Gyalpo said that while Peiping had adopted a threatening attitude, there has been no evidence yet the Communists are trying to infiltrate Tibet.

Senate Republican Policy Committee Agrees to Consult With Truman and Acheson on Any Part of Foreign Affairs

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate Republican Policy Committee yesterday unanimously agreed to consultation with the President by a representative GOP cross-section on "all or any part of our foreign policy."

Senate Republican Steersman Robert A. Taft (Ohio) indicated the agreement was limited to consultation and a willingness to consider any "suggestions" made by the President.

He and other Senate Republican policymakers backed up "completely" statements already made by Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) that bipartisan foreign policy "must be a two-way street."

Bridges, in an unusual White House conference on Tuesday, received a pledge from the President that he and Secretary of State Dean Acheson will keep Republicans in Congress "currently informed" on foreign relations.

Taft Avoids Pledge

Later Bridges told newsmen he felt Republicans in general would "reciprocate" to the extent that they were consulted and their views were considered in the formulation of foreign policy.

In reporting the views of the GOP policy-making group, Taft carefully refrained from pledging any GOP "reciprocation" in return for consultation on foreign policy.

Questioned on this point in Taft's presence, Bridges repeated that he believed Republicans generally would reciprocate to the extent they were consulted, and so told President Truman. He said Republicans were not formally committed, however, to anything but discussion.

The Senate Republican high command weighed the Administration's overtures for closer two-party cooperation in the foreign affairs at a meeting called to consider the party's stand on a key foreign policy measure—another year's authorization for the Marshall Plan.

Full Conference Friday

Taft said no conclusions were reached by the policy-making group on the Senate bill carrying forward the Economic Cooperation Administration, but a full Senate conference to discuss it was set for Friday morning.

The New Hampshire Republican, who has bitterly attacked Acheson in the past, and who in turn was recently denounced by Mr. Truman as trying to "sabotage" bipartisan foreign policy, yesterday "reported" to the full Senate GOP steering group.

Taft said his report largely followed his earlier statement to the press on the projected bi-party talks.

"We approved Senator Bridges' position and expressed our willingness to receive any suggestions the President may wish to make."

Both Taft and Bridges stressed that the next move in the bipartisan foreign policy negotiations is up to Mr. Truman.

Had 2 Talks With Acheson

Meanwhile it was learned that at least two talks between Bridges and Secretary Acheson, both held at Acheson's suggestion, preceded Tuesday's White House conference.

At Bridges' second conference with Acheson, a little more than a week ago, reportedly lasting several hours, the biparty cooperation moves were first broached.

At this conference, Bridges is said to have been given an extremely full report on cold-war developments and possible critical developments ahead.

Other than "two-way" operation of bipartisan foreign policy, Bridges laid down no ironclad conditions and Acheson none, one informant said. The talks definitely involved no "deal" on the McCarthy charges. Bridges stressed he would continue to speak his views freely, under the two-party system, whenever he felt it desirable. But there was at least an inference that foreign affairs appropriations may have smoother GOP sailing under the consultative procedure.

Ranking Republican

Bridges is ranking Republican on the Senate Appropriations Committee, scene of some of the sharpest foreign affairs tussles. It was emphasized, however, that he was sought out by the Administration because, second only to Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), he is ranking Senate Republican in point of service.

Following yesterday's party policy meeting Taft and Bridges were asked if they knew which GOP leaders would be first called to the White House or the State Department under the consultative plan.

Taft said that "in the normal way," ranking Republicans on the Foreign Relations Committee would be called in but "we are not trying to tie the hands of the President on how he chooses to do it."

Said Bridges:

"The next move would naturally come from the President or Secretary Acheson. The whole point was that we ought to have a bipartisan foreign policy—that the Republican leadership and a cross-section of Republicans must be consulted in the development of that policy."

Bridges said he agreed with Taft that Republicans on the Foreign Policy Committee should always be kept abreast of developments but "on matters of wide importance" the GOP leadership and some Senators from the rank and file should be consulted as well.

He said he had in mind particularly such leaders as GOP Policy Chairman Taft, Minority Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.), GOP Conference Chairman Eugene D. Millikin (Colo.) as well as ranking Republicans on the Foreign Affairs and Appropriations Committees. He urged that some of the "newer" Republican members of the Senate be represented in the cross-section drawn from the Senate GOP rank and file.

Soviet Alters Its Position On Jerusalem

Lake Success, April 19 (AP).—Russia withdrew support unexpectedly today from the United Nations plan for international rule over Jerusalem.

The Soviet reversal apparently knocked the last remaining props from under the project. The plan was pushed through the General Assembly last fall by a unique coalition of Communist, Catholic, and Arab nation delegates.

The United States and Britain opposed the resolution after Israel and Hashemite Jordan, the countries that occupy two separate sections of the Holy City, announced they would fight down any effort to enforce it.

The Assembly ordered the trusteeship council to draft a statute for an international regime in Jerusalem. The council recently completed its draft.

A note from Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jakob A. Malik to U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie said:

"It has now become clear that the above General Assembly resolution does not satisfy the Arab or Jewish population of either Jerusalem or Palestine as a whole. In these circumstances, the USSR does not consider it possible to continue its support.

"At the same time the Soviet government feels certain the United Nations will succeed in finding a solution of the Jerusalem problems acceptable to both the Arab and Jewish sections of the population of that city."

The next move on the Jerusalem question probably will come in September, when the Assembly meets for its 1950 session.

U. N. Expert Asks Probe Of European Cartels

Geneva, Switzerland, April 19 (AP).—Prof. Gunnar Myrdal of Sweden, executive secretary of the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe, urged today an investigation of European international cartels and government trading monopolies.

His annual report proposed a "first-hand and objective investigation and study of certain aspects of contemporary market organizations which are often thought adversely to affect economic welfare."

Adenauer Gets British Rebuke

London, April 19 (NYHT).—Konrad Adenauer, Chancellor of West Germany, received his first official rebuke from the British government today for "bad taste" in reviving "Deutschland Uber Alles," former national anthem, at a Berlin political rally yesterday.

A Foreign Office spokesman chastized the German leader also for suggesting early liberalization of the occupation statute and for seeking greater authority over the conduct of German foreign relations.

East Zone Leader's Son Flees to West Berlin

Berlin, April 19 (U.P.).—Ralph Kastner, 30-year-old son of East Germany's Deputy Prime Minister, today said he had fled to the West because Russian political pressure was "unbearable."

Kastner, his wife and two daughters, shabbily dressed, arrived in the west sector of Berlin last night seeking political sanctuary.

Kastner described his father, leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, as a political opportunist who has become so indoctrinated "he is now about 95 percent Communist."

2000 London Dockers Strike Against Ousting of Union Men

London, April 19 (AP).—A lightning wildcat strike made nearly 2000 London dockers idle today—and threatened to spread.

An echo of a Communist-backed stoppage in British ports last year, the walkout was called by an unofficial "Port Workers' Defense Committee" demanding reinstatement of three men kicked out of their union on grounds that they helped run the strike in 1949.

Nine ships were idle and seven undermanned. Loading and unloading of 14 others proceeded normally. Prolonged stoppage would threaten Britain's rations. More than 200 trucks piled up at the docks, unable to get rid of their loads.

In Commons, a Conservative leader asserted the Labor Government's new budget is "inadequate to deal with the fundamentals of our economic and financial position."

R. A. Butler opened debate on the budget with the statement that Britain is heading into "grave difficulties," adding: "This is the budget of a man and a government who do not choose or care to look very far ahead."

Hirohito Reported Studying Christianity

Cardiff, Wales, April 19 (AP).—Emperor Hirohito, regarded by the Japanese as divine, was reported tonight to be studying Christianity.

Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, an evangelist, told the British Council of Churches the Japanese Empress is being instructed in the New Testament, and that she, in turn, was teaching the Emperor.

Bradley Links Arms And Political Union

Concord, Mass., April 19 (AP).—Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff of the United States, today said that United States, Britain and Canada — "politically joined" —can preserve democracy in the western world.

Gen. Bradley

General Bradley spoke on the 175th anniversary of the battles of Lexington and Concord, which began the American Revolution and the ultimate separation of the United States from the British empire. He went out of his way to note British armed force representatives in his audience on this anniversary.

But his prepared text did not elaborate on his phrases: "Politically joined" and "strengthen their political unity."

"Are Politically Joined"

The General declared:

"As long as these three Nations —Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States—are politically joined and remain strong, representative government, without tyranny, has a better chance for continued existence in the Western world . . .

"Through our mutual efforts for security and self-preservation, the British people, the Canadians, and the Americans will strengthen their political unity. . . . Our efforts—British, Canadian and American — joined with other friendly nations of the Western world, may foster a real chance for permanent peace in our time."

He cited the North Atlantic treaty as "looking more closely to political unity that leads to connective security."

Others Have Stake, He Says

He said Britain and Canada "have as much at stake in this clash of ideologies as we have. And," he continued, "if we quit or fail in any one of these interdependent actions, then we have given the battle over before it has begun."

General Bradley did not mention Russia by name, but he spoke of the "danger of Communists in Europe" and also said "in the far reaches of another nation the forces which might lead to an American Armageddon could be forming."

Declaring that "the plot against freedom is surely afoot," Bradley said the plot is "encouraged by a ruthless, ambitious, expert and clever enemy."

"One fact stands out clearly," he continued. "We have not won a decision in the peacemaking. Before we win a decision for peace, we will be called upon to explore every possible path to peace. We must search it out without prejudice, without false pride, and with every sincerity that our national integrity provides.

Notes Presence of Britons

"We are especially honored here today that Great Britain's army and navy are represented at this celebration of a conflict between the mother nation and her colonies," he said and went on:

"Any menace to the American way of life is also of impending danger to our common cultural ideas and ideals. No one realizes more than the American people that the collective security of the North Atlantic area is as much dependent on the United Kingdom and our neighbor to the north, Canada, as it is on us.

"We Americans need the loyalty and aid of Great Britain and all its vast British Commonwealth of Nations, and they need us. We must help them whenever they need it, and help them unselfishly."

Crooner in Europe

Cherbourg, France, April 19 (U.P.). Film star Bing Crosby arrived here today aboard the Queen Elizabeth to begin a European vacation.

Bomb Blasts U. S. Legation

Damascus, April 19 (AP).—Premier Khaled Bey Azem said today the bombing of the United States Legation here last night was primarily an attempt to embarrass the Syrian government.

Bombs were tossed into the United Sates Legation compounds at both Damascus and Bierut, the capital of Lebanon. Both nations are Arab neighbors of Israel.

A United States Marine guard, Staff Sergt. Elbert Cassel of Bedford, Va., was cut slightly on the hands and face by glass when a grenade exploded back of the legation here as he was receiving by telephone the news of the Beirut incident. The grenade dug a 6-foot crater and shattered windows throughout the legation.

Premier Azem said the Middle East policy of the United States, which Arabs regard as favoring Israel, is "leading directly to unsettled conditions in the Arab world."

He declared a neutral position by the United States and other big powers on the Palestine question could bring peace because none of the parties involved would then have a feeling they could create trouble.

new ideas in Gabardine

Gabardine stars again—in TWO smash hits! Yes, your top-favorite—smarter than ever with a new shadow-stripe effect. Plus another in the new sheen-weave that adds so much clarity to colors. This Spring gabardine takes on fresh interest at Bond's. What's more, your gabardine suit gets very special treatment at Bond's hands. Our famous "Stay Set" cold-water-shrinking chases wrinkles, keeps trim lines trim. This costly process guarantees fitting perfection every day of your suit's long life. Naturally, these are pedigreed Royal Crown gabardines—we've never been quite satisfied with the ordinary variety. You'll like them because they look expensive. And because Bond's big maker-to-you setup keeps them from being high-priced.

late belief into action, to practice what we preach. In a real and practical way, the International Trade Organization is a test of our leadership.

"It is a demonstration not only to ourselves, but to all other free peoples, that we really believe in free enterprise, competition and multilateral trade. Such a practical demonstration is sorely needed at this time, when freedom is hanging in the balance in many parts of the world, and millions of people are looking in our direction for assurance that we really mean what we say."

He told the committee that only two countries, Australia and Liberia, had ratified the charter so far, and that "the others are all waiting to see what the United States does."

"The choice, therefore, which the Congress is about to make," Acheson said, "is not only whether the United States will accept membership in the International Trade Organization, but whether there will be an International Trade Organization.

"We are engaged in a great cooperative effort with other countries to raise standards of living throughout the world and to achieve political stability and peace. Our effort has many facets, political, economic, financial, military. All are interrelated. Each supports the others.

"We are also engaged in a struggle between two ways of life, two systems of thought and philosophy as different as the poles are wide apart. Millions of people are watching this struggle to see which system and way of life will work the best and do the most to provide a decent life for the individual.

"To the extent that we can work effectively with other nations of like mind to make our system work, our hand will be strengthened in that struggle."

Acheson said the core of the charter was the chapter on commercial policy, which pledges the willingness of the signers to (1) negotiate tariff reductions, and (2) to simplify customs procedures. In the same chapter the signers agree not to give special favors to any country's trade, not to put internal taxes on imported goods, and not to use import quotas for protective purposes.

The Charter also commits member nationals to get rid of restrictive business practices, to seek full employment within their worders, and to help the flow of technical skills and private capital into under-developed areas. There are many exceptions and escape clauses, some dealing with farm surpluses, and some permitting important quotas in countries that are short of foreign currencies.

Senate Honors 10 Lost Fliers

it would take unanimous consent there to bring up anything else.

The temper in which the Senate voted for the resolution was perhaps best illustrated by the remarks of Senator Morse (R., Oreg.).

He cautioned Senators to give it careful consideration, saying that the world sits "on a tinder box" and any incident threatens to convert the cold war into a hot war.

But, in the face of his own warning, Morse said the United States must make it clear to Russia that "American lives are going to be protected against violations of international law wherever they take place."

"We do not intend to stand by and see American lives sacrificed in a cold war and merely protest," Morse said.

Among the members of the crew of the missing plane was Lieut. Howard William Seeschaf, formerly of Arlington, Va.

The unusual Senate call for posthumous honors to the Navy airmen was an obvious answer to Russia's action last Thursday in bestowing the Red Banner award on four Soviet airmen for "excellent fulfillment of their duty."

Moscow did not announce the specific reason for the awards but the State Department's note caustically said:

"The cause of peace is not furthered when the U.S.S.R. ostentatiously decorates Soviet airmen in a manner calculated to give the impression that they are being rewarded for shooting down a defenseless American plane."

The resolution itself provides for "appropriate" decorations for the lost men "in recognition of their outstanding and heroic services in the performance of duty."

Truman to Address Society of Editors

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman will make a foreign policy speech of "some importance" when he addresses the American Society of Newspaper Editors at the Statler today.

His talk will be on the record, which is something unusual in meetings between Mr. Truman and the editors. Last year his remarks were confidential. In the spring of 1948, he spoke publicly at the society's banquet; but then put down his manuscript, and, in a 15-minute off-the-record talk, really toldthe editors what was on his mind.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, in telling reporters yesterday that today's speech would be of importance, said it would deal with "some aspects of our foreign policy." It will be delivered about 1:45 p. m.

In a news conference at Key West on March 30, Mr. Truman said that certain Republicans were trying to "sabotage" the bipartisan policy, and he accused one of them, Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.), of being the greatest asset the Kremlin has in this country.

Senator McCarthy is scheduled to address a meeting of the society which begins at 8 o'clock this evening. His theme will be "Communism in Government." Don Nicholson, chief of the State Department's loyalty program, also will speak.

The editors, who represent newspapers in all parts of the United States, will gather for their opening session at 9:45 o'clock this morning.

Reports will be made by special committees that have been investigating the State Department's methods of furnishing information to the press and the policies of press associations in handling morning and afternoon releases. George Cornish of the New York Herald Tribune will deliver the report on the State Department, and Harold E. Wheeler of the Boston Traveler will deliver that on the press associations.

Edwin D. Canham of the Christian Science Monitor will report on the convenant of human rights.

Other reports will be made at a session starting at 2:30 p. m., following President Truman's luncheon speech. Basil L. Walters of the Knight newspapers will report on world freedom of information; Lester Markel of the New York Times on the International Press Institute, and J. Donald Ferguson of the Milwaukee Journal on the desirability of the society's sponsoring an appraisal of newspaper self-improvement possibilities.

Budenz Here To Testify in Loyalty Quiz

By the United Press

Senate investigators are ready to subpena John J. Huber, former FBI undercover agent, for questioning in connection with Communist spy charges leveled at Far Eastern expert Owen Lattimore by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), it was disclosed yesterday.

Huber's name was submitted by McCarthy on Tuesday to the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee investigating McCarthy's charges that the State Department is riddled with Reds and Communists sympathizers. The Senator has said he is ready to "stand or fall" on the Lattimore case.

Huber's identity was revealed as Louis R. Budenz, former Communist editor, arrived here for questioning today on Lattimore. The hearing will take place at 10:30 a. m. in the Senate caucus room.

McCarthy has said that Budenz will testify he knew Lattimore as a member of the Communist Party "for many years."

Both Huber and Budenz live in Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Budenz, now a Fordham University professor, refused to discuss his testimony in advance but, under questioning, told reporters in New York that McCarthy "may know in general" what he will tell the committee. He said the Senator "may have some information."

Huber already has testified before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Immigration and went through preliminary questioning by investigators for the House Committee on Un-American Activities. But he was not called for formal testimony by that group.

He told the subcommittee he became affiliated with the FBI while working for the Works Progress Administration in 1938. He then joined the Communist Party and reported to the FBI until 1947 when he said he left "of my own volition."

Huber did not mention Lattimore in his testimony to the Judiciary Subcommittee.

Hawaii's Red Problem Held Not Abnormal

Honolulu, April 19 (AP).—A Democrat member of Hawaii's territorial Legislature denied to the House Un-American Activities Committee that he was or ever had been a Communist.

Representative Tom A. Tagawa from the Island of Maui challenged the testimony of a witness who yesterday said the lawmaker attended a Communist meeting on Maui in 1947.

Tagawa testified he attended social gatherings with persons placed by witnesses at the Communist meetings but declared: "No such thing as communism was ever discussed between us."

The representative is president of the Maui Pineapple Workers Local of Harry Bridges CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

One of Bridges' former ILWU leaders in Honolulu, Jack Kawano, told the committee "I am not a Communist" but declined to say if he ever had been one. He also refused to answer other questions. Previous witnesses had said some Communist party meetings were held in his home.

Nine other witnesses, all ILWU officials, refused to answer questions on communism in Hawaii during the morning session.

This brought to 39 the number of witnesses who have defied the committee's inquiry into communism in Hawaii. The committee has said it will ask the House to cite all such witnesses for contempt.

Committee members said they hoped to wind up the hearings by tonight. When the hearings began April 10 it was expected they would last for about three weeks.

Representative Velde (R., Ill.) said the hearing so far had demonstrated the Communist problem in Hawaii was no more serious than elsewhere in the United States. He predicted the hearings would help Hawaii's Statehood chances, "because Hawaii can meet its problems more easily as a State."

Ingrid, Dr. Lindstrom Agree To Share Custody of Daughter

Hollywood, April 19 (U.P.).—Ingrid Bergman and Dr. Peter Lindstrom called off their bitter tug-of-war for custody of their 12-year-old daughter, Pia, today by agreeing to joint legal custody.

Dr. Lindstrom will have her during the school year and Miss Bergman will take her during the first half of her summer vacation. Then she returns to her father for the last half of the summer.

Dr. Lindstrom's lawyer announced he will file immediately for a divorce from the film star, who got her own "mail order" Mexican divorce in February.

Attorneys for the actress and the brain surgeon reached an agreement also on division of their joint $250,000 estate.

Greg Bautzer, Miss Bergman's lawyer, said Dr. Lindstrom will continue to live in their mansion with Pia and provide for her while her mother is out of the country.

Miss Bergman now is in Rome with Roberto Rossellini and their 2-month-old son.

Both parents will set up a guardianship account and will pay into it regularly to buy books and food and clothes.

"Dr. Lindstrom's agreement to give her joint legal custody," Bautzer added, "means he can never point a finger at her as an unfit and improper person to have the child."

Mrs. Keleher Wins $950, Asked $6450

Iscariot" who had sold his soul and his honor for $6450.

Ford, who himself has blistered the hide of many a Government witness with savage cross-examination, sat with fists clenched and shoulders hunched, throughout Laughlin's attack.

"If Mrs. Keleher is telling the truth," Laughlin started, "then Ford is a perjurer of the first water and guilty of some form of larceny."

The jurors might have received the impression that "there is some feeling between Ford and me," Laughlin continued. "I want to say I am not suing Ford. He didn't take any money from me."

(Laughlin did sue Ford, and three others, for $500,000 more than 10 years ago, charging that they engaged in a conspiracy to indict him. The case was dismissed.)

Accuses Ford as "Slipshod"

Laughlin interrupted himself to say that it was "not pleasant to accuse a member of the bar of misconduct," and then accused Ford of "slipshod" conduct. "Would an honest, reputable attorney handle matters" in the way Ford handled Mrs. Keleher's case? he asked the jury.

Laughlin Ford

Ford "doesn't even have the ingenuity to tell a plausible lie." Just because Ford associates with gamblers, that fact gives him "no license to steal," Laughlin roared.

"Ford was caught in a trap," he "saw the law closing in on him," and invoked "the subterfuge" of waiting for four years before dropping his fee from $5000 to $3000, Laughlin charged. Ford acted "the way the underworld operates," without receipts, he said.

He betrayed the trust of Mrs. Keleher, Laughlin continued. "Just as Judas Iscariot betrayed Christ for 30 pieces of silver," so "Ford sold his soul for $6450 and with it, his honor."

Ford's attorney, Leo A. Rover, speaking softly and intimately close to the jury, in marked contrast to Laughlin's loud tones shouted across the courtroom, said that Laughlin had generated heat, but not light.

Rover said he was going to call nobody names. He said he was not going to label Mrs. Keleher a perjurer. "I say she is mistaken, under oath."

Before the case went to the jury yesterday, Austin F. Canfield, former president of the D. C. Bar Association, and Attorney Lewis H. Shapiro, testified as expert witnesses for Ford that $3000 was "a fair and reasonable fee" for Ford's services. They were in the courtroom throughout the trial.

Laughlin countered with Vivian O. Hill, a practicing lawyer for more than 20 years. He said he thought that $250, or $6 an hour, would have been a reasonable fee.

Hazel Scott Wins $250 in Racial Suit

Spokane, Wash., April 19 (AP). Negro pianist, Hazel Scott, was awarded $250 damages today by a jury that found she had been denied service at a restaurant because of her race.

Miss Scott had sued the former owners of a Pasco, Wash. restaurant for $50,000 She alleged she was denied service solely because of her color.

The jury of three women and nine men—all white—deliberated 15 hours.

Senate Passes Navy Retirement Measure

The Senate unanimously passed a bill yesterday to set up a new system of forcing high-ranking Navy and Marine Corps officers into retirement to make room for promotion of lower grades.

The Senate Armed Services Committee described it as a system of "forced attrition" under which a certain quota of Navy admirals and Marine Corps generals would be retired annually unless specifically selected to remain on duty.

CARRIED FROM MONUMENT—District Rescue Squad members remove Patsy Whitmire, one of the four girls who collapsed when the elevator in the shaft jammed yesterday. Thirty high school students from Tennessee were on board the car administered smelling salts to Miss Whittamore. She then joined the other Kingsport students going down.

Start Walking Down

The elevator mechanism locked at 480 feet, Porter said. There Miss Whittamore fainted. Porter opened the elevator door, and the students started walking down.

Exact number in the elevator was not immediately determined, except that it was filled to capacity, which is 30 adults.

A Washington area youth helped carry Miss Whittamore down to where the students met the rescue squad coming up. He is William F. Nesbitt, 18, of 14 East Woodbine st., Chevy Chase, Md.

The students who did not faint were visibly upset, white-faced, and scarcely able to talk after the shock of an elevator stopping 480 feet up in the air.

Two had been carried away by the rescue squad and the others started across the greensward beyond the Monument to their buses when suddenly a third girl dropped.

The group's chaperone and two students rushed to her side. At their chaperone's orders the others continued to the bus. Then suddenly a fourth girl fell on the grass.

Happy Is The Day When Backache Goes Away . . . .

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

VFW Assails Five Germans Staying in U. S.

By The Associated Press

A veterans' group yesterday accused the Government of disregarding immigration laws by letting five Germans stay in this country long after their temporary permits expired.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars said the Germans were brought to this country last year to testify at treason trials and have been "conveniently forgotten" by the Justice and State Departments.

What especially irks the VFW, a statement by its national legislative committee said, is that the Germans obtained jobs with a recording company which is doing special work for the FBI. As a result, VFW said a veteran working for the company has been fired, and another veteran has quit because of "tension" created when the Germans preached "Nazi doctrines."

The veterans were identified as Keene Hepburn, who the VFW said was discharged by the United States Recording Co.; and John F. Keelan, who quit.

Adrian J. Grobsmith of Syracuse, N. Y., chairman of the VFW committee, said the case is "typical of what is going on in this country."

Educators Project Set of 'Great Books'

Chicago, April 19 (AP).—The greatest writings of Western civilization have been assembled in a 54-volume, $1,750,000 work, "Great Books of the Western World."

Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago today announced plans for publishing the monumental set with himself as editor-in-chief and Mortimer J. Adler, also of U. of C., as associate editor.

For the first time the publishing venture places side by side the works acclaimed as "indispensable to the liberal education of a free man in the twentieth century."

These works were selected eight years ago by a group of educators, philosophers, novelists, scientists and poets.

Encyclopedia Britannica, Inc., is publishing the massive collection in collaboration with its parent institution, the U. of C.

The set includes 443 works by 74 authors. Of these, 439 are printed in full. Twelve of the works are out of print in English. Nine others are presented here in their first English translation or in translation for the first time in this country.

Bible Not Included

The editors said the Bible is not included because it is already universally available and almost universally owned.

The work is now ready for a limited first printing of 1000 sets. Its sponsors are seeking that many persons to become patrons of the project by buying one of the first sets for $500. The first edition will be available about nine months after the 1000th charter subscriber has been secured.

Then, with funds from these original subscriptions, Britannica plans to put on general sale a less elaborately printed and bound set, to sell for about $250. Eventually, if the demand makes possible printing on a mass scale, it is the sponsors' hope to issue the sets for under $100.

Forty-six patrons have been secured to date. They include Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post Co., who ordered 10 copies for distribution to educational institutions.

The set is designed, Hutchins said, to provide a liberal education.

"We have thought of education as an affair for the young," he added. "And the result has been that those things which only adults can understand, because only they have had the experience to understand them, we have never learned, and they are the most important things of all."

"Not Printed Furniture"

Hutchins said the editors "are not interested in providing printed furniture for the American home.

A unique feature of the set is a dictionary of ideas, for which the editors have coined the title "Syntopicon," or collection of topics. The two-volume Syntopicon is described as a "switchboard to connect the mind of the readers with those of the authors."

It lists 102 "great ideas" under which are 2967 topics by which the reader can find what the greatest minds of all times have said on any subject that interests him.

Adler described it as a way of reading "in the great books before reading through them. It seduces the reader into reading more."

Without it, the editors say, it would take "literally years of reading most of the great books through to find out what they have to say about a specific idea and its parts."

Varied Format, Typography

Seven years of work by more than 100 scholars, and almost one million dollars went into the making of the Syntopicon alone.

The set's 54 volumes vary in format and typography and range in size from 200 to 1200 pages.

Included among the authors are Homer, Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripedes, Aristophanes, Plato, Aristotle, Euclid, Virgil, Plutarch, Dante, Chaucer, Rabelais, Shakespeare, Bacon, Milton, Sir Isaac Newton, John Locke, Jonathan Swift, Rousseau, Kant, James Boswell, Goethe, Herman Melville, Charles Darwin, Karl Marx, Tolstoy, Sigmund Freud, and William James.

Senate Votes Lewdness Curb

By the United Press

The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the House a bill to tighten up Federal laws prohibiting the transport and sale of obscene or filthy literature and other articles.

The measure would extend present legislation to include lewd phonograph records.

It also would make subject to Federal prosecution those transporting two or more copies of the same article or a combined total of five obscene articles.

The Senate also:

Passed and sent to the House a bill authorizing the Defense Department to provide for civilian recreation programs at such isolated military posts as Okinawa, Guam, and in Japan.

Artigas Statue to Be Unveiled

A statue honoring Gen. Jose Artigas, founder of Uruguay, is to be unveiled near the Pan American Union Annex on June 19.

A gift to the American people, the statue was paid for by a 1940 appropriation of the Uruguayan Chamber of Deputies and by contributions from Uruguayan school children.

It has been in Washington since 1947, crated and ready for placement in the small triangle bounded by Virginia and Constitution aves. and 18th st. National Capital Parks is now erecting a pedestal for it.

General Artigas, who admired the United States so much that he carried a copy of the United States Constitution into battle with him, lived from 1764 to 1850. His motto was "With Liberty I Neither Offend Nor Fear."

Presentation of his statue was made by Uruguay as part of a program of exchange with American republics of statues of national heroes.

Management

Good management is the essence of economy in government as in any other business. For that reason the spring working conference of the Society for the Advancement of Management, which opened in Washington last night and will continue through this evening, is a matter of interest to all the Government's stockholders. The theme of the conference, under the auspices of the Washington chapter of the S. A. M., is "How to Do a Better Job of Management." The aim is to take common counsel for the improvement of administrative and personnel techniques among the executive agencies.

The conference affords concrete evidence of the conscientious interest of Government executives in improving their methods—an interest that deserves some recognition in contrast to the reckless allegations about disloyalty in the Government that have been emanating like a smog from the McCarthy clique on Capitol Hill. The S. A. M. is making a significant, if unsensational, contribution to better government.

Files On Maragon

The reluctance of a Department of Agriculture attorney to bring into court all the "confidential" records subpenaed in the trial of John F. Maragon, alleged 5-percenter, brought a sharp rebuke from Judge Bailey. It was a salutary reminder to officials that departmental records are not placed beyond the reach of the courts merely by designating them confidential. When the Government brings a case of this sort, it must necessarily take into court the documentary evidence that will give a complete picture of the activity of the accused.

In the Judith Coplon espionage trial Judge Reeves ordered the Department of Justice to produce secret FBI documents. The department had the alternative of yielding the information or withdrawing the case. It chose to bring in the essential evidence. Grave questions arise in cases of this sort about the exposure of confidential FBI sources. But it is difficult to see why the Department of Agriculture should be withholding information that has a bearing upon the activities of 5-percenters.

The public has a keen interest in thorough examination of such records whether in the course of a trial or a congressional investigation. There are many cases in which public policy dictates that executive records shall be kept confidential. A prominent instance is the loyalty files. And, of course, neither congressional committees nor the courts have any right to subpena documents bearing upon the President's constitutional functions. But it is important to keep clear the right to reach into the far-flung agencies of Government for evidence of corruption. To deny this right would be to cripple the best available means of keeping our representative system clean and honorable.

The Rising Curtain

We have as yet no figures in the way of comparative attendance figures at the opening baseball games; but, judging from the volume of discussion in such places as cocktail bars, Pullman smoking compartments and the corridors of office buildings, the 1950 baseball season promises to be, in point of popular interest at least, one of the most successful in history. Even here in Washington, where a sort of fatalistic pessimism prevails, more than 31,500 persons were at Griffith Stadium for the opening festivities. They were agreeably astonished to see the Senators edge out the Athletics in what appears to have been a somewhat ragged game, and were in consequence tied overnight with the Yankees, the Browns and the Tigers for first place in the American League.

Not that this meant very much statistically, seeing that the Senators had also won their opening game in 1949; but the characteristic of the baseball enthusiast is that so many high hopes can be raised with such little encouragement. It has, of course, happened now and then that a club as generally disparaged as ours in the preseason cerebrations of the experts, has confounded all the laws of probability. But it has not happened that way very often.

The important thing, however, is that from now until the first week or two of October the American people will have something much pleasanter to worry about than the cold war or communism in high places. Somewhere inside us we all know that it really does not make any particular difference to the destinies of the human race whether the result of Tuesday's game at Boston really reflects the relative excellence of the Yankees and the Red Sox, but we like to pretend otherwise. As somebody is said to have remarked in declining an invitation to watch a sweepstakes, it was long ago proved that one horse runs faster than another; and even those who get themselves excited over the fortunes of baseball clubs must remember that in every game the only way for one side to win is for the other side to lose.

Policy In Asia

The choice of China critic Senator Bridges as contact man in the new quest for a nonpartisan approach to foreign policy-making may indicate that a broad policy on Asia is in the making. This is good news. The wisdom of both parties needs to be mobilized in dealing with Asiatic irruption, and the gravity of the world situation calls for it. This is not to suggest that the entire area of Asia can be treated as one problem. Far from it. Asia is not one problem, but many, and the peoples and governments have little in common with one another, except in trade. Asia is unlike Europe in that there is no order or system or civilization to reestablish, and the pathetic Chiang-Quirino-Rhee effort to set up a Pacific body to cope with communism had no meaning beyond enticement of American dollars. This was the only thing that brought the three together. Asiatic trouble, to be sure, has several common denominators, but every national problem is different, not only intrinsically but also in its impact upon the American interest.

The overshadowing consideration in any policy-making on Asia should be to look at Asia in the context of our world strategy. In this connection Asia, in our opinion, should rank after Europe and the Middle East in the American concern. Moreover, toward Asia there are some golden rules to observe. For instance, anticommunism is not enough. To be sure, the Russians are stirring up a devil's brew, but the real recruiting agents of communism are misery, corruption and incompetence of governments, the land problem, and the subversion of custom and order in the hothouse of the Pacific war. The vast majority of "Communists" in Asia are not Communists at all. There are rice Communists as well as rice Christians in Asia. The Huks in the Philippines have a following made up of Filipinos who have lost faith in government. Chinese in the Malayan jungle buy protection from Communist cutthroats by joining them. These are two variants of the phenomenon of communism in Asia.

Another golden rule to keep in mind is that there is no military or financial solution for these Asiatic manifestations. Yet this is what is being offered in Indo-China. Here the United States has committed itself to a gamble which may backfire badly. The implications of this particular policy may now be reexamined by the bipartisans. Arms are apt not to make the weak stronger but, on the contrary, to make the weak prone to use them as counters for bargaining. This happened in China, and it will happen elsewhere. In the end, arms will wind up, as they have wound up before, in the hands of the wrong parties, and we shall find that we have turned the wrath of native populations in the American direction. This would be a sorry liquidation of our prestige and our wartime propaganda as enemies of colonialism. Nor is there any magic in dollars, for dollars in Asia in loans and subsidies generally fall into the worst hands, too, and feed corruption.

Solutions in Asia are susceptible neither to short cuts nor to quick achievement. The policy-makers must ask themselves what is the American interest in the context of global responsibilities, and then cultivate it. Clearly Japan and the Philippines have primacy, for here we have direct responsibilities. Over China the atmosphere is at present murky with dead cats; but, as soon as they are buried, then there may be some attention to diplomatic realities. In other areas there is many a pitfall to avoid from foreign propaganda—such as the statement that Malaya is bound to fall if Indo-China is lost. We don't believe it. Both Chinese and Malays have an interest in keeping the British in Malaya; all Indo-Chinese seem to be united in wanting to get rid of the French.

Subversion, having different forms, requires different methods to combat it. For instance, it might be a good thing to offer to buy up the arms of the Huks which they got for guerilla operations against the Japanese. If our purposes are kept pure in the eyes of native populations, the Philippines might be induced to accept foreign advisers, and this likewise applies to Indonesia. Police and fiscal posts in some of the countries are not properly filled for want of experience. Only one of the new governments has had the wisdom to lean on such help. This is Pakistan, and the administration in Pakistan shows it. The American people as well as our hag-ridden diplomats would be relieved by evidence that past is giving way to present and future in policy-making toward Asia.

Jew And Arab

Man's inhumanity to man, now on exhibition in Hindu-Muslim relations, is the theme of the current campaign in behalf of the United Jewish Appeal. Intolerance run amok always sets in motion evil forces of diabolism which gather momentum and spread beyond the initial objects of the intolerance. That is one reason that Christians are cooperating enthusistically with Jews in the current fund-raising. Senator Lehman the other day gave a catalog of the victimization of Jews in various parts of the world and recounted the stranded condition of tens of thousands of others—all showing what a sickening legacy Hitler left. Help for these persecuted people has value as Western man's expiation as well as worth in reconstructing shattered lives and we hope the campaign will achieve its objective.

All this work is, of course, relief, and much of it will go to the homeland in the Middle East, now enjoying sovereign status as Israel, which is trying to absorb the uprooted Jews. But what is also required in this region is the restoration of conditions of Arab-Israeli peace in the Middle East, so that Jew can live harmoniously with Arab in neighborliness and mutual advantage. Here the worst problem confronting the peacemakers is the presence of 800,000 Arab refugees. They are still in camps in Syria, Lebanon, Trans-Jordan, and the Israeli-Egyptian border—most of them living in wretched conditions. This excrescense is frustrating the return to peaceful conditions. Thus the resettlement problem needs to be thought of as a whole. It is to Israeli as well as Arab interest to solve this sore spot in Middle Eastern relations, for Israel, being a dynamic and solidified government, suffers more than the static Arab regime from the lack of peace. Besides, the whole purpose of its long-run foreign policy—that is to say, the development and knitting together of a regional group without regard to race or religion—is undermined.

For this reason the sooner the $27,400,000 work relief bill for works relief among the Arab refugees in the Middle East is passed, the better. This would be the American contribution to the 54-million-dollar fund which the U. N. will spend on the work program submitted by the Gordon Clapp mission. The United Nations already has appointed the officials who would execute the program. This would be the first step toward a political settlement, and it would express a feeling of realism as well as charity if the United Jewish Appeal included support of the scheme before Congress in its present campaign.

Lobbyists' Freedom

Judge Holtzoff's rulings in the trial freeing former Representative Roger C. Slaughter vitiate a large part of the usefulness of the Lobbying Registration Act. Mr. Slaughter had been indicted for failure to register as a lobbyist when Congress acted to limit the power of the Commodity Credit Corporation to lease grain storage facilities—a limitation credited with contributing largely to President Truman's election in 1948. The defense acknowledged that Mr. Slaughter had in fact sought to influence legislation in behalf of the Kansas City, Minneapolis and Chicago grain trade, that he was paid for his services and had a financial interest in the passage of one law, and that he had not registered. He contended, however, that he acted as a lawyer rather than as a lobbyist, and he was exonerated on this ground because the prosecution could not prove that he had exerted direct pressure on members of Congress.

Judging from the way the Government's case flopped, its provable evidence on the score of direct pressure was shamefully weak. The prosecution of Mr. Slaughter was never entirely free from political overtones—Mr. Slaughter was "purged" by President Truman in the 1946 congressional election, and the investigation of the alleged Kansas City vote fraud that followed was never satisfactory. None of these factors, however, is material to the severe limitations which the Holtzoff rulings have placed on the lobbying act.

There can be little doubt that Mr. Slaughter's principal value to the grain trade consisted of the fact that he was a former member of Congress, had friends on Capitol Hill, and was accorded floor privileges. The $43,000 which he was paid certainly was a handsome fee for mere testimony. If the sole criterion of lobbying is whether direct pressure is exerted, violation will be extremely difficult to prove, for no member of Congress likes to admit that he has been subjected to pressures by friends. Conversely, this criterion could be used by unscrupulous Congressmen to denounce unregistered persons who might contact them.

The Lobbying Registration Act of 1946 states definitely that it applies to all persons who seek "to influence, directly or indirectly, the passage or defeat of any legislation by the Congress of the United States." (Italics ours.) Admittedly the relationship between lawyer and client is in the twilight zone of lobbying activity, as is the status of corporation officials, public relations counsels and similar persons actively seeking the passage of legislation. The House Select Committee on Lobbying Activities, under the chairmanship of Representative Buchanan, is looking into the status of these individuals.

We hope that it will define their responsibilities precisely, and, moreover, that it will give especial attention to the position of former members of Congress. Lobbying, of course, is not a crime; it often serves a useful purpose. The purpose of registration is to enable Congress to know who is lobbying and what money is spent by whom. If the law has the loophole that Judge Holtzoff's rulings in the course of the trial indicate it has, then the purpose of Congress is being thwarted.

Correction

By an unfortunate inadvertence in our editorial of yesterday on the State Department note to Russia we referred to the "Danish island of Gotland" when it should, of course, have been the "Swedish island of Gotland." The slip resulted from a momentary confusion with the Danish island of Bornholm, near which a life-raft from the missing naval plane was reported in earlier dispatches to have been sighted. We apologize to both the Swedes and the Danes.

GI Trade Schools

The Washington Post has published letters from Mr. Lou Brott, public relations counsel, National Association of Private Schools, justifying GI training in private trade schools established since the enactment of the GI Bill.

In justice to readers, Mr. Brott may want to explain why his National Association of Private Schools was dropped by the National Federation of Private School Associations.

The National Federation is an alliance of 44 private school associations banded together for the purpose of developing sound educational and ethical standards for privately operated schools all over the United States. The National Council of Technical Schools is a member of this Federation. The council numbers among its membership two outstanding local private technical schools—Capitol Radio Engineering Institute (founded 1927) and Bliss Electrical School (founded 1893).

Many people seem to forget that the GI Bill was enacted to help the GI obtain education or training useful in earning a livelihood, and not to subsidize private enterprises. Nor is it intended to be a disguised bonus.

Obviously, the validity of trade training by a private trade school or by other media can only be measured by the success of graduates in finding employment in the trade at commensurate wages.

Will Mr. Brott tell us what percentage of GI graduates of private trade schools established since the GI bill have actually benefitted occupationally by their training?

China Lobby

Whether or not the star witness before the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on security risks in the Department of State has had any influence in shaping official policy, he certainly has a remarkable influence on certain columnists, editorial writers, and radio commentators. In his recent testimony he tossed off a reference to a lobby for the Chinese Nationalists. At once the little pip-squeaks and the big pip-squeaks pounced upon it, played it up for all it was worth, filling the air with a shrill chorus of horrified indignation.

Perhaps there is a pro-Chinese Nationalist lobby in the United States. The surprising thing about it, however, is that apparently its influence has been confined entirely to the Republicans. At least, it has had no apparent effect on the New Deal, Fair Deal, welfare state, ADA type of Democrats. And how about the lobby for the pro-Communist side? If there has been a more extensive, more insidious lobby, more vitriolic in its attacks, more determined in its smear campaigns, it certainly would be difficult to find.

Only a few short years ago, Chiang Kai-shek was a great man, a hero, a noble Christian gentleman, the man of the year, America's brave war ally. Then our leaders sold him down the river, giving part of his territory without his knowledge to the Russian Reds. After that he became a deep-dyed villain, currupt, inefficent, unfit to govern his country, unfit to receive American aid.

On the other hand, the Chinese Communists became simple agrarian reformers, true democrats, interested in liberating their people and improving their lot. Even when they kick us in the teeth, we are urged to go ahead and embrace them. Of course the line has to be changed somewhat to meet altered conditions. We are now urged to recognize the Chinese Reds because, we are told, the Russian Reds don't want us to do that.

When we encounter the same arguments over and over again, in different sections of the country, from different groups, arguments dressed up in slightly different verbiage but essentially the same in substance, we cannot help but feel that they all originated in the same propaganda mill. E. M. JOHNSON.

Radio Licenses

In your April 11 editorial, "Shadow of the Censor," in regard to the Richards case, you seem to ignore the fact that the law requires the Federal Communications Commssion to give licenses to broadcast in the public interest. Or do you think it is in the public interest that news should be presented not honestly and factually but twisted according to the desires of the owner of the station?

Perhaps there are newspapers just as evil and biased as Mr. Richard's stations. It is true that a number of newspapers that can be supported is not unlimited. But there is no public body that permits bad newspapers to publish and prevents the good ones. The people who support dishonest newspapers by buying them are certainly to be condemned, just as the FCC should be condemned if it renews the license of a man who abuses the privilege.

"Swimming Pools"

In your editorial of April 10 you were critical of Secretary of the Interior Chapman for his decision that the six swimming pools in the District under the control of his department should be operated this summer on a nonsegregated basis. Among other things, you said "the department has done its duty in laying down the general principle of nonsegregation . . ." By this language you seem to me to advocate that Secretary Chapman should adopt the pattern usual among politicians and public officials. He should be content to speak fair words and make no effort to follow him up with deeds.

Having himself wrestled with this tough problem for a number of years, I believe that Secretary Chapman has done what a decent regard for a large minority group calls for. The "gradual approach" to nonsegregation that you advocate was inaugurated by me with reference to parks and playgrounds as soon as I could get around to it. After an effort covering some 17 years to make certain white groups in Washington (including the estimable ladies of the DAR) recognize the rights of fellow citizens, it would seem to me that enough has been done by way of "gradual approach," and that the Federal Government should refuse further to temporize, as did Mr. Chapman's immediate predecessor, with the ugly policy of segregated use of facilities built and maintained at public expense to which Negroes contribute at least their equitable share.

HAROLD L. ICKES.
Washington.

Contrary to that of some of your readers, my attitude toward the recent editorial on the swimming pools was entire approval. White people do not object to segregation. Why should Negroes, especially when it means a nearer approach to law and order? JOHN N. SIMPSON, Alexandria.

A firm and positive statement of policy must be made to the public that there will be no segregation under any circumstances, even if it is necessary to close the pools. Such a stand is necessary to discourage the idea that hoodlumism could force a reversion to the former policy.

Civic groups and their leaders in each pool area should be contacted and their cooperation solicited in making the plan work. Whether they agree with the change in policy or not, they should recognize their responsibility in discouraging antagonism among the teen-agers with whom they have influence.

The Park and Metropolitan police should be given adequate instruction in race relations by a qualified person. A few police should be stationed in each area when the pools open. Other persons who command respect, such as ministers or priests, might well be in the area.

Cooperation of the newspapers should be asked in keeping the opening dates out of the papers. News items about disturbances should be reported cautiously.

The key to controlling the situation after the pools open lies in the choice of trained and skillful personnel. Each pool should be manned by an interracial staff, thereby making it obvious to belligerent swimmers that the policy of nonsegregation is here to stay. Lifeguards should have a sincere desire to make the policy work and must be able to nip disorders in the bud.

A statement of the sanitary precautions taken by the Health Department should be conspicuously displayed in order to allay any public misconceptions about interracial swimming.

DONALD W. COAN,
Educational Director Interracial Workshop.
Washington, D. C.

The Constitution is what the majority of the people says it is. In other words the white man constitutes the majority in this country and when the majority says it will not swim with Negroes it is inviting race riots, for the Negroes to try to force their will upon the majority.

Which is more cruel: to force the white man out of the swimming pools altogether or for the colored man to build his own swimming pools?

Outlook For Demagoguery

By Malvina Lindsay

Jittery Public Mood

SOME SIGNS point to a good season ahead for demagogues. Echoes of primary campaigns (Florida for example); news stories of audiences in bullfight mood and "wanting blood," especially from speakers attacking the State Department; reports of some House members returning from Easter vacations; remarks heard in taxis, drug stores, elsewhere from those who vote their emotions—all these portend a jittery atmosphere in which to meet international crises and elect the Eighty-second Congress.

How deeply entrenched is this exploitable hostile mood? Some authorities on public opinion say it is merely surface froth. The big noise, they insist, comes from a small, insignificant group. It sounds loud because anger always gets the headlines. But American common sense will keep at least the more blatant demagogues out of office, keep foreign policy from becoming a political football.

Nevertheless the present public mood was found worthy of inventory at the recent meeting here of the U. S. National Commission for UNESCO composed of 100 leaders in education, science and culture. And a project to look into the way apathy, fear, cynicism are handicapping international cooperation was proposed by the commission.

UNESCO leaders' reports showed that much fertile soil for demagoguery now exists. For example, there is the new isolationism, growing out of impatience and frustration that the end of the war did not bring peace and life as usual. As described by Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, provost of the University of California at Los Angeles, it is founded on fear, insecurity, inadequacy, as opposed to the orthodox isolationism of security and indifference.

As it develops, along comes the demagogue shouting: "What's the use? Nothing works! We've failed everywhere. Why be Santa Claus to lazy foreigners? Why be dupes of Russia? Let's pull out everywhere and get ready to lick anybody or everybody!"

Then there is hysteria—not the medical kind, but as defined by Ellis Arnall, president of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, "a condition of apprehension arising from an obsession of fear." Every day through mass communications people are reminded of the new, frightful weapons being developed. So-called secrets regarding these assume distorted proportions.

Within recent months the discovery the Soviet Union had an atom bomb and the announcement of a possible hydrogen bomb weapon have increased uncertainty and fear about the future. Consequently the man on the soapbox can more readily get an audience by playing to suspicion, prejudice, group hostility.

Another part of the emotional fifth column is what Dr. William G. Carr, of the National Education Association, calls a "renaissance of gloom"—the widespread cynicism about constructive efforts to do anything about peace. It causes "mean and timid souls," says Dr. Carr, to sneer at idealistic efforts of any kind—a human weakness made to order for demagogues.

THESE attitudes are likely to have much emotional expression in the next few months. They may even turn the balance in some election contests. They may influence legislation in States, in the National Government. For while UNESCO leaders see them as primarily related to international affairs, yet there is no water's edge any more to public problems.

Tides of public jitters now seem likely to rise and fall for years to come. For Americans are undergoing great emotional adjustment in their national life. They are reluctantly, apprehensively and irritably trying to adapt to living to a permanently uncertain and menacing world. At times they feel an adolescent panic over leaving the safe shelter of their ocean protected past. This is a perfect setting for blame, name calling, division among themselves. An election year brings this to high tide.

But the forces of education are the tortoise in this race. The 60 large and influential national organizations represented in the UNESCO commission are reaching into the grassroots with information and discussion.

Another long-term hope, as proposed by the commission, is to mobilize the Nation's social scientists to tackle tensions and hostilities growing out of the cold war.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

To 'Recreate A Vandenberg'

AFTER Senator Bridges talked with the President and Secretary Acheson at the White House on Tuesday a number of Senators were asked for their views on a bipartisan foreign policy. Perhaps the most interesting comment came from Senator Brewster of Maine, who said the Republican leadership ought to be consulted—not just one man: "I think any suggestion we could recreate a Vandenberg in this body is not justified."

That poses the problem squarely. Senator Brewster was saying that the Republican Party has no leader whom it could trust and would be willing to follow. It does not want a Vandenberg to represent it because, in fact, the Republicans are so divided among themselves. In foreign affairs they are not a united party. They are a number of factions loosely held together by "the Republican leadership." This fine phrase, when it is translated into plain English, means that a Vandenberg is no longer entitled to represent a Wherry or a Bridges, a Bridges is not entitled to represent a Brewster, a Dewey and a Dulles can't speak for a Taft. The Republican leadership is a team in which eight men want to pitch, leaving the ninth man, who seems to be Senator McCarthy, to specialize in foul balls.

THUS, if Senator Brewster is right about the views of the Republican leadership to which he belongs, a bipartisan foreign policy from now on will require not, as in the past, agreement with an opposition party but agreement with at least two or three separate factions. It is going to be difficult for the two parties to work together if in fact there are not two parties to work together.

During the Vandenberg period, or perhaps more accurately the Vandenberg-Dewey-Dulles period, the Republicans were a party, and therefore two-party consultation was possible and it worked. But if the "Republican leadership" has no leaders, and does not want, as Senator Brewster put it, "any suggestion that we could recreate" a responsible and trusted leader if Bridges speaks only for Bridges, Lodge for Lodge, Dulles for Dulles, Taft for Wherry and Taft and McCarthy, then with the best will in the world there can be no bipartisan foreign policy.

MR. DULLES in his new book says that "the United States cannot successfully bring about a coalition for peace unless the two major parties cooperate on major policies." That is very true. But I think we must add that in real life the main lines of a policy have first to be conceived by someone if the two parties are to have something to consult and cooperate about. The basic conceptions of a policy can be improved, implemented, and made acceptable by consultation. But committees, boards, conferences are as unlikely to discern, invent, create, and construct the underlying ideas of a policy as they are to design an automobile, to build a house, to paint a picture, or to lay an egg.

In the Vandenberg-Dewey-Dulles period bipartisanship worked because the Administration had policies to propose that the consultation could then deal with. The fundamental trouble today is that in so large a part of the field of foreign affairs the Administration has run out of proposals which carry conviction and inspire confidence and hope. In the Far East, in the military situation of the Atlantic alliance, in what is to follow the Marshall Plan, in respect to the future of Germany, the assumptions, the estimates and calculations, the theories and projects which Mr. Acheson inherited have been overtaken by events. We are at a critical point where the problem is not—as it was in the Vandenberg-Dewey-Dulles period—to develop agreement on policies that were already in their essentials conceived. The problem now is to discern and conceive new policies which, when they have been formulated, can then be subjected to bipartisan consultation.

THE WORST consequence of the partisan assault on Acheson of the State Department is that the inordinately difficult and delicate business of forming new policy has become almost impossible. Mr. Acheson and his colleagues are like a man who is trying to put together a complicated jigsaw puzzle with one hand while with the other he has to keep at arm's length a crowd yelling in his ears, beating him over the head, pulling his hair and untying his shoes. He will not make much progress with the jigsaw puzzle until that crowd disperses and there is a little quiet and order in the place where he has to think.

Lattimore's Views

By Marquis Childs

Differences With State Department

THE MEDIEVAL philosophers loved to argue the most abstruse points, such as how many angels could dance on a needle point.

Childs

These arguments were prosecuted with the utmost seriousness, and sometimes, with the rigidity of doctrine, they became matters of life and death.

We are in danger today of lapsing into this same kind of unreality with respect to communism. And once again the stakes are, if not life and death, then the right of the individual to a place in society.

This is not to say that the danger of communism is unreal. It is immediate, real and menacing in all its aspects both at home and abroad. Against the doubt spread by the Hiss and Coplon cases the threat seems tangible and close.

But it is supremely important that it be kept in the realm of the real and the knowable. This applies with particular force, it seems to me, in the instance of Prof. Owen Lattimore whose "case" is to get a further airing from the Senate committee this week. In the welter of charges and countercharges about communism, the essential nature of the accusation against Lattimore may be lost sight of.

The charge, as it related to the security of the Nation, was that Lattimore was an active participant in shaping foreign policy and in this role was in fact the "architect" of the Administration's Far Eastern policy. Testimony by Lattimore and by officials of the State Department seems to me to have refuted this beyond a reasonable doubt.

HIS relationship with the department was that of a number of citizens who have from time to time been called in to express various points of view on policy and its conduct. If these various points of view were appraised realistically, then it would be not only proper but desirable to get the widest possible range of opinion from right to left.

In order to convict Lattimore of being the "architect" of our foreign policy it is necessary to show that his views coincided with the Communist Party line and that also the State Department's actions were taken in accord with this line. That is guilt by coincidence and it can be stretched to cover a great many people.

The fact is that Lattimore's views on policy as expressed in a book published a year ago—The Situation in Asia—are diametrically opposed to those of the department. Lattimore believes that in both Europe and Asia the main objective should be to encourage the development of "neutral" countries aligned directly with neither the Soviet Union nor the United States but capable of getting along with both of the great powers. Only in this way, Lattimore seems to think, can the disaster of a divided and inevitably warring world be avoided.

This is a perfectly respectable view that has had considerable currency. It has been most ably and extensively expounded by Walter Lippmann.

But it runs counter to the basic tenet on which foreign policy is today being directed by Secretary of State Dean Acheson. As he has repeatedly said, Acheson believes that communism must be contained all over the world by strength and resolution brought to bear by America. He flatly rejects the "neutral" or third-state concept and always has.

IN THE same book Lattimore pays a tribute to Chiang Kai-shek: "When it became plain that Chiang Kai-shek's power was collapsing and that no amount of money or arms could succeed in making him the personal ruler of China, many Americans began to turn against him, saying that he had never been anything but a war lord with medieval ideas of politics. This attitude does no credit to us as Americans. Chiang Kai-shek was for years a true national hero in China, and a great and farsighted world statesman. He wrote that last chapter of what may be called the 'old diplomacy' of China; the fact that it ended badly is as much America's fault as his."

This reflects, for one thing, Lattimore's intense devotion to the Chinese people. You can say, of course, if you have a conspiratorial type of mind, that Lattimore was concealing his true views.

Louis Budenz, the former Communist whom Senator McCarthy has produced to testify against Lattimore, said in an interview last week that he could name 400 "concealed" Communists in his new book if he were not afraid of libel suits. He added that it was the Communist Party line now to sue for libel.

In other words, to strike back and answer the privilege of denunciation enjoyed by a former Communist is to brand yourself a Communist. That is strange doctrine indeed. That way lies the end of all trust and confidence in human relationships.

Truman Orders Card Index Of Best 'Brains' for U. S. Jobs

By the United Press

President Truman, who frequently complains how hard it is to find qualified persons who will take high Government posts, ordered a "Little Cabinet" comittee yesterday to help him out of his dilemma.

He asked the group at a White House meeting to recommend some way of compiling an elaborate "unpartisan" file index of persons who would be qualified to fill the 200 or so high-level appointments the Chief Executive must make each year.

Donald Dawson, presidential administrative assistant who heads the new committee, told reporters the list will include men and women who qualify for almost any Federal job except the judiciary. This, he said, even includes the cabinet and the diplomatic corps.

Will Have Final Say

He described it as a "process of locating the best qualified people for high presidential appointment, and not one of selection." In other words, the President still will have the final say on who gets what Federal job.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said the list will be "a sort of catalogue of people throughout the country who are worthy of consideration for important presidential appointments."

He said the persons included will be chosen for their ability rather than whether they vote the Democratic ticket in November.

"Patronage does not figure in this at all," he asserted.

Mr. Truman has said that many desirable persons have turned down high Federal posts either because the pay is too low as compared with private industry or because of the abuse sometimes heaped on Government officials by members of Congress.

Hopes to Report Soon

Dawson said the group will begin meeting at once and hopes to report back to Mr. Truman soon. He said the roster will enable the Chief Executive to pick out the best qualified persons for Federal jobs with a minimum of time and effort.

Information for the list, he said, will come from regional Government offices, State and local governments, professional groups and trade associations and "political channels" in the form of advice from Congressmen.

In addition to Dawson, other members of the group are Deputy Undersecretary of State John E. Peurifoy, Assistant Attorney General H. Graham Morison, Assistant Labor Secretary Philip M. Kaiser, Assistant Air Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert and Assistant Army Secretary Archibald S. Alexander.

The President's Calling List

Point Four Plan Is Given Approval Of Senate Group

The Senate was urged by its Foreign Relations Committee yesterday to approve President Truman's Point Four program as "a security measure necessary to the winning of the cold war."

The committee unanimously approved 15 days ago legislation carrying out Mr. Truman's recommendations. It would authorize 15 million dollars to extend United States technical help to undeveloped areas of the world.

The committee issued a report today saying that the program would be a "vital arm of our foreign policy.

"What perhaps is not so clear is that this program is one of enlightened self-interest for the United States," it said. "It is a security measure necessary to the winning of the cold war."

The committee said the program also has economic advantages for this country since it would increase the purchasing power of underdeveloped areas which then would be able "to buy more from us."

Vargas' Name Tossed Into Brazil's Election

Rio de Janeiro, April 19 (U.P.).—The candidacy of Getulio Vargas was tossed into the presidential campaign today by the Rio sector of the Labor Party, but Vargas did not indicate immediately whether he would accept.

The announcement was made early today on the sixty-seventh birthday of the former Brazilian President who was deposed by an Army coup in 1945 after 15 years in power.

A. T. & T. Head Against Plan To Split Stock

By S. Oliver Goodman

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. will require additional rate increases to insure the system's long-range financial security, stockholders were told yesterday.

To insure that new stock offerings will be attractive to investors, good earnings are essential, President Leroy A. Wilson emphasized. He came out firmly against a stock-split proposal advocated by a shareholder.

To another proposal that A. T. & T. should stop issuing stock and convertible debentures and rely more heavily on debt issues for financing its operations, Wilson retorted:

"This is going to be a stockholders institution, not a mortgage debt institution." He also emphasized that the proportion of debt in the system's total capital "should be substantially reduced from the present level of about 50 percent."

Summarized, here are reports from other stockholders meetings:

Columbia Broadcasting System: Reported net income of $1,626,750 or 95 cents a share for first quarter, compared with $855,764 or 50 cents a share in same 1949 period. President Frank Stanton said CBS now has the largest nationwide audience and the highest gross billings and program ratings of the four major networks.

Westinghouse Electric Corp.: First quarter net was $11,890,337 or 87 cents a share vs. $10,866,377 or 79 cents in same 1949 period. President Gwilym A. Price said he expects "that while 1950 may not be quite as good a year for Westinghouse as was 1949, it will probably not be too far behind . . ."

Crucible Steel Co.: Income for first quarter expected to be considerably below the "extraordinary" same 1949 period. Outlook for second quarter "most favorable."

SHARP UPTURN: Winter's comeback in March brought a 37 percent jump in gas sales, Washington Gas Light Co. reported yesterday. Sales last month totaled 25,612,457 therms against 18,651,795 in the same 1949 month. Volume for the first quarter aggregated 68,436,902 therms, a spurt of 20 percent over the like 1949 period.

COMPARISON: England under a Socialist government and Belgium under the free enterprise system were contrasted last night at a meeting of Washington Chapter, National Association of Cost Accountants. Leroy A. Petersen, president of Otis Elevator Co., recently returned from an extended trip to both countries. He found England, five years after the war, still suffering while Belgium is thriving. England, he said, still has some forms of rationing and only inferior goods for domestic consumption. Belgium, he found, has no rationing and an abundance of moderate-priced food and other goods. Max Shoup, chapter head, presided at the session in the Lee House, attended by 125 persons.

RAIL REVENUES: Based on advance reports, gross rail revenues totaled $605,251,114 in March, a 1 percent increase over the $599,245,718 in same 1949 month. Estimated freight revenue in March improved 3.1 percent, while passenger revenues dropped 11.8 percent, according to Association of American Railroads.

ODD LOTS: Subject to approval of present shareholders, the ICC has authorized the Boston & Maine Railroad Co. to readjust its capital stock structure and cancel more than 75 million dollars of dividends in arrears . . . Formation of the 27 million-dollar Mathieson Hydrocarbon Corp. announced yesterday as a joint venture of Mathieson Chemical Corp. and Tennessee Gas Transmission Co. . . . Oranges sold FOB at Lakeland, Fla., have slumped 75 cents a box in the past three weeks . . . Cities Service Co. has filed a plan to sell to its stockholders its common stock holdings in the Toledo Edison Co. . . . Fire losses in March totaled $72,468,000, highest monthly total in two years . . . A leading midwest producer has hiked zinc prices a half-cent a pound to 11 cents . . . Dun & Bradstreet wholesale food price index this week dropped 2 cents from a week ago to $5.73, matching the year's low of January 3.

HILTON NET: First-quarter net income of Hilton Hotels Corp., operator of the Mayflower in Washington, totaled $1,144,000 or 72 cents a share, compared with $974,128 or 60 cents a share in the same 1949 period. Gross revenues were $11,395,000, against $10,776,123.

EARNINGS: Virginia Electric & Power Co. reported net income of $8,443,998 or $1.84 a share for 12 months ended March 31, compared with $5,902,267 or $1.39 a share in previous 12 months. Other earnings statements:

Aureomycin Saves Animals From X-Rays

Atlantic City, April 19 (AP).—The golden drug, aureomycin, miraculously saves animals sprayed with deadly amounts of X-rays, scientists said today. It may be a life-saving drug for humans exposed to X-rays or to rays from A-bombs.

It saved 80 percent of animals given deadly doses of X-rays, Lieut. Col. Roy D. Maxwell reported. Without the drug, 80 percent of another group of animals died of radiation sickness.

The studies were reported to the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology. Maxwell is chief of radiobiology at the Army Medical Department Research and Graduate School, Army Medical Center, Washington. He told of studies made by himself and Maj. Gerald M. McDonnel of the Armed Forces Special Weapons Project, Washington.

Philadelphia scientists working on khellin, an extract of a plant used by Egyptians as a home remedy, said it exhibits an ability to dilate coronary vessels, and may be of use in treatment of angina pectoris—a form of heart disease that brings acute attacks of pain in the chest.

A new derivative of the American hellebore plant, veriloid, was reported effective in the treatment of high blood pressure.

High frequency sound waves inaudible to the human ear can smash gallstones into small bits that could pass painlessly out of the body, the biologists were told. The treatment offers hope for removing gallstones—and perhaps kidney stones—without surgery. Work so far has been done only on anesthetized rabbits and a dog.

19 Different Diseases Cured by Terramycin

Boston, April 19 (AP).—The new medicine, terramycin, tried on its first 300 sick persons, has cured 19 different diseases, the American College of Physicians was told today by Dr. Chester F. Keefer, Boston.

Terramycin, newest of the antibiotics, seems to cover a wider range of diseases than penicillin. The 19 diseases are not all for which terramycin looks good. On the other hand, it is possible that the good record will not hold for all 19 when many cases have been treated.

Iran Seizes Girl Red Chief

Tehran, Iran, April 19 (AP).—An attractive girl leader of 11 districts of the outlawed Communist-directed Tudeh Party has been arrested, authorities said today.

Excises on Cameras Halved in Committee

The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday tentatively agreed to cut excise taxes on cameras and photographic equipment by 50 percent but in effect rejected the idea of an across-the-board cut in all wartime excises.

Starting today, it was learned, the committee will consider excise reductions strictly on an individual item merit basis.

The across-the-board percentage paring scheme failed after objections were raised to a series of motions for 50 percent reductions by unanimous consent.

Critics of the flat cut idea, on both sides of the aisle, complained that some excises should be cut more and some less, depending on the tax hardship to an industry.

Cameras and photographic equipment were the sole items actually reduced in the across-the-board attempt, chiefly because they were not taxed at all prior to 1940, it was said. Cameras are now taxed 15 per cent and films 25 percent. These rates would be halved under the agreement.

One source close to the committee said that failure of yesterday's 50 per cent across-the-board effort did not necessarily mean that the method might not be later revived if the "item by item" procedure gets out of hand, resulting in larger revenue losses than the billion dollars tentatively set as an excise cut ceiling. Yesterday's action was described as "quite tentative."

Mr. Truman had recommended that excise cuts be held to about 650 million dollars, to be offset by loophole plugging increases in revenue. In addition he asked a billion dollar net increase in revenue from increases in corporate rates, inheritance and gift taxes.

'Plenty of Room'

TV Will Help Movies, Says Hal Roach

Chicago, April 19 (AP).—There is plenty of room in the entertainment world for television, Hal Roach, sr., veteran Hollywood movie producer told the National Association of Broadcasters today.

"There's never enough good anything in show business," he said at the closing session of the twenty-eighth annual NAB convention.

Roach, who now devotes all his production to films for television, declared video would provide a great talent pool that would benefit Hollywood through discovery of new talent.

He urged telecasters to make the most of hometown talent, and above all to keep their programs in good taste. He told them they had the advantage of Hollywood's early mistakes in avoiding similar ones themselves.

Television's greatest value as an advertising medium, he declared will be for demonstrating products.

Jack Mabley, radio and television editor of the Chicago Daily News, told the broadcasters that video has a tremendous influence on the daily lives of its audience. Consequently, he declared, they should consider carefully what kind of influence their programs would have.

The best guide for telecasters in putting on programs, he said, is, "how do you want your children to grow up?"

Robert D. Swezey, general manager of station WDSU in New Orleans, said local television programs should not be patterned after the big network shows, but should be tailored to meet the peculiar tastes of the community.

Television, said Swezey, "has grown with great rapidity and must therefore assume the responsibilities and obligations of maturity at a much earlier time than it would have if its growth had been normal."

Despite competition between radio and television in some phases, said Eugene S. Thomas, general manager of station WOIC in Washington, D. C., the NAB felt both could be better served by a single trade association than by separate organizations.

"There is no competition in the areas of management, research, engineering, Government relations and law," he declared.

Thomas said 85 percent of the organizations getting into television were operators of radio stations.

The eight-day convention opened with a four-day engineering conference and the final four days were devoted to management problems.

Body of Youth Found Floating in River

The body of an unidentified youth was found floating yesterday in the Anacostia River, about 700 yards south of the Benning rd. bridge near the west bank, Harbor Police reported.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said the body had been in the river several days, and death was apparently due to a skull fracture. Police described the victim as a short Negro in his 20s wearing a brown suit.

Electric Power Group Assails U. S. Program

By The Associated Press

Leaders of the National Association of Electric Companies protested yesterday against the Federal Government's power program as "contrary to the public interest."

The association called a news conference, to present arguments against what it called "confusing Federal power policies."

Those here for the meeting included J. E. Corette of the Montana Power Co., Albert A. Cree of the Central Vermont Public Service Corp., Robert H. Gerdes of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co., John Dierforff of the Pacific Power and Light Co., Louis V. Sutton of the Carolina Power and Light Co., and Frank M. Wilkes of the Southwestern Gas and Electric Co.

The association issued this summation of their stand:

"1. Governmental reclamation and conservation projects can be carried out in the public interest without driving out of business those electric companies which stand ready to provide as much power as needed wherever needed.

"2. The drive of public power advocates to launch vast Government projects in New England is based on misconceptions of potential hydro power available and promises no real benefits to residents of the area.

"3. The Bureau of Reclamation is pressing plans for an 80-million-dollar commercial power system in the Central Valley area of California, despite the fact that the area is already completely served by existing private facilities.

"4. Federal power proposals for the Rocky Mountain area would involve expenditures of more than two billion dollars of taxpayers' funds although 99 percent of the area is already served.

"5. The Southwestern Power Administration and the Rural Electrification Administration have made a 'deal' which involves the diversion of more than 100 million dollars from legitimate REA purposes to the construction of duplicating transmission lines and facilities in a manner which contravenes the clear intent of Congress.

"6. Government power projects presented to the people under the guise of conservation purposes are often designed primarily for the generation of power which could be provided through existing private companies.

"7. Companies in the Pacific Northwest are putting forth every effort to cooperate on a 'partnership basis' with the Government, in the belief that in this area, where special problems exist, the people concerned can avoid a "political and economic dictatorship."

Javits Praises Jewish Appeal

A warning that the United Jewish Appeal is fighting a battle in the United States which is encouraging to all minorities throughout the world was sounded last night by Representative Jacob Javits (R., N. Y.).

He was principal speaker at an advance gifts dinner of the Government division, United Jewish Appeal campaign, at the Washington Hotel. A total of $49,212.50 in gifts and pledges was reported, which officials said was a gain of 40 percent over last year. Leon H. Keyserling, of the Council of Economic Advisers, presided.

School District Boundaries Changed to Take Central Pupils; High Students May Select Institution of Their Choice

REDISTRICTING SHOWN—Changes in white high school areas brought about by the closing down of Central as a white school are shown above. Shaded area formerly was served by Central. Heary lines indicate new boundaries and dotted lines old boundaries. Schools indicated by letters are: (W) Western, 35th and R sts. nw.; (WW) Woodrow Wilson, Nebraska ave. and Chesapeake sts. nw.; (CC) Calvin Coolidge, 5th and Tuckerman sts. nw.; (R) Roosevelt, 13th and Upsher sts. nw.; (T) McKinley "Tech" 2nd and T sts. ne.; (E) Eastern, 17th and East Capitol sts.; (A) Anacostia, 16th and R sts. se.

CENTRAL AREA SPLIT—Junior high school area served by Central was divided and added to areas served by four other junior high schools. Map shows how the division was made. Students who formerly would have attended Central will attend one of the other schools depending on where they live. Schools are: Gordon, 35th and T sts. nw.; Macfarland, Iowa ave. and Varnum sts. nw.; Langley, 1st and T sts. ne.; Jefferson, 8th and H sts. sw.

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

The senior and junior high school districts served by Central High School were carved up yesterday—each into four pieces.

School officials presented the Board of Education with maps changing the boundaries of most of the city's senior and junior high schools.

The redistricting was made necessary by the transfer effective next September of Central from a white school to a high school for Negroes. Other white senior and junior high schools in the city will absorb the more than 1300 senior and junior high students now at Central.

Areas served by Roosevelt, McKinley, Western and Eastern were enlarged to take in the Central senior high district.

Coolidge District Enlarged

The Coolidge district also was changed. The southern boundary was moved from Kennedy to Gallatin sts. to provide relief for Roosevelt which will take in most of the displaced Central students.

The present Central junior high area was divided between Gordon, Macfarland, Langley and Jefferson junior high schools.

Norman J. Nelson, first assistant superintendent in charge of white high schools, said that Central's senior high students have been given their choice in selecting the school they will attend. Most of them want to go to Roosevelt, he said.

Students presently attending one high school who now find that they live in the district of another school will not have to change schools, he said.

No Choice for Jr. High Pupils

Associate Superintendent Lawson J. Cantrell, in charge of white junior high schools, said that the Central junior high students will not be given a choice but will have to attend the new school in their district.

Students graduating from junior high schools this year will be assigned to the high school in the district in which they live.

All reassignments will be made at the close of the school year in June and students will report to the new schools next fall.

Sick Leave Liveralized

The schol board at its semi-monthly meeting approved a series of recommendations of Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning liberalizing the present teacher's sick leave program.

The board rejected, though, the request of teachers for the right to hire substitutes when their sick leave is used up. In doing so it opposed S. 2930, a bill introduced by Senator Olin D. Johnson (D., S. C.) amending the present sick-leave law.

Board members agreed to seek their own amendments to the law to give teachers leave for religious holidays, and three days leave a year for pressing personal business, to permit them to accumulate sick leave up to 75 days instead of the present 60, to eliminate the present 20-day limit on retroactive leave and allow teachers to borrow 25 days of leave instead of the present 20.

The board also approved a reorganization of elementary school administration eliminating the present divisional director plan. School officers now heading up geographical areas will be given city-wide functions.

Protests Payroll Proposal

In other actions the board:

Protested to the Commissioners a proposal to consolidate the school payroll with that of other District government agencies.

Raised tuition for nonresident summer school students from $12.50 to $14 for regular students and from $37 to $42 for veterans.

Retired four teachers with long records of service. They are:

Mrs. Florence L. Duffies, 4532 N. 19th st., Arlington, science teacher at Stuart Junior High School, after 31 years.

Miss Mildred Earnest, 5010 38th st. nw., research assistant, 40 years.

Miss Maude M. McBride, 3305 Nichols ave. se., teacher at Congress Heights Elementary School, 40 years.

Mrs. Frances D. Dorman, 4417 Yuma st. nw., first division teacher, 23 years.

Arlington Plans Distribution Of School Children This Fall

The areas from which Arlington County school officials will draw students next fall for the new 1000-pupil Stratford Junior High School were announced yesterday.

School Superintendent William Early said the $1,500,000 building, still under construction, will be filled from these elementary school areas:

James Madison, Yorktown, Robert E. Lee, John Marshall, Cherrydale, Woodmont, Matthew Maury, James Monroe, and Woodrow Wilson.

In addition, children living in the Henry Clay area north of Pershing dr. and those in the Woodlawn elementary area, north of a line bisecting the intersection of Glebe rd. and 17th sts., will go to Stratford.

Next fall will also see the end of special seventh grade classes at Westover Baptist Church, the Old Dominion School temporary building, and at Page, Woodrow Wilson, and at Patrick Henry elementary schools, Early said.

Junior high classes now held at Washington-Lee Senior High School will be discontinued next year, and over-crowded junior high classes at Swanson and Thomas Jefferson Junior Highs will be reduced to normal size, according to Early.

Attendance at the county's other junior highs will be based on the following elementary school areas:

Swanson: Charles A. Stewart, Walter Reed, Stonewall Jackson, the new McKinley School schedule to open in the Dominion Hills area next December, and Woodlawn pupils living south of the intersection of Glebe rd. and 17th st.

Jefferson: Glyncarlyn, Kate Waller Barrett, Barcroft, Patrick Henry and Henry Clay students south of Pershing dr.

Madison: Peyton Randolph, Hume, Nellie Custis, Fairlington and the new Abingdon School to be opened in September.

Senators Block D. C. Time Bill

setting clocks one hour ahead on April 30 and would continue until the last Sunday in September.

Leahy to Try Again in Week

Hence, to meet the planned time changeover, the Senate and House must approve their respective bills, take them to conference, vote again in both Houses, and forward a bill to the White House for signing.

Senator Edward L. Leahy (D., R. I.), author of the measure, said last night he would still try to bring up his bill by the middle of next week in a last-ditch effort to meet the April 30 deadline.

Trying desperately to stave off farm-bloc objections, Senator Spessard L. Holland (D., Fla.) recalled the Senate already has approved District home-rule legislation and now should be willing at least to give residents this small bit of local determination.

Insurance Bills Passed

Senate passage of two District insurance revision bills sent them to the White House. The bills were passed by unanimous consent. One modernizes the group health insurance law; a major effect would be to permit coverage of smaller groups than present law permits. The second revises the industrial life insurance law to give increased protection to policy holders.

Two other bills, cleared by unanimous Senate consent and forwarded to the House, would boost District representation in the Military and Naval Academies. One bill would give the District 12 instead of the present 6 cadets at West Point, the other would give the District 15 instead of the present 5 midshipmen at Annapolis.

Senate apprpval also sent to the White House a bill to keep the United States Park police from being docked a day's sick leave when an illness carries through their regular day off; a bill to boost from $50 to $300 the limit on unsecured loans by District credit unions; and a bill permitting immediate revocation of District liquor licenses of persons convicted of felonies.

A chorus of objections met the bill of Senate District Chairman Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) to establish a human rights commission for the District. The objections blocked Senate action on the bill.

Senate Votes $7500 For Disfigured Girl

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) appealed successfully to the Senate yesterday for a better break in restoring the features of "an exceedingly pretty girl."

Mrs. Evelyn M. Hryniak, Cleveland, Ohio, was disfigured and badly injured while riding in an Army reconnaissance car in Germany on October 21, 1948. Taft said the Senate's proposed $5000 relief grant was inadequate to pay for a "serious" plastic surgery operation and other medical expenses. He proposed that the grant be raised to $7500. The Senate passed the bill and sent it to the House.

Truman Lauds House Vote on Greek Children

President Truman yesterday praised the House for adopting a resolution calling for the speedy return to Greece of thousands of children removed to eastern Europe "by the Communist guerilla forces."

In a letter to Speaker Rayburn (D., Tex.), Mr. Truman said Government efforts "will not be relaxed until the Greek children are back in their homes."

The letter follows:

"I fully share the concern of he House of Representatives for the thousands of children removed from Greece to eastern Europe by the Communist guerilla forces, and I welcome the adoption of House resolution 514 of March 22, 1950, calling for the speedy return of these children to their homes and homelands.

"The rights of children and parents to share the protection, comradeship and beneficent influence of a family home are fundamental and have been inplicitly recognized, in the case of the Greek children, in two unanimous resolutions of the United Nations General Assembly. It is morally inadmissible that political considerations or technical difficulties should be allowed to stand in the way of the reunion of these children with their parents.

"The executive branch of the Government has been persistent in its endeavors to secure effective compliance with the United Nations' resolutions in this case. These efforts will not be relaxed until the Greek children are back in their homes."

Annual Dance and Bazaar

The Arlington Jewish Center will hold its annual dance and bazaar at 8 p. m. today in the Hotel 2400, at 2400 16th st. nw. Lee Maxfield and his orchestra will provide the music.

Full Credit Due Truman, Harriman Says

New York, April 19 (NYHT).—W. Averell Harriman, ambassador-at-large for the Economic Cooperation Administration in Europe, tonight gave President Truman and the Fair Deal all credit for successful foreign and domestic policies. He attacked Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and other Republicans for "timid and vacillating" leadership in national affairs, saying the party was "terrified of progress."

Harriman, a possibility for the Democratic nomination for Governor, spoke at the Democratic State Committee's annual $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner for which 1489 persons, an all-time record, paid admittance.

Harriman said Republican leadership took to the "cyclone cellar" after the 1929 economic crisis and lost national leadership in 1933 as a consequence.

He saved his only kind words on the Republican side for Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, whom he wished godspeed in his present illness, and for Henry L. Stimson, an elder statesman in the Republican Party who served as a wartime Secretary of War. "Let us all here tonight pray that Senator Vandenberg will soon recover from his illness," Harriman said, "to continue to add his wisdom to the guidance of our country at this time."

"The Democratic Party not only believes that man is entitled to have dignity and freedom," Harriman said. "It believes these words do not have full meaning unless he can 'eat regular' too. And our party is ready to take whatever steps are necessary to fight off those two great fears which beset our generation: the fear of want, and the fear of war."

7 Hurt in $20 Blaze

Chicago, April 19 (AP).—Seven firemen were burned today, two critically, at a $20 rubbish fire. After the fire-fighters put out the blaze in a shed an oil drum exploded showering the men with flames.

Airport Executives Discuss Question of Military Planes

A question that has remained unanswered since 55 persons were killed in a mid-air crash here last November 1 was raised again yesterday at Columbus, Ohio.

The November tragedy happened when a Bolivian Air Force fighter plane and an Eastern Airliner collided at National Airport.

Brig. Gen. Thomas O. Hardin, chief of the Air Force's Reserve Division, declared yesterday at Columbus that it isn't dangerous for military and civilian airplanes to use the same airport, even if jet planes are included.

He was one of seven men who discussed "the use of military aircraft on civil airports and airways" at the annual meeting of the American Association of Airport Executives.

Vice Admiral John H. Cassidy, deputy chief of naval operations for air, another panel member, declared:

"There is no argument that air congestion at certain of our comcercial airports has reached a most undesirable condition. The Navy and Air Force have cooperated fully with the Civil Aeronautics Administration."

Al Near, director of airports at Louisville, Ky., had sharp words for the military. He said the Air Force and Navy virtually had "taken over" many airports built for "Joe Citizen."

Since the air tragedy here last November, military use of National Airport has been restricted to planes carrying the President, heads of foreign powers, and other important personages.

40 Firemen Are Overcome

was as bad as almost any I've even seen."

Building Section Falls

At 10:15 a. m. a jutting section of the building housing the office and barber shop collapsed, sending Pvt. Raymond F. Henry, 37, of No. 15 Engine Co., to Emergency Hospital with a possible fracture of the back. Pvt. James Balderson, 43, of No. 14 Engine Co., was treated at Casualty Hospital for cuts resulting from the collapse.

Henry lives at 5035 55th st., Roger Heights, Md. Balderson's address is 5730 4th st. nw.

Earlier, fire and water had so weakened the "fireproof" building that the first floor sunk several feet into the foundation, Fire Chief Mayhew said.

The ceiling, sagging badly, was near collapse, but the walls were not believed in danger of falling. Meanwhile, the building was barricaded off, and water was being pumped from the structure last night.

Pending an investigation, Deputy Fire Marshal Roy F. Warfield speculated that the three most probable causes were: (1) a carelessly disposed of cigarette, (2) a short circuit, or (3) spontaneous combustion.

A popular center for Washington bowlers, the alleys were operated by Brookland Bowling Alleys, Inc., on a lease from the building's owners, the Charles H. Thompkins Co.

Paul F. Moore, vice president of Brookland Bowling Alleys, said damage to the alleys alone would run $70,000. He added "at least" $30,000 to that figure as loss to the barber shop, a luncheonette, and offices.

The general manager of the operating company, Karl L. Gochenour, said he was in the building until about 2:15 a. m. Nothing seemed wrong then, he said, but according to Chief Meyhew's account the blaze—probably small then—had already started.

Two Rumors Scotched

Two rumors circulated among the crowd of curious—hundreds of people in various stages of dress—and Gochenour scotched one: That two pinboys were trapped in the building. Gochenour said his assistant had thoroughly checked the building shortly after it closed, at midnight, to be certain all personnel had left.

The second rumor was spiked by Police Chief Robert J. Barrett at the scene. Word had gotten around that safecrackers had "blown" a safe with explosives. (Presumably the rumor started because of the "soft explosion" that released the heat.) Barrett said all the safes in the offices of the alleys were untouched—except by heat.

Eyewitnesses had praise for the work of Dr. William D. Claudy, fire department surgeon, in establishing a first-aid center for the injured and overcome.

'Lost Count' of Cases

Dr. Claudy, who among other things set up a "shuttle" schedule for ambulances, confessed at one point that he had "simply lost count" of how many men he had treated.

The fire, despite its seriousness, had its moments of humor, too.

Two sisters from a nearby parochial school circulated among the crowd about noon to search, they explained, for pupils who thought that watching mop-up operations at a big fire was infinitely more fun than attending classes.

Those requiring hospitalization or hospital treatment were reported in good condition last night. A list follows:

At Casualty Hospital—Pvt. Thomas Scott, 33, of 3707 40th ave., Cottage City, Md., No. 4 Truck Co.; Pvt. Melvin Bowman, 30, of 4407 7th ave., Belmeade, Md., No. 17 Engine Co.; Pvt. Ralph Gordon, 39, of 5405 LaSalle rd., Hyattsville, Md., No. 14 Engine Co. Treated for smoke injuries to eyes at Casualty: Pvt. Jack Coombs, 34, of 437 14th st. se.; and Pvt. Harry Ingraham, 35, of 5618 Chillum Heights rd., Chillum, Md., both of No. 1 Rescue Squad.

At Emergency Hospital—Pvt. Herbert Reed, 31, of 3415 Newton st., Mount Rainier, No. 4 Truck Co.; Lieut. Eugene Heiss, 41, of 6101 18th rd., North Arlington, Va., No. 14 Engine Co.; Pvt. Lawrence Brown, 29, of 314 Carroll ave., Takoma Park, No. 24 Engine Co.; Lieut. Doyle Harpster, 39, of 29 Randall circle se., No. 11 Engine Co.; Pvt. James White, 44, of 9705 Lawson pl., Silver Spring, No. 24 Engine Co.; and Pvt. Virgil Swadley, 30, of 4403 14th st. nw., No. 11 Engine Co.

Reporters Barred From Trial

the trial.

Norris said the reporters felt they had a right to be present.

"If your honor insists that we leave, I'm afraid you will have to find us in contempt."

Judge Fennell said that he recognized that the reporters had a duty to perform. He said further that he commended them for raising the issue in court, rather than secretly. He said it was a serious question.

Paull then pointed out that the reporters in no manner intended to be contemptuous. He said that they would appreciate a de[illegible] ruling.

Judge Fennell declared that trials are made public to prevent "star chamber" proceedings. Furthermore, he said, the public has an interest in all criminal prosecutions. The question, he pointed out, is whether a defense attorney and a prosecutor can "waive" the public's right to be present.

He then requested that all persons in the courtroom submit legal authorities to help him decide the case.

Tighter Auto Code Urged by Citizens

A change in the District code requiring automobile owners to carry liability and property insurance, or to post an equivalent bond, was suggested by the Bradbury Heights Citizens Association last night.

The resolution was adopted at the monthly meeting held in the Davis School, 44th pl. and H st. se., with Andrew J. Temple presiding.

Other actions included: Approval of a bill which would transfer swimming pools and other recreational facilities from the Federal to the District Government; request for extension of the crosstown bus to the District line over Alabama ave. to Bowen rd. se.; request for stop signs along Ridge rd. se., and opposition to a transfer of a liquor license.

Lincoln Civic

The Lincoln Civic Association last night went on record as favoring home rule for the District, but voiced opposition to the Kefauver bill.

The group, meeting at Francis Junior High School, 24th and N sts. nw., said that provisions of the bill setting up an elected school board would "throw the schools into the hands of ward heelers and politicians."

Dahlgren Terrace

The ABC board was asked last night by the Dahlgren Terrace Citizens Association not to isue any more liquor licenses.

The motion was adopted after the group deplored the opening of another liquor store in the Dahlgren area. The monthly meeting was held in Noyes School, 10th and Franklin sts. ne. Mrs. Helen Fritz presided.

Mrs. Miller May Run for Lower House

MRS. HELEN MILLER

An announcement by an "anti-organization" Democrat to run against Representative Howard W. Smith from Virginia's Eighth Congressional District appeared imminent yesterday.

The most likely candidate is Mrs. Helen Hill Miller, 50-year-old wife of Francis Pickens Miller, who ran second to Governor John S. Battle in the gubernatorial race last year.

It was learned that her candidacy hinges on her getting a satisfactory leave of absence from her job here as American representative of the London Economist. She has gone to New York for editorial conferences this weekend, and will discuss the question of her candidacy today, according to her supporters.

Her husband confirmed to The Washington Post that she is "definitely" considering the race. He said there will be "an announcement from my office in Charlottesville on the Eighth District situation Monday." He had no further comment.

It was learned, however, that Miller's wing of the Democratic Party had attempted without success to persuade Munford Boyd, a University of Virginia law professor, to run.

It is understood that two Alexandria city councilmen, Leroy S. Bendheim and Roy C. Bragg, have been approached as possible candidates. They are law partners, and it is believed that if one announces the other will not.

Smith, a member of the House for 20 years and dean of Virginia's congressional delegation, has announced that he will seek reelection.

Also in the race are Arthur F. Souther, 32-year-old Arlington lawyer and vice chairman of the Eighth District Young Democratic Club, and Tyrrell Krum, a retired Navy officer and the only Republican candidate.

Souther lost to Smith in the 1948 primary and Krum was defeated in that year's November election.

P-TA Square Dance Set

An old-fashioned square dance, sponsored by the Richardson School P-TA, will be held at 8:30 p. m. Friday at the school, 53d and Blaine sts. ne. Proceeds will help buy a back-drop curtain for the school.

Correction

Md. U. Senior Candidate for Legislature

A 20-year-old University of Maryland senior, who says he means business, yesterday filed as a Baltimore County candidate for the Maryland House of Delegates.

He is Robert S. Knatz of Owings Mills, who paid his $25 fee and filed as a Democrat.

A history and political science major, he will graduate in June and will have his twenty-first birthday on September 21, in time to reach the constitutional minimum age before the general election in November.

Knatz welcomed support from all voters, provided no politicians try to "tie any strings" to him. He said his candidacy is not a college prank, but an effort to represent his county in the lower chamber. Maryland is usually governed by older men who have developed allegiances that restrict their freedom, Knatz said.

$88,570,000 Bill To Aid Indians Signed by Truman

President Truman signed a bill yesterday authorizing a $88,570,000 program to rehabilitate destitute Navajo and Hopi Indians, and hailed it as "an important milestone in our Government's administration of Indian affairs."

He said the economic development program provided would start the two tribes "on the way to economic self-sufficiency which has been too long delayed." We hoped that Congress will promptly provide the cash needed to put it into effect.

The President vetoed a similar bill last year because it would have placed the Indians, located chiefly in New Mexico and Arizona, under control of State laws.

The program authorizes funds for construction of homes, schools, highways and purchase of land and livestock.

Annexation Court Won't Stay Suit Pending Sewer Bond Sale

A three-judge court appointed to try annexation proceedings filed by Falls Church against Fairfax County yesterday assumed a "hands-off" policy toward the county's proposed $3,000,000 sewer bond issue.

Judges Paul E. Brown, Burnett Miller and J. R. H. Alexander ruled in Fairfax Circuit Court they were without jurisdiction to stay the annexation proceedings pending sale of the bonds. The bond issue would provide improvements for a sanitary district which includes part of the land sought by Falls Church.

The panel also ruled unanimously it was without justification to inquire into the validity of the bond issue at any time during the subsequent annexation proceedings. This assurance, given at the request of attorneys for the county, allayed fears that a legal question over the bonds' validity would interfere with their pending sale.

The bond issue would provide an extensive program of water and sewerage for the county's Sanitary District No. 1. About one-third of the voters who balloted, 558-421, in favor of the expenditure last August would become Falls Church residents if the annexation goes through.

After ruling on the jurisdictional question yesterday, the court set June 13 as the date for beginning of the annexation suit, in which Falls Church seeks to acquire about 11 square miles of Fairfax County.

During the preliminary annexation discussion, the court received petitions from four groups opposing the annexation and asking that they be named "parties defendant" to the suit.

Head of AMA Sees No Health Issue in 1950

Chicago, April 19 (AP). — The American Medical Association's president-elect says Democratic Party leaders are not planning to make compulsory health insurance a major issue in the 1950 Congressional elections.

Dr. Elmer L. Henderson of Louisville, Ky., in a statement yesterday said:

"Out of all the confusion arising from the conflicting statements of the Democratic high command one thing is clear; Administration forces aparently have discovered that compulsory health insurance is not a very popular campaign issue in the 1950 Congressional elections. They are backing away from the original plan to make it the No. 1 issue."

Henderson added that "the Democratic high command aparently is bowing to the public's reaction against any proposal for a compulsory health insurance program."

His statement was issued after Jacob M. Arvey, Cook County (Chicago) Democratic chairman, said the party is not necessarily committed to the health plan authored by Oscar E. Ewing, head of the Federal Security Administration.

Ewing's program, which never has been disavowed by President Truman and generally has been called an Administration measure, is awaiting Congressional action.

Health insurance plans may be a subject for panel discussion at a three-day "Jefferson Jubilee" in Chicago starting May 13, Arvey said. If the subject is brought up, he said, there will be a discussion of several health plans.

"I think the President has his own plan," Arvey said. "Senator Douglas (D., Ill..) has a plan and Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.) is entitled to a hearing on his plan. I don't say we are not for the Ewing plan. It means that all plans and ideas will be trotted out if there is to be a hearing."

The White House did not comment on Arvey's remarks.

Virginia Tax Deadline Nears

Richmond, Va., April 19 (AP).—State Tax Commissioner C. H. Morrissett today urged Virginians to file their State tax returns for the income year 1949 by May 1 to avoid a 10 percent penalty for late filing.

"Individuals have already had 3½ months in which to file," he said, "and yet there are several hundred thousand individuals in Virginia who have not yet done so.

"The extension of penalties for late filing is a source of concern to the tax authorities and filing on time decreases the cost of tax administration."

Single persons with more than $1000 and married couples with more than $2000 gross income in 1949 are required to file.

Groups Map Fight Against Ober Law

Baltimore, April 19 (AP).—A campaign is being mapped here to defeat Maryland's anti-subversive Ober Law at the polls in November.

Some 40 persons representing various groups or sitting in as observers attended an organizational meeting yesterday sponsored by the Citizens Committee against the Ober Law.

Named to a committee to draw up a program were Gerald W. Johnson, author and newspaperman; Warren H. Buckler, a city councilman and Sidney Hollander, jr., a local businessman.

Jacob Edelman, another city councilman and an attorney, said he thought the act could be defeated in the Statewide referendum.

Johnson termed the law "the worst threat to democratic process of any legislation passed."

The act calls for heavy penalties for persons belonging to alleged subversive groups and requires that all public employes sign a loyalty oath.

Davis Seeks To Head Md. GOP Ticket

State Senator Roy Tasco Davis declared yesterday he is still in the fight for the Republican nomination for Governor of Maryland.

The Montgomery County Senator's statement followed an announcement by the Republican State Central Committee that "there is going to be a primary fight" and that it will not indorse any candidate.

Although asserting that he would not dodge a primary fight, Davis reiterated his earlier belief that the major candidates should "get together" and decide upon a single standard bearer. He added, however, that if this is not possible, "I am in the fight to stay."

Other active, although unofficial, candidates for the GOP gubernatorial nomination are D. John Markey, of Frederick County, United States Senate nominee in 1946 who lost to Senator Herbert R. O'Conor by a narrow margin; Thomas B. R. Mudd, Charles County businessman, and Royden A. Blunt, of Howard County, a Baltimore industrialist.

Fairfax Cool To Arlington Hospital Bill

The Fairfax County Supervisors gave a cool reception yesterday to an Arlington Hospital proposal that Fairfax pay $43,127 in delinquent bills incurred by its residents.

Without taking formal action, the board turned down a request by John J. Anderson, Arlington Hospital administrator, that the county reimburse the hospital for unpaid bills from 1947, 1948 and 1949.

Anderson said "every possible effort" had been made to collect the bills before the board decided to ask a grant from the supervisors.

Anderson conceded the supervisors had no legal responsibility to assume the indebtedness, but said the board had hoped for "some consideration" in view of the many services it renders Fairfax County. G. Wallace Carper, chairman of the board of supervisors, told Anderson the supervisors were "fully in sympathy" with the request, but said he saw no hope for favorable action since the county's budget already has been prepared.

Businessmen Ask Probe of ICC Discounts

The Federation of Business Men's Association last night voted for an inquiry into prevalence of discounts offered Interstate Commerce Commission employes.

The resolution, which empowered federation president Jerome B. McKee to appoint a committee to seek further information, followed McKee's reading aloud of a "Discount List" in the March issue of "The In-Com-Co," monthly publication of the In-Com-Co Club.

The federation voted opposition to:

Senate bill No. 3257, a bill which would increase unemployment benefits from $20 to $30 a week and from 20 to 26 weeks.

Senate bill 3350, which would amend the Minimum Wage Law by prohibiting men over 18 years of age being employed in effect at less than women under the Act.

Senate bill 3308, which would require employers to pay employes who leave voluntarily within 72 hours

The federation, meeting in the board room of the American Security and Trust Co., was presented with a Treasury citation in recognition of its cooperation with the postwar Savings Bond program. In accepting "the citation from Donald Larson, deputy director of the D. C. Savings Bond Division, McKee promised continued cooperation.

District Woman Lawyer Found Murdered in Nassau Well

G. H. Ranoe, police chief, as saying that "suicide seems out of the question." Other officials said evidence indicated the woman had been murdered.

Police said they learned Miss Renner last had been seen riding her bicycle in Nassau about 11 a. m. Tuesday. She arrived in the city on April 8, with a friend, identified as Miss Alice MacDonald of New York City, but the latter left last Saturday.

Home Incommunicado

At the Renner home last night, relatives would not answer the telephone or receive reporters. Two associates of Miss Renner in the war crimes trials at Tokyo, both women lawyers, also were not available.

They are Mrs. Grace Kanode Llewellyn, 2800 Woodley rd. nw., and Mrs. Virginia Bowman, 5732 Eastpines dr., Eastpines, Md. Mrs. Bowman now has law offices in the 800 block of 15th st. nw, the same block as Miss Renner, but not the same office.

Records showed that Miss Renner received her bachelor of laws degree from the Washington College of Law in 1934, and later was given an advance degree at Catholic University.

Associates of the Department of Justice said last night that she was a devout member of the Catholic Church.

Miss Renner was associated with the Washington office of a New York law firm, Riegelman, Strasser Schwartz & Spiegelberg.

Mrs. Louis Rochmes, wife of an attorney who is an associate of Miss Renner in the office, said last night that Miss Renner had gone to Nassau for a vacation, and had sent back letters and postcards describing it glowingly. She was so taken with the community, Mrs. Rochmes said, that she had determined to extend her holiday.

Mrs. Rochmes described her as "tall, blonde, slim, attractive and vivacious."

Babies Scratch Mayor-in Race At Morningside

Caring for two preschool children is enough to keep Mrs. June Stocklinski, 29-year-old mayor of Morningside, Md., busy so she has decided not to run for reelection. Town elections will be held May 1.

Mrs. Stocklinski has a small daughter born last November who is just getting to the crawling and walking stage and a son, Jan, 5. "It means too much baby-sitting for Ray, my husband," she explained.

Mrs. Stocklinski has been an energetic mayor even though she became a mother while serving as mayor. The town has been incorporated, the treasury has several thousands of dollars and new street lights have been ordered installed.

Besides, she led a crew of town councilmen and citizens last Saturday while they spread six tons of asphalt on town streets to fill holes and bad places.

Truman Accepts Bruce Resignation As Arms Aid Head

President Truman yesterday accepted the resignation of James Bruce, Baltimore banker and former Ambassador to Argentina, as head of the European arms aid program.

Bruce, who will step out May 1, gave no reason for his departure or hint as to his future plans.

In a letter of resignation dated February 20, he said that when he took the job he agreed to stay only until March 1.

In his letter of acceptance, Mr. Truman said Bruce was returning to "private life." He expressed regret, and thanked the arms aid chief for "splendid service . . . in establishing an effective and efficient organization."

50-Bed Clinic For Neurotic Children Urged

A special clinic here for emotionally disturbed children under 14 years of age was advocated yesterday by Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, District health officer.

A 50-bed clinic might well be set up at Gallinger Hospital's new pediatrics building, now under construction, Dr. Seckinger said.

The health officer said he has asked Gallinger officials to study the proposal. The need for such a service was stressed by Gerard M. Shea, District welfare director, who met with Dr. Seckinger on Tuesday.

Both the health and the welfare directors said the service might prevent children with emotional problems from progressing to mental states requiring long and costly hospitalizations.

Emotionally disturbed District children now requiring public aid are sent either to St. Elizabeths Hospital here or to private institutions in Maryland, New Jersey and New York. Ten such cases, supported by the Board of Public Welfare, are now handled under such arrangements, and 23 other cases are under investigation, it was said.

Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent at St. Elizabeths, agreed that only children over 15 years should be sent to the Federal institutions for the mentally ill.

St. Elizabeths, he said, has no special facilities for children although it now accommodates some 40 of them under 17 years of age. From 10 to 15 of this number might well be taken care of in the proposed clinic at Gallinger, he said.

U. S. Reprints Post Series on 'Human Heart'

The National Heart Institute yesterday announced publication of a new pamphlet, "The Human Heart," first published in series form by The Washington Post.

The articles, by N. S. Haseltine, medicine and science reporter of The Post, present information on the heart and diseases affecting the heart and circulatory system.

Preparation of the pamphlet was undertaken on public demand for such information in a form "accurate and factual, yet understandable to general lay audiences," said Dr. C. J. Van Slyke, director of NHI, at Bethesda, Md.

"There is a growing need for general lay informational material to emphasize the role and progress of (heart) research, to indicate the hopeful therapeutic aspects of these diseases, and to help counteract with basic facts many unnecessary fears about these conditions," Dr. Van Slyke declared. "This series, we feel, helps satisfy this need."

The six-article series was published by The Washington Post last August 7-12.

Single copies of the new pamphlet, NHI spokesmen said, may be secured without cost by writing to the Heart Information Center, National Heart Institute, Bethesda 14, Md. Additional copies may be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D .C.

Montgomery Council To Hear Stable Plan

The Montgomery County Council will hold a public hearing tonight at 7:30 at the Rockville Court House on a proposed amendment to the county zoning ordinance to permit establishment of cooperative stables in residential areas.

The amendment would permit non-commercial, cooperative stables in residential zones where not more than six riding horses are kept, each owner pays only his pro rata share of expenses and neither the owner of any horse nor of the stable receives any earnings or profits.

A's Snap Nats' One-Game Winning Streak, 6-1

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THAT NINE-RUN inning the Yankees unloaded against the Red Sox in the opening game at Fenway Park is almost enough to make a fellow retract his published opinion that Boston would win the pennant. One game doesn't make a swallow, or a summer, or whatever the idiom is, but the awful effects of it could linger.

For its lasting significance, that Boston opener could have been the Yankees' most important victory of the season, Boston's most haunting defeat. The Yankees may have awakened anew all of the Red Sox's inferiority complexes that Boston folks hoped were happily buried during the winter.

POVICH

The shock of it all must register in Boston. Here the Red Sox were, out in front 9-0 at one point, with their ace, Mel Parnell, cooling off the Yanks and Boston fans happily contemplating that this was a different year in which the Yankees would get their come-uppance. And then it happened. The same old Yanks cut loose with nine runs in the eighth inning and it was all over.

The Yanks couldn't have won a better one. The memory of that fiasco is calculated to stay with the Red Sox all season. And the Yanks couldn't have picked a better spot to announce to the rest of the league as well that they still pack dynamite.

THE INDIANS, the Tigers and any other clubs with pennant ambitions couldn't miss noting what the Yankees did. The respect the Yankees generate has always been one of their psychological weapons, and they served notice that they are still to be respected, even awed.

For Joe McCarthy, who watched his Red Sox toss off the pennant last year in two final, futile games with the Yankees, that opener in Boston must have been his most harrowing experience since that October 12 afternoon in Philadelphia in 1929. That was the World Series day when his Chicago Cubs were leading the Athletics, 8 to 0, and McCarthy was happily visioning a victory that would square the series.

But the A's rose up and cold-cocked the Cubs with a 10-run eighth inning, and McCarthy's thoughts doubtless went back to that inning 21 years ago, when the Yankees staged the same kind of a show the other day in Boston. He now can claim the distinction of being the managerial victim of two of the most famous big innings.

THE LAST YANKEE run had scarcely crossed the plate up in Boston when, I am sure, my favorite baseball correspondent and incurable Yankee fan, Miss Isabelle Parks, took her typewriter in hand and started belting me about. Anyway, she writes me a letter to chide me about picking the Red Sox to win the pennant and down-rating her Yanks.

Particularly does Miss Parks blow her pretty top at my suggestion Joe Page may be in for a poor season because of his habit of being effective only in alternate years, and she writes: "I agree Page was bad in some of his appearances in the last month of the 1949 season. But on the next to last day when he went in with the Yankees trailing Boston by four runs, he pitched 6 2/3 innings and allowed a total of one hit."

"And also," she says, "I have a pretty distinct recollection of sitting in the stands and watching Page put the Dodgers in their place twice during the last World Series. Of course, keeping the Dodgers under control in a World Series has never proved very difficult for the Yankees. (Ed note—Her Yankees.)

I HAVE BEEN receiving these letters from Miss Parks for a lot of years, now, and she has never wavered in her loyalty to the Yanks. Nor has she ever strayed from her dislike of the Nats. Miss Parks knows no middle ground. She writes such chillers as: "The only time the Yankees really had to extend themselves was in 1947 when Stanley Harris was directing their efforts."

Joe Page isn't necessarily Miss Parks' guy. Anybody in a Yankee uniform is her favorite. On this occasion she merely happens to be discussing Page. "Maybe Page will have a lousy year in 1950," she writes. "I really wouldn't know. He certainly wasn't too hot in 1948. But don't try to belittle what he did last year. Page really had it, and everybody else knew it. Remember the roar that arose in Brooklyn when he merely got off his chair in the bullpen and started to warm up?"

There was no joy in Brooklyn at that moment, I remember. Page can inspire a defeatist attitude. In fact, the whole Yankee club always carries that weapon, as Boston was so painfully reminded. It's a real good gimmick.

7398 Watch Trotters Play It Straight, Wallop Stars

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Harlem's Globetrotters merely trotted to a 77-64 victory over the College All-Stars in their series finale last night before 7398 sweltering fans at Uline Arena, largest crowd ever to see a basketball game in Washington.

As far as the game went, the Collegians ended the tour 10 minutes before the final gun. Trailing by only 62-60 as the fourth period got underway, the All-Stars netted exactly four points the rest of the way.

Holy Cross' Bob Cousy, high for the losers with 16 points, scored three of those four.

Hoyas' O'Keefe Gets Three

Georgetown's Tommy O'Keefe, who joined the Stars just for last night's game, showed to advantage for a spell in the second period when he bagged a field goal, foul shot and contributed three neat assists.

For three periods, the record crowd saw a good brand of basketball.

The All-Stars started so fast it was hard to believe they were playing their eighteenth game in as many nights on a transcontinental tour that drew exactly 181,364 spectators who paid more than $350,000 for the privilege.

Led by Cousy and Notre Dame's playmaker Kevin O'Shea, the Stars held an 11-point lead early in the second period before the Globetrotters went to work and sewed up their eleventh victory in the series.

High for Harlem was speedy Ermer Robinson who tallied 23 points. Veteran Nathaniel (Sweetwater) Clifton and Chuck Cooper, rookie from Duquesne, each had 12.

Trotters Play It Straight

Until they got their commanding lead at the end and started clowning around freezing the ball, the Globetrotters played straight, serious basketball.

Only thing funny up to that point was the mistaken public address announcement that Washington was leading the Athletics, 8-2, in the seventh inning.

Don Rehfeldt, Wisconsin ace who scored 13 points, wound up high scorer for the tour for the collegians with 213 points. Villanova's Paul Arizin, nation's leading college scorer, was runnerup with 205. Ol' Sweetwater Clifton was the real 18-game ace with 272.

The weary College boys, who received about $1000, were glad to call a halt. On the other hand, the Globetrotters, who played a 153-game schedule before the tour, were looking ahead to their 48-game European tour which starts early next month.

El Paso President Banned for Using Ineligible Player

Columbus, O., April 19 (AP).—President Jack Corbett of the El Paso club in the Arizona-Texas League received an indefinite suspension from baseball today.

George M. Trautman, president of the minor leagues, said the action was for conduct detrimental to baseball by defying rules of the National Association. The class C El Paso club drew a $1000 fine.

The veteran Corbett played Ventura Morales, an ineligible outfielder, in last night's opener with Phoenix despite definite orders against it, Trautman said.

In El Paso, Corbett said Trautman's action "was all a mistake." He expressed confidence the suspension and fine would be lifted.

2 Errors Help Bucs Win, 4-3

St. Louis, April 19 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates took advantage of a pair of fifth-inning errors by Eddie Kazak to hand the St. Louis Cardinals a 4 to 3 defeat tonight.

Cliff Chambers limited the Redbirds to six hits. The Bucs in turn had just five safeties from the pitches of Red Munger and Ken Johnson.

Hudson Hits 2 Straight Batters With Bases Loaded

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

The Nats gave 10,153 Griffith Stadium fans only one run for their money last night, and their one-game winning streak expired under the weight of some fancy pitching by a couple of the Athletics' come-latelies to the American League.

Hank Wyse, a back-slider from the Cubs who wound up in the Texas League last year, and Rookie Bob Hooper from Buffalo, made gentle people of the Nats. The A's wound up with a convincing 6-1 victory.

Like the A's, the Nats made eight hits, but unlike the A's they weren't making those hits count, leaving 10 runners on base. The Athletics wasted none of their last seven blows off Sid Hudson and Dick Weik.

Joost Whacks Homer

Hudson toiled for seven innings, pitching four-hit ball, but he also pitched seven walks to the A's and in one spree of third-inning wildness forced two consecutive runs across the plate by sticking a pair of his pitches into the anatomies of Bob Dillinger and Sam Chapman.

Hudson made one other griveous mistake, pitching a home run ball to Eddie Joost who whacked it into the left field bleachers in the seventh inning. When he departed at the end of seven, Hudson bequeathed a 4-1 deficit to Weik.

Connie Mack didn't temporize with Wyse when that seasoned campaigner suddenly lost control without warning in the seventh inning. After he walked Ed Stewart and threw two wide pitches to Yost, Mr. Mack got him out of there.

Coan Fans In Pinch

Young Hooper, who moved up to the A's after a fancy 19-3 record in the International League last season, completed the pass to Yost and then struck out Kozar. He filled the bases with two out, by walking pinch hitter Sherry Robertson. And then he whisked a third strike past Gil Coan who had worked it up to a 3-and-2 count.

In the eighth, Hooper again invited a rally by passing Noren and Robinson with one out, but again he held the Nats hitless. And in the ninth when pinch hitter Sam Mele got a broken-bat single and Coan doubled to right with two out, Hooper locked it up by luring Dente into popping up.

Coan made three of the Nats eight hits, but the bunt he beat out in the sixth was the most effective. He laid it down with two out, and scored on Dente's single through the box and Noren's safe

With 7-Run 8th
Yanks Crush Bosox, 16-7, To Split Pair

Boston, April 19 (AP).—The New York Yankees staged another of their patented big rallies today, scoring 7 runs in the eighth inning to clout the Boston Red Sox, 16-7, in the afternoon portion of a double-header.

The Red Sox, victims of a 9-run eighth inning Yankee outburst yesterday, captured the morning part of the Patriot's Day affair, 6-3.

Tommy Henrich, showing no signs of the injured knee which threatened to keep him idle, batted in six runs in the nightcap with a three-run home run and two singles.

Williams Homers in Morning

Ted Williams produced the day's other homer, swatting his first of the new season in the morning game to help Joe Dobson pocket a neat 6-hitter.

The double-header attracted 58,285 fans, 25,425 in the morning and 32,860 for the afternoon contest which was halted after eight innings because of darkness.

As they di dyesterday, the Sox hustled to a quick lead in the afternoon and then the Yankees went wild, routing ace righthander Ellis Kinder in the process.

Millikan Rejects Better Terp Offer To Stay in West

Springfield, Mo., April 19 (AP).—H. A. (Bud) Millikan, former All-American eager at Oklahoma A. and M., turned down the head basketball coaching job at the University of Maryland to take a similar position at Southwest Missouri State.

Millikan will be given $5,000 a year. This is reported to be less than he was offered by Maryland.

Reliable sources said Millikan's reasons for declining the Maryland job were the increase in living expenses and his wish to remain in the midwest.

D. C. Committee OK's 2 Paychecks For Boxing Board

The House District Committee voted yesterday to allow District Boxing Commission members to draw their rofficial salaries as well as any retirement pay they may receive for previous Federal or District service.

An immediate result of the bill would permit Col. Hienie Miller, would permit Col.. Heinie Miller, sion, to continue receiving his Marine Corps retirement pay and begin drawing pay for the job of chairman of the commission.

He is taking the retirement pay now, and present law forbids him to accept two forms of compensation.

Committee approval of the bill was announced by Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) after a morning executive meeting. The bill now goes to the House. A similar bill is pending in the Senate District Committee.

Browns Whip Chisox Again

Chicago, April 19 (AP).—The surprising St. Louis Browns backed up Dick Starr's five-hit pitching against the Chicago White Sox here today with three home runs for a 6-1 victory.

Round trippers by Dick Kokos, Sherm Lollar and Rookie Don Lenhardt, who also cashed a single and double for three hits, accounted for five of the Brown's six runs in their second straight win over the White Sox.

AT HAVRE DE GRACE.

DEAR FOLKS:

Dion K. Kerr, sr., rode up on the race train with me to saddle his son's Flying Weather in the Philadelphia Handicap. We were talking about horse breeding, particularly the flood of poorly bred and cheap horses. He reminded me that until shortly after the turn of the present century geldings were allowed three pounds off the weight for a race. Of course, gelded horses are not useful for breeding purposes. "If the rule was revived, we'd have less cheap stock around and racing would be better off," he said. By the way, early in his career Kerr owned a thoroughbred named Man O' War, a gelding that he made into a jumper. The veteran trainer said he makes that statement once in a while and almost invariably is asked to prove it. The books show he's right. BILL.

Hecht Colt Just Misses Track Mark

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., April 19.—The Pincher, considered by many America's No. 1 sprinter, put the squeeze on six rivals today to win the $7500 added Philadelphia Handicap, first contested here in 1913.

Sporting the colors of H. H. Hecht of the Baltimore and Washington Heehts, the dark brown 4-year-old came within a fifth of a second of the track record in winning by 2 lengths.

W. P. Taylor's Magnet, winner of the Capitol Handicap at Laurel, was second, 2 lengths in advance of Greentree Stable's Wine List, with Ted Atkinson, imported from New York, in the saddle. Brookfield Farm's Istan, one of the early front runners, was fourth.

The Pincher was clocked in 1:10 2-5 for the six furlongs by a single tick of the timer's watch, missing tying the track mark held by Pep Well and Maud Lea, a pair of Calumet stars. A banner midweek crowd of 10,000 made The Pincher the favorite and he paid $4.80.

This was the second straight 1950 victory for The Pincher and made it eight victories in 17 tries in two years. Today's effort was worth $5795 to bring his season's earnings to $8395. Last year, the son of Heliopolis collected $29,500.

First-time starters were the winners in the key races of a daily double that produced a $314.60 pay-off on the 9-6 duo. Gilbert won the first with Palatine Stable's New Fashion, a stablemate of Quiz Show, while Mike Basile booted D. Coplin's Kalluki home in the second. The winners paid $9.20 and $22.40, respectively. The double far outshone a parlay.

It Loosened Tightwad's Purse Strings

Ace That Wasn't Wanted

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

EVER HEAR of a golfer who hated getting a hole-in-one?

Stanley Wright, holding forth at East Potomac Golf Course recently, told this story:

While on active duty with the Air Force in Australia, Wright's outfit had a notorious tightwad in it. The fliers all made a contest of trying to get the tightwad to buy them a drink, without success. No strategem worked.

But the tightwad was an ardent golfer and that led to his downfall. One of the approaches to the Australian course on which the Americans played had a blind approach, the cup being hidden by a hill.

When the tightwad teed off, a caddie hiding behind the hill dunked his ball into the cup, giving him what appeared to be a hole-in-one.

Following golf's ancient custom, the tightwad grudgingly picked up the tab for drinks all around.

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE: Golfers at Anacostia are getting a breath-taking view of the crabapple and cherry blossoms lining the Anacostia River . . . The Federal Golf Association is now holding a blind bogey tournament every Sunday at Rock Creek. It's a handicap affair open to both men and women. . . . Woodmont members are eagerly looking forward to moving into their new clubhouse May 30. . . . H. C. Shuler socked a hole-in-one on the 11th at Rock Creek last Sunday. The distance is 148 yards. He used a 4 iron. . . . Army Navy has a new assistant pro. He's Tom Rainey, who hails from Salisbury, North Carolina. . . . George Pigott, assistant pro at East Potomac, is back from Florida.

BIRDIES: Tom McCormick, sixth and thirteenth, Anacostia; John Stacy, fourteenth, Anacostia, Tom Barry, first, Potomac; A. E. O'Brien, eighteenth, Rock Creek.

Fort Dupont Public Golf Course claims to have the ruggedest golf course in town. Its narrow greens and towering hills offer a real challenge.

Incidentally, Elaine Edwards and Wilbur Beall, presidents of the Fort Dupont women's and men's clubs are planning an expanded tournament program with other public courses. Both clubs are a year old this month.

Class tells. Al Burton, Army Navy pro easily got out of a tough spot recently that would have sunk duffers. Al hooked a drive into the rough on the seventeenth hole, took a two shot penalty, and then came back to hole out on the next shot for a par four.

Marilyn Smith, Women's Intercollegiate Golf champion last year, and now one of the better lady pros, will hold a golf clinic at 1:30 p. m. April 26 at Kenwood. After the clinic, she'll play nine holes of golf just to give an object lesson in how its done. Incidentally, Marilyn will be playing in the Washington Post's National Celebrities Tournament June 3 and 4.

DAR Votes U. S., World Resolutions

By Nicha Soure
Post Reporter

In exactly 15 minutes yesterday, the Daughters of the American Revolution took their stand on national and international affairs.

Eleven resolutions presented by the chairman of the resolutions committee, Mrs. Roy Valentine Shrewder, were adopted unanimously and without a murmur by the Daughters.

Opposed was legislation designed to create "state medical care which would result in a socialistic state."

Not wanted was immigration of aliens over and above those under the present quota system "either by special legislation, unused quotas or executive orders."

Urged by the 167,000-member organization was support of the Un-American Activities Committee in Congress. Commended was the work of the Hoover commission on governmental reorganization, and acceptance was approved of such of its findings "as will ensure savings without sacrifice of efficiency."

Judge Harold Medina was commended "for the extraordinary patience and the scrupulous care for the dignity of our judicial system which he maintained in the Communist conspiracy trial in New York."

The delegates reaffirmed their belief in free enterprise, and called on Congress to pass no legislation that would change the character "of our American free capitalistic system."

All patriotic and national holidays should be observed, the Daughters believe, and the United States flag should be displayed on these occasions.

American education, a subject of longtime interest to the patriotic society members, was emphasized again in a resolution. The Congress opposed the introduction of subversive ideas in American education, and demanded the teaching of United States history, geography and civics according to American free enterprise ideals.

The Daughters have unqualified faith in the Federal Bureau of Investigation and in its director, J. Edgar Hoover.

The members were asked "to raise their voices in prayerful thanksgiving for the blessings of citizenship in a free country and to remain constantly alert to any threat to this priceless freedom."

New Building Cost

Delegates heard yesterday that the new administration building would cost them an additional $350,000.

In resolution adopted two years ago, the Daughters allocated $900,000 for the new building and repairs to Memorial Continental Hall.

Mrs. Rex H. Rhoades, treasurer general, said yesterday the expense has risen to $1,250,000, of which 54 percent is paid.

The building, which links Constitution Hall and the Memorial Continental Hall, was the main project of the three-year administration of Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne, outgoing president general.

During the morning's pledging session, Mrs. James B. Patton, candidate for president general, added $500 to the building fund. On Tuesday she contributed $2500, slated for a campaign reception in accordance with Mrs. O'Byrne's request. Before the congress met, Mrs. O'Byrne asked the candidates for president general to forego their campaign receptions with the hope that this money would be turned over to the building fund.

Of the $23,079 raised in the pledging session, approximately $1500 was contributed in honor of Mrs. Edwin Stanton Lammers, candidate for president general.

John W. Anderson, automotive equipment manufacturer of Gary, Ind., told the Congress to fight against "the grinding curse of Communistic tyranny." Mrs. thmb Communistic tyranny." Mrs. O'Byrne announced Tuesday that Anderson was presenting a gift of $10,000 for the filming of patriotic activities of the DAR.

tempt to defeat "one of the candidates." She did not say which one.

Latest count of delegates who will decide the Fifty-ninth Congresses biggest issue showed a 2257 eligible voters out of a 3166 official registration.

Last night's session got under way with little official fanfare. Mrs. O'Byrne, in declaring nominations open for national offices, asked delegates to hold their applause until each of the major slates had been nominated, then applaud "as much as you desire" as the candidates were brought forward by twos.

Mrs. Edward R. Barrow, a vice president general, nominated Mrs. Lammers, and told delegates "Texas offers her finest" in "Mamie" Darnell whose very family name symbolized the national organization.

Mrs. John S. Heaume of Springfield, Ohio, a past recording-secretary general, pointed to Mrs. Patton's knowledge of world affairs at a time when "the world and its societies need courageous leaders."

In a glove-softened slap at Mrs. Lammers', candidacy (assured when the 1949 convention was finished) Mrs. Heaume said Mrs. Patton had consented to run "at the proper time as prescribed in our by-laws, and not before."

A departure from the program came when Mrs. Grace L. H. Brosseau, editor of the DAR magazine, and a powerful figure in the organization, stepped in to nominate Mrs. Lammers' candidate for first vice president general.

Mrs. O'Byrne explained that Mrs. Harper D. Sheppard, scheduled to nominate Mrs. Van Court Carwithen, had been told by her physician "not to speak." Some delegates murmured that this seemed another attempt to corral more votes for the Lammers ticket. Said Mrs. Brosseau: "Don't lose your way at the crossroad. Follow the sign that points to Carwithen."

North Dakota Asks Truman For Flood Aid

Bismarck, N. Dak., April 19 (AP). Governor Fred G. Aandahl today requested President Truman to declare a flood emergency and make available all posisble assistance.

Aandahl said the floods in the Red, James, Cannonball and Heart River Valleys apparently are more destructive than in 1943 or 1948.

Richard Stoudt, Red Cross disaster committee chairman, said one-half of the houses in Jamestown are under water.

The fieldhouse at the State university was converted into a dormitory for refugees as the Red River of the North rose 13.10 feet above flood stage. Boat crews evacuated 200 families at Grand Forks. An added 100 families were taken from East Grand Forks, Minn.

Grafton moved 200 families into public buildings.

The Tongue, Goose, Turtle, Red Lake and Clearwater Rivers, all flowing into the Red River, were at or near flood stage.

Crystal reported 90 percent of its homes and business places under water. Ice cakes carried away scores of railroad and highway bridges.

Copper Bass Off, Running In Carolina

By Ralph Murdock

Folks, we are loaded with good fishing news. Best of all, the glad tidings come from almost every direction.

Murdock

Honorable Lindsay Warren, United States comptroller general, gives us this good bit of information on the channel bass. A special airmail letter from Captain A. W. Drinkwater, a skipper, at Manteo, N. C., to the Government executive imparts the "info" that the big bronbe beauties moved in on Oregon Inlet on Monday afternoon.

Weekend Suggestions

HERRING—Large schools now in the Potomac River near Chain Bridge and Rock Creek. Snagging is the method. Just bring something to put 'em in.

SHAD—Upper Patuxent below Queen Anne Bridge. Good catches up to 12 during the week. Shad spoons, size 00 will do a good job.

CHANNEL BASS—The whoppers are now at Oregon Inlet. The present run will average 30 pounds. Trolling is the process with large Phleuger Record spoons.

WHITE PERCH—Potomac River near Chain Bridge and Patuxent River near Broomes Island. Bloodworm is the choice morsel. Use very small perch hooks and light tackle.

Local anglers who contemplate fishing trips in this area should make reservations for both boats and lodging in advance. Approximately 45 boats are available at Nag's Head, Manteo and Wonchese. The boat fees usually average $30 per day for an all-day trip. The accommodations are excellent and the large lures used for this type of fishing can be purchased or rented at Nag's Head.

CHARLES REMER, owner of the Trading Post in Georgetown, and Ronald F. Moist, operator of Dempsey's Boathouse, report that tremendous schools of herring are now in the upper Potomac near Chain Bridge and Rock Creek. It's the big run you've been waiting for. Charlie says that the herring are thick as fleas on a hunting dog.

Upsets Mark North-South Golf Tourney

Pinehurst, N. C., April 19 (AP).—Defending champion Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, led the field through one of the most keenly contested third rounds in the 50-year history of the North and South amateur golf tournament today, to survive a series of form reversals that sent several favorites to the sidelines.

After the long double round day ended, Stranahan was joined in tomorrow's quarterfinals by the following seven survivors of the firing:

Gonzaga Bows To St. John's

St. John's High slammed two homers in the first inning and went on to defeat Gonzaga, 14-3, yesterday on the West Ellipse. With the victory, St. John's took over first place in the Catholic League with three wins and no losses.

Paul Merola of St. John's hit the game's first pitch for a homer, and later in the same inning Bob McLindon hit one with the bases loaded. Bill Mattingly supplied a third homer for the winners, with one on in the fifth inning.

Soccer League Meets Tonight on Twin Bill

The regular monthly meeting of the Washington and Suburban Soccer League will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the YMCA.

Final plans for Sunday's doubleheader at Hughesville will be discussed. In Sunday's twin bill, the District Old Timers play the Baltimore Old Timers at 2 o'clock, followed by the Washington All-Stars against the Baltimore All-Stars.

Unofficial Hole-in-One Is Official Birdie

Lieutenant James Earl scored a hole in one yesterday at the Fort Belvoir course but he had to settle for a birdie.

Playing the 127-yard eighth hole with an eight iron, Earl sliced his first shot into some trees to the right. His second try, also with the eight iron, went into the cup. He had to take a two on the par three hole.

U. S. Homosexuals On Russia's List, House Is Informed

Two Congressmen said yesterday that Russia has adopted a reported Nazi practice of keeping detailed lists of homosexuals in U. S. Government posts who might be blackmailed into handing over secret information.

The statements were made on the House floor by Representatives A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) and Cliff Clevenger (R., Ohio). They recalled that Government officials have said sex perverts are removed from sensitive jobs because they are easy victims of pressure.

Miller said the Government had no obligation to keep such persons on the payroll and should clean them out.

Riddle Paces W-L High Victory

Eppie Riddle hit his second grand slam homer of the season as Washington-Lee High of Arlington routed Eastern, 12-3, last night at W-L. Riddle also had a triple and singled to drive in seven runs.

It was the seventh straight victory for undefeated W-L. Stan Munro pitched three-hit ball in coasting home. He whiffed 12 on the way.

Macks Make Better Use Of Their 8 Hits, Win, 6-1

drive into center. That summed up the Nats' scoring.

Hudson, pitching side arm in deference to his recent back injury, moved along nicely until his control deserted him in the third. He walked Joost, pitched a single to McCosky and another to Valo and the A's had the first run of the game.

Then Hudson filled the bases with a pass to Fain, with only one out, and invited the disaster that befell him. His next act was to hit Dillinger on the hand with a pitched ball, although Catcher Mickey Grasso claimed loudly that the ball came off Dillinger's bat. Umpire Ed Rommel said "no" and waved the A's second run home.

Whereupon Hudson made it two in a row by hitting Chapman on the flanks with another pitch and forcing the inning's third run in. Bucky Harris showed patience with Hudson at that point and was rewarded when he fanned Suder with the bases still full, and got rid of Tipton on a pop fly.

Upset—Weik Wilks Nowe

During the next three innings, Hudson held the A's hitless, and then he bumped into that Joost homer at the start of the seventh.

Weik was a sensation in that he walked nobody in his two innings relief stint, although giving up a run in each, the eighth and ninth. He was a victim of Sam Dente's fumble in the eighth on a ground ball by Hooper, and Joost got the run home with a line-drive two-bagger that Coan couldn't reach.

They wrenched a legitimate run out of Weik in the ninth, on Bob Dillinger's lengthy triple to right center bullpen, and Chapman's single past Dente who had moved close in. It was completely superfluous.

IN SHORT . . . Griffith Stadium fans got their first view of Mickey Grasso's temper, now famed coast-to-coast, when Umpire Ed Rommel ruled Bob Dillinger was hit on the hand by a Hudson pitch in the third inning, forcing a run home . . . The Nats' catcher from the Coast League almost popped a couple of blood vessels in disputing Rommel while in a frenzied dance of protest . . . The efficacy of the home run was never better demonstrated than in the last of the sixth and the first of the seventh. After six players went to bat and three hits were made, the Nats got themselves a run. Joost, first up in the seventh, got it back on Hudson's first pitch . . . Both of the homers hit in the stadium this season went winging beyond the new left field seats into old-fashioned home run territory . . . The Nats board a 4 p. m. train today for New York where they figure in tomorow's Yankee Stadium opener . . . Joe Haynes, Steve Nagy and Ray Scarborough will start in the three-game series there.

Budget Bureau Studies VA Request for Funds For Medical Employes

VA: The Budget Bureau will give close study to the request of the Veterans Administration for additional funds to prevent the layoff of 4800 medical employes in its hospitals.

The discharge notices to the employes, incidentally, have been merely postponed; they have not been canceled, and they won't be until VA actually gets the money to retain them.

VA put in its request only last Monday for the money to continue its 4800 employes until June 30, 1951, although it halted the scheduled discharges two weeks ago. When the reduction was postponed, it was reported that the White House had agreed to support VA's appeal for money to retain all of the 4800 employes. Now there appears to be doubt whether any such assurance was given.

Meantime, the Senate and House Appropriations Committees has refused to consider the problem until the White House makes a formal request for funds.

STORY: The Bulletin, the publication of the National Association of Employes of Collectors of Internal Revenue, carries this story in this month's issue:

A railroad brakeman went to a deputy collector in Utah to ask for help in filling out his Federal income tax. The collector agreed.

"I have a few exemptions," the brakeman began, "as I have 16 children, and then I have away-from-home expenses . . ."

The impressed deputy smiled as he told him:

"I don't believe you've been away from home—much!"

CGS: Among those supported to succeed Admiral L. O. Colbert as director of the Coast and Geodetic Survey are: Capt. R. F. A. Studds, chief, Charts Division; Admiral K. T. Adams, assistant director who is now acting director; Admiral Paul Smith, the U. S. representative to the International Civil Aviation Organization, and Capt. John A. Bond, an assistant to the director. By law, the President must make his selection from among CGS commisioned officers.

At Civil Aeronautics, Al J. Forte has been promoted to assistant to Administrator Del Rentzell to handle congressional relations, among other duties . . . At Civil Service, Commissioner James M. Mitchell reveals the commission will hire a top-level personnel management adviser to work with Federal agencies in setting up executive development programs. In a speech at the Army Medical Center, Mitchell commended the Forest Service and Navy for taking the lead in Government in developing executives . . . At Maritime, Chairman Fleming has been urged by AMVETS to investigate the layoff of veterans there. AMVETS suggested the appointment of an appeals board to hear the cases of veterans and non-veterans alike who are ordered fired or demoted. It also questioned Maritime's practice of limiting areas of competition to one particular field.

DAMPER: The threatened layoff of 10,000 postal employes may block favorable congressional action on the several bills before Congress that would raise the salaries of many postal workers. The Postoffice Department is opposing any bill that would increase its costs unless Congress first increases its revenue.

LIBRARY: The Library of Congress would be able to hire only 27 new employes under its budget as tentatively approved yesterday by the House. Representative McGrath (D., N. Y.) told the House that 22 new employes would be in the copyright office and 5 in the catalog card section.

He said that a number of new jobs authorized last year hadn't been filled by the Library.

VACANCIES: House members discussed, but took no action, on a suggestion that Federal employment be reduced by prohibiting some agencies to fill vacancies for several months.

Representative Taber (R., N. Y.) said "a very substantial reduction could be accomplished if they did not fill vacancies." He also said that pay rates for Federal people "are generally higher than they are for comparable work outside."

House Votes 86 to 82 For 10 Pct. Slash in U. S. Payment to D. C.

District Leaders On 'Hill' Predict Senate Will Act To Restore Cut

By Edward Ryan
Post Reporter

The House voted 86 to 82 yesterday to make a 10 percent cut in Federal payments to the District next year.

This would reduce the grant from 12 to 10.8 million.

The House action is subject to a later rollcall which could conform or reverse the tentative economy decision.

If the House does not change its mind, District leaders predicted the Senate might move to restore the cut.

In another decision the House turned thumbs down, 67 to 19, on an antisegregation amendment for the District urged by Representative Vito Marcantonio (ALP, N. Y.).

With these actions, the House moved into the job of putting into the shape it desires the 29-billion-dollar omnibus funds.

Upon the 12-million-dollar payment to the District fell the first force of a Republican economy drive for substantial cuts in the bill as a whole.

Motion by Taber

Representative Taber (R., N. Y.), ranking member of his party on the Appropriations Committee, made the motion to slice 10 percent off Federal funds for the District in the year starting next July 1.

On the vote, Taber got almost solid backing from his party colleagues in the House. Democrats, after a last-minute effort to round up stragglers, wondered where the rest of their majority had gone. The vote occurred about 1:40 p. m., at the height of the congressional lunch hour.

Four members, all closely concerned with District legislation, made a determined fight against Taber's motion. They included Representative Joe B. Bates (D., Ky.), Representative Sidney R. Yates (D., Ill.) and Representative Lowell Stockman (R., Oreg.), all members of the House Appropriations Subcommittee in charge of the city budget, and Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), chairman of the House subcommittee in charge of District tax legislation.

Representative Bates reminded the House that it was the Republican Eightieth Congress that set the Federal payment at 12 million. It had been eight million for a year, and before that six million annually during the war years.

Rollcall to Be Sought

Bates said after the vote that he will ask a rollcall on Taber's amendment. Representative Smith said he thought the House would not reverse its decision to cut the District payment, but he predicted the Senate would restore the funds.

This prediction was echoed by Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.).

A Federal payment to the District has been made annually. It has varied from a 50 percent contribution to District expenses, to lump sums furnishing a much smaller percentage. The 12-million-dollar annual appropriation was authorized by a District revenue law of 1947, and has been paid for the past three fiscal years, including the current year.

Continuation of the 12-million-dollar payment was asked by the District Commissioners to help underwrite the biggest city budget ever recommended for Washington, close to 120 million for next year.

Backers of Funds Cut

Among those who backed Taber in urging a cut in Federal funds for the District were Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) a member of the House District Committee, Representative Kenneth B. Keating (R., N. Y.) and Representative H. Carl Anderson (R., Minn.).

Breaking away from the Republican lineup on Taber's motion, Representative Stockman told the House it should cut the money bill "where the fat is really deep."

Representative Edward Rees (R., Kans.) said Taber's cut in District funds was "a mild cut." Representative Andrew Jacobs (D., Ind.) was the one Democrat to speak up for the Taber plan, declaring that District taxes are a third what they are in his area.

A similar estimate was made by Representative Errett P. Scrivener (R., Kans.) who said taxes on personal property at home are 3½ times the level he has paid here.

Representative Yates charged it was unfair to cut the Federal payment while the House refuses to grant Washington home rule.

Rees replied that if the District people took care of all the expense of District government home rule might be all right. Representative Fred Crawford (R., Mich.), backing the Taber move, said if the people here got home rule and had to pay the entire bill, "they'll be sick of home rule."

After cutting the District payment, the House trimmed $500,000 out of the Government Printing Office portions of the appropriation for Congress and its agencies, and approved the legislative title in the omnibus money bill carrying a total of $36,322,450.

RESCUE EFFORTS FAIL—Two died by suffocation when the sides of this 13-foot ditch caved-in on a sewer construction job at 6th and Ogelthorpe st. ne., despite the rescue attempts of firemen, policemen and fellow workers. The body of Harold Turner, 25, of 87 S st. nw., is carried from the ditch

Used Car Lot Operator Charged With Fraud by FBI

A fantastic background of used carlot operations here, involving more than $100,000 with a small payoff, was disclosed yesterday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation after its agents arrested Claude R. Wallace, 24, of 2708 Kirkwood pl., Hyattsville, Md.

Wallace was charged with fraudulently concealing from the receiver in bankruptcy a $3200 Cadillac. He was released on $2000 bond after arraignment before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence. Preliminary hearing was set for May 10.

FBI authorities said that before the hearing details of the entire car-lot operations will be put before a grand jury.

According to the FBI, Wallace was arrested at his home by a strategem. Agents had received word, the FBI said, that Wallace had threatened to shoot any agent who entered.

The agents "planted" around his back yard and either waited or arranged by tampering with an auto for him to emerge. When he did, they arrested him.

The FBI said Wallace opened a used car lot at 1319 I st. ne., on December 1, 1948, bought 76 used cars for $106,830, for which he paid only $14,290 in cash. On the rest, the agency said, he gave 48 notes, mostly due on the following May 19.

Acording to the FBI, he sold 70 of the cars for $80,159.40 in cash, but paid off only $19,000 on the notes. Subsequently, the FBI said, on April 23, 1949, he sold the rest of the cars below market prices, destroyed his records, and closed the lot.

Ten days after that, the FBI said, he bought the Cadillac, used, in Detroit, for $3200. On May 26, 1949, creditors made a petition in District Court here for involuntary bankruptcy against him, and on June 27, 1949, he was adjudicated bankrupt.

On July 5, 1949, Samuel Greenbaum, attorney, of the Tower Bldg., was appointed receiver and recovered about $10,000 worth of assets, ultimately including the Cadillac, he said yesterday. Meanwhile, other payments brought Wallace's total remaining debts to about $45,000, the FBI said.

John A. Bresnahan, referee in bankruptcy, ordered him to turn over the Cadillac, the FBI said, but instead he abandoned it in Maryland. This was the basis of the charges yesterday. Greenbaum said Wallace left the car at Cottage City, Md., and subsequently, an attorney notified Greenbaum where it was.

Jesse Jones Asks RFC Liquidation Or Restrictions

Jesse Jones, former head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, recommended yesterday that the huge Federal lending agency be quickly liquidated "lock stock and barrel."

He said if Congress is not willing to close out the corporation, then RFC should close its 32 branches and only make loans in cooperation with banks and other financial institutions on a limited scale.

Jones, publisher of the Houston (Texas) Chronicle, set out his views in a letter to Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.), chairman of a Senate Banking subcommittee which now is investigating RFC lending policies.

Jones said that he had "great affection" for the RFC which he headed for 13 years, but is "saddened by the way it is now being misused."

Nine in City

41 Brush Fires Plague D. C. Area

Forty-one brush fires—none of them serious—spotted the Metropolitan Washington area yesterday as the District underwent its twenty-first day without an appreciable rainfall.

Nine brush fires were reported in Washington itself, with about a dozen in Montgomery County.

Arlington County reported 3; Alexandria had 1, and Fairfax County had 7. There were 9 in Prince Georges County.

The most serious blaze of the day was on a 130-acre site near the Baltimore-Washington blvd., and bounded by the Hunt Club and Montgomery rds. and the boulevard.

Before it could be brought under control, it destroyed $5000 worth of shrubbery on the Dasher Nursery, Montgomery rd., and threatened 15 homes—including those of Howard Brucer, a banker and industrialist, and Daniel Murray, Howard County State attorney—in a small community near Elkridge, Md.

Many of the 150 firemen who fought the fire were detailed to all-night duty to prevent a resurgence.

Meanwhile, the Weather Bureau said there was no immediate prospect of a heavy rainfall. Scattered and brief showers were called for in last night's prediction.

Observers said the District's last "decent" rain was the one-third-inch that fell March 29.

For today the bureau predicted cooler and partly cloudy weather, with an afternoon high of 62 degrees after an overnight low of about 48.

Yesterday's high was 79 degrees at 1 p. m. The low of 55 came at 3:30 a. m.

Spring Invasion by Tourists Makes Hotel Rooms Scarce

On foot, by automobile, bus, train and airplane, Washington now is undergoing its annual spring invasion by tourists.

And in hotels, tourists homes and camps and Washington suburbs, the demand for rooms this month has been extraordinary.

Clarence Arata, manager of the Greater Nation 1 Capital Committee, estimates 750,000 tourists are coming to town this month, and six million this year.

He said the Capital is approaching a record for sustained tourist bookings. The 30,000 commercial transient rooms here are practically filled.

Arata's word to the wise tourist is to make hotel or room reservations before starting land or air passage to this tourist's Mecca. He said yesterday there are rooms enough, if one plans ahead.

He also asked Washingtonians to list their rooms with the Sesquicentennial Housing Bureau, which may be reached at Republic 2600. Arata said that only 300 private homeowners so far have communicated with the bureau, and that many more rooms are needed.

The expected six million visitors this year top last year's estimated four million Capital tourists. Last year, tourists spent approximately 100 million dollars here, took uncounted snapshots, and used up unestimated shoe leather.

Principal tourist attractions for the city seem to vary with the age of the tourer. For youngsters, the Federal Bureau of Investigation is just about the highest point in a trip to Washington. For oldsters, it's a tossup between the Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials.

2 Laborers Die as Sewer Collapses

Third Man Escapes Ditch Just in Time; Victims Buried Under 11 Feet of Dirt

Two laborers were killed yesterday when a sewer excavation collapsed at 6th and Oglethorpe sts. ne., burying them beneath 11 feet of dirt and sand.

A third man, working with them on the project, scrambled up the banks of the ditch to escape by a few seconds and a few feet.

The dead were Euster Morgan, 21, of 609 Acker st. ne., and Harold Turner, 25, of 87 S st. nw.

Rescue operations by No. 2 Rescue Squad and No. 11 Truck Co. failed because of time required to brace the sides of the cave-in as rescuers dug.

The body of Turner was removed at 11:20 a. m.—an hour and 20 minutes after the cavein. Morgan's body was removed at 11:45 a. m.

Police said the original shoring of the excavation collapsed as Turner and Morgan were at the bottom of the ditch.

The third man, Fleming Porter, 26, of 2843 Allendale pl. nw., was standing on a level above his two coworkers, shoveling out dirt they removed.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, said Morgan died of a crushed chest. Turner died of asphyxia, he said.

Dr. MacDonald said he would withhold certificates pending an investigation.

4 After-Hours Clubs Lose Their Charters

Judge Edward A. Tamm of District Court yesterday revoked the charters of four after-hours clubs here.

Suits to revoke the charters brought by the United States Attorney's office were not contested. The Government was required to present evidence, however, that th charters had been abused.

The clubs ordered dissolved were the Star Dust Whist Club, 1919 14th st. nw.; United Family Club, 609 New Jersey ave. nw.; Acropolis Club, 719 9th st. nw., and the Stage Door Social Club, 1820 7th st. nw.

All had been chartered as organizations devoted to "social, literary, charitable or scientific purposes."

The evidence presented included statements by club operators at the recent congressional investigation of crime here, and testimony given by Lieut. Roy E. Blick, head of the police vice squad.

Blick testified that the only "literary" activity he had observed at any of the clubs was the reading of "scratch sheets." The only social activity, he said, was on a table and consisted of drinking, card-playing or crapshooting. There was nothing charitable about any of them, according to testimony, because they operated as businesses. There was no mention of "scientific" purposes in the testimony.

Judge Tamm smiled whenever Prosecutors Ross O'Donoghue and Bruce G. Sundlun quizzed Blick about the "literary or social" functions.

After revoking the charters, Judge Tamm implemented his order by permitting the appointment of a receiver to sell or dispose of property involved.

Pending are revocation proceedings against seven other after-hours clubs here.

Mrs. Readey to Head Of Suburban Cat Club

The Suburban Cat Club has named Mrs. J. C. Readey, 120 Philadelphia ave., Takoma Park, as its first president.

At its organizational meeting held at her home Monday night, the club also elected Charles G. Brooks, vice president; Mrs. John F. W. Morrison, treasurer; Mrs. Harold L. Bayer, secretary, and a board of directors consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Bascom N. Timmons, Mrs. Nancy Janes, H. L. Bayer, J. C. Readey and Mrs. E. Nisbet Wright.

2 Chased, Arrested Minutes After Holdup Of Southeast Office

The Washington Post

"BEST FRIEND"—Martin L. Michael, 75-year-old grain dealer at 35 New York ave. ne., was attacked by two men and robbed of $80 as his four dogs watched the proceedings without interfering. "Blackie" one of the "watchdogs," slightly abashed, turns head aside as she poses with Michael following the robbery

Dog Is Man's Best Friend; So True, But Which Man?

If "Blackie" hadn't been at the same canine beauty parlor for her annual "shingle cut" yesterday, Martin L. Michael believes he wouldn't have been robbed of $80.

As it was, Blackie's two Labrador offspring and two fox terrier companions just stood by as two men relieved the 75-year-old grain dealer of his cash at his warehouse at 35 New York ave. ne.

"She would have tackled 'em," Michael said of Blackie, displaying cuts on his nose and jaw. The two men had come in and asked for two bales of hay, then attacked him and took about $80 out of his pocket, Michael told police.

His four "watchdogs," trained not to interfere with customers, merely barked as the two men wrestled with Michael in the hay and escaped on foot.

"Curly," one of the two terriers, has a broken leg and shies away from violence, Michael explained. skin, about 25 or 30 years of age,

He described his assailants as two Negroes, one with light brown 6 feet tall, weighing 170 pounds and wearing a three-quarters length coat and "run-down shoes." The other had dark brown skin, was 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighed about 155 pounds, Michael told police.

After the robbery, a customer came to the warehouse and Michael's four dogs—"Blackie" was still at the veterinarian's getting clipped—growled and barked viciously.

"This is a heck of a time to be kicking up such a fuss," Michael opined.

Five Arrested In Gambling Raids Go Clear

The Government yesterday dropped gambling and conspiracy charges against five more of the 36 men indicted as a result of wholesale gambling raids in March 1949.

Prosecutor John C. Conliff told Judge Alexander Holtzoff in District Court that the Government had "insufficent evidence" against Murray H. Olf, William S. Doyle, Sidney Frischer, William Cohen and Lee Thomas Lewis.

The five were arrested March 25 at the State Wide Sports News Distributors, a race results service at 3701 Bladensburg rd., Colmar Manor, Maryland. Olf is the State Wide manager.

Judge Holtzoff also dismissed similar conspiracy charges against three other men, indicted with the five from State Wide, but arrested in a raid on Barber's News Stand, 417 10th st. nw. These three, John L. Quinn, his brother William, and Thomas B. White, are scheduled to go to trial on gambling charges on May 1.

Of the 36 men indicted 13 have now been freed without trial; four, including "Big-shot gambler" William "Snags" Lewis have been convicted. Two have died. One has been acquitted and the others still face either trial or retrial.

Bridge Hearing Set for April 28 By Senate Group

A Senate District Subcommittee is scheduled to hear testimony on the House-approved bill for an East Capitol St. Bridge over the Anacostia River at 10 a. m. on Friday, April 28.

The hearing was called by Subcommittee Chairman Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.). The bridge at East Capitol st. has the backing of the District Government and U. S. Public Roads Bureau.

Federal parks officials, and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and other groups opposed the East Capitol st. site, and favored a bridge at Massachusetts ave. se.

Alert Citizen Spots Robbery, Pursues Men; Both Held In $20,000 Bond

A three-mile pursuit yesterday by two courageous citizens brought about arrest of two men charged with robbery, and one of them later admitted and was charged with another robbery.

Police said a gunman walked into the office of the Barry Farms Dwelling, 1230 Sumner rd. se., with a .38 caliber revolver. He held up Mrs. Genevieve Carter, 36, of 1340 Perry pl. sw., and James W. Eighmie, 36, of 1903 15th st. nw.

When the intruder announced that "this is a stickup," Mrs. Carter faked a faint, she told police, and fell to the floor. The bandit then took $182 from two boxes and a walk-in vault.

The victims told police the bandit forced Eighmie and Mrs. Carter into the vault

Meanwhile, police said, unseen by the bandit, John Mann, 35, of 1169 3rd st. se. saw the holdup in progress, and got in a car with Samuel Briscoe, 2508 Stanton rd. se. After a few moments, the bandit emerged, entered a cab with another passenger and a driver.

Briscoe and Mann followed the cab to 4th and Independence ave. se., where it stopped for a traffic signal. Pvt. Ralph W. Holder, a motorcycle patrolman came alongside, and Mann and Briscoe told him of the holdup.

Holder went to the cab and forced out George Earl Taylor, 24, of 1109 6th st. nw., and Everett Perry Jones, 31, og 1524 6th st. nw., the passengers. He said he found the gun and $182 on Taylor.

Later, Taylor and Jones were charged with robbery, arraigned before United States Commissioner C. S. Lawrence, and held under $20,000 bond each. Police said Taylor was identified by Mrs. Carter and Eighmie. Jones denied any knowledge of the robbery but was held. The cab driver was released after questioning.

Afterward, police said, Taylor was identified and admitted the holdup on April 3 of a grocery at 523 Q st. nw., in which Julius Non, 31, the proprietor, and Jack Solomon, his brother-in-law, were robbed of $650 by a lone gunman.

Arrested Monday

4 Bandits Identified in 16 Robberies

Police announced yesterday the cleanup of at least 16 holdup robberies which took place here in the past two months, after arrest of a fleeing four-man gang Tuesday night. One other man under arrest was also implicated.

The four defendants were arraigned before United States Commissioner C. S. Lawrence, and three were held under $20,000 bond and the third under $30,000 bond for some of the crimes.

Robbery squad detectives worked feverishly through the day and last night, bringing in 35 victims of recent holdups to view the suspects, and expecting to bring in 40 more.

Preparing to Leave

The four were arrested as they prepared to leave for New York. Clarence J. Baldwin, 19, of 624 Quebec pl. nw., was picked off a train at Union Station minutes before it was to pull out. Russell Leon Perry, of 205 C st. nw., who has a previous record here for robbery, and Nathaniel Anderson, 27, of the same address, were taken in Union Station. George McDaniels, 22, of 1526 5th st. nw., was taken in his room as he packed a bag.

Police said all four had been definitely identified and had admitted robberies at the Rhode Island Pharmacy, 1830 1st st. nw, Monday night and the $250 robbery on April 11, of Robert Perry in his confectionery at 447 New York ave. nw.

All were charged with these robberies and in addition, Anderson and Perry were charged with the robbery on April 10 of Harold Fletcher, 1325½ Neal pl. nw., in which two men obtained $215.

Drug Robbery Cited

Police said other robberies in which some or all of the men had been identified included:

Montello Avenue Pharmacy, 1609 Montello ave. nw., on March 23, when four men obtained $150.

Foote's Shoe Shine Parlor, 1919 14th st. nw., on April 12, when William J. Edwards, proprietor, and 10 customers were lined up, and $140 taken.

Henry Hogan, robbed in his home at 638 L st. ne., on April 8, by four men; $100 in cash, a watch, two bottles of whisky, and two guns taken.

$10,000 Reported Taken

Lieut. Edgar E. Scott, head of the police robbery squad, said the men apparently had been operating here for at least two months and have obtained about $10,000.

In addition, Andrew Carlos Ware, 28, of 1333 10th st. nw., was brought back from District Jail for appearance with the other four. He was arrested on April 11, amid gunfire, a few minutes after the robbery of the North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Co., at 2002 11th st. nw., in which more than $2000 was taken, and subsequently recovered.

Tuesday night McDaniel admitted being Ware's accomplice in that robbery, though Ware had previously protested his innocence.

Yesterday, police said, Ware and McDaniel were identified in the robbery of the Woodman Pharmacy, 132 U st. nw., when four men obtained $1200, and that after the identification, Ware admitted his part in the crime.

Biando Not President, So He's Fined $10

Alfonda V. Biando wishes he were President so he, too, could brag in front of police that he won a bet on the opening game at Griffith Stadium.

Biando of St. Petersburg, Fla., paid a $10 fine yesterday in Municipal Court for making such a bet and he's not very happy about it.

He was standing near a refreshment booth at the ball park Tuesday, according to police, when an unidentified acquaintance said, "I'll bet you $2 this batter doesn't reach first."

Biando took the bet, according to Detective O. L. Erfert, who was standing nearby and who agreed to hold the stakes. Erfert then made the arrest as Biando's companion got away.

In court, Biando said, "it was just a social bet."

Said Judge Thomas D. Quinn who knew very well that President Truman had won $1 on the game's outcome, "We don't allow it, even on opening day."

Westchester Sale To Tenants Planned

Plans are underway to sell Washington's swank Westchester Apartments to the tenants as a cooperative, it was disclosed yesterday.

George N. Ray, president of Randall H. Hagner Co., acting as broker, said plans are in a "preliminary" state, with much depending on the tenants' reaction, but he expected completion of the cooperative sale this summer.

The Realest Corp., which is controlled by the City Investment Co. of New York, is the owner of the 553-unit Westchester, at 39th st. and Cathedral ave. nw. The Westchester is considered the largest elevator apartment development in the city.

65% Must Consent

Under the District Rent Control Act, 65 percent of the tenants have to consent to a cooperative sale before any evictions could be undertaken. The law expires June 30, however, and unless it is renewed cooperative sales could be made with only normal restrictions against evictions.

Ray, who said he hoped to discuss the cooperative project with a tenants' committee, said "we will have a fair plan, and there will be no effort to force people out."

Among the tenants of the Westchester's 553 apartments—which rent from about $65 to $300 each per month—are: Secretary of the Interior Chapman, Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, Undersecretary of the Navy Dan A. Kimball, Housing and Home Administrator Raymond M. Foley, Veterans Administrator Carl Gray, Commissioner W. E. Reynolds of the Public Building Administration, William P. Folger, chief national bank examiner in the Comptroller of the Currency's office, Senate Secretary Leslie Biffle, District Commissioner Guy Mason; and, among the highly placed Army and Navy personnel, Maj. Gen. Herman Feldman, quartermaster general.

7 Senators Live There

Seven Senators—besides other members of Congress—live there: Senators Harry P. Cain, Homer E. Capehart, Homer Ferguson, Irving M. Ives, Wayne Morse, Andrew F. Schoeppel and Alexander Wiley. All are Republicans.

Foley, the country's top housing official, could not be reached for comment yesterday. He has lived there nearly five years.

Cain, who has been prominent in his opposition to peacetime rent controls, said he had heard of the cooperative plan only as a rumor, and "as a tenant I will think about it when I hear from the management." The Senator added, "I would be against rent controls even if it meant in my case that I had to find other shelter."

The Westchester, comprising four buildings on a 27½ acre tract, was built about 20 years ago on the site of the former W. S. Kennedy mansion, which had been in the possession of the Kennedy and Kengla families for nearly a century. The original owners of the Westchester were Harvey Warwick, who was also the architect, Morris Cafritz and Gustave Ring. They sold it to Dutch interests representing the Queen of Holland in 1937, and it was sold to the Realest Corp. in 1947.

The property is carried on the District tax assessor's rolls at approximately $3,782,088.

15 Nominated

Trade Board To Elect 12 to Directorate

The Washington Board of Trade will elect 12 directors from a slate of 15 nominees at its annual meeting at 8 p. m. Monday at the Mayflower Hotel.

Dr. Marshall Dies; Dentist Here 50 Years

Funeral service for Dr. Pemberton J. Marshall, 70, a dentist in the Washington area for nearly 50 years, will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will follow in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Dr. Marshall

Dr. Marshall died unexpectedly Tuesday afternoon at his home, 2007 Columbia rd., shortly after treating a patient.

A native of Rochester, N. Y., he studied dentistry in Buffalo, and was graduated from Georgetown University Dental College in 1901.

Dr. Marshall was one of the first dentists to use anesthesia and X-ray machines in a dental office, and had the first electrically operated dental chair, his family recalled.

For the past 28 years, he had offices at the Columbia rd. address. Dr. Marshall was a member of the District Dental Society and the American Dental Association, and was a founder of the old Capital Clinic Club, a group of dentists interested in research work.

Other affiliations include the Potomac Masonic Lodge, Almas Temple of the Shrine and the Kalorama Citizens Association. He was formerly a deacon at the Washington Heights Presbyterian Church, 1862 Kalorama rd. nw.

Dr. Marshall is survived by his wife, Mrs. Florence Owen Marshall; a daughter, Dr. Frances P. Marshall, 2007 Columbia rd. nw.; a son, Dr. Pemberton John Marshall, jr., of Arlington; and two grandchildren.

Mrs. Susan Cushman Funeral Rites Held

Memorial services for Mrs. Susan Wood Cushman, 79, wife of Comdr. Frank Cushman, were held yesterday afternoon at All-Souls Unitarian Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw.

Mrs. Cushman died Monday at Long Beach, Calif., after several months illness. Her husband, until his retirement several years ago, was consultant in vocational education, with the United States Office of Education, and during the war was in charge of the civilian training program in Navy shore establishments.

A native of Boston, Mrs. Cushman lived in Washington from 1921 to 1945. She was an active member of All Souls Church.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Robert W. Cushman of Long Beach; a daughter, Mrs. William G. Eliot 3d, of 4645 Chesapeake st. nw., and five grandchildren.

Isadore Hecht Dies; Retired Insurance Man

Funeral services for Isadore D. Hecht, 62, retired insurance agent who died Tuesday at his home at 3715 Woodley rd. nw., will be held at 10:30 a. m. today at Danzansky funeral home, conducted by the Samuel Gompers Masonic Lodge.

Burial will be in George Washington Memorial Cemetery.

Mr. Hecht, born in Czechoslovakia, came to the United States in 1905 and became an American citizen. He worked for the Prudential Insurance Co. of America and lived in Milwaukee for 42 years before moving to Washington in 1948.

He was a member of the Harmony Masonic Lodge and a past grand master of the Golden Links Odd Fellows Lodge in Milwaukee.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Irene Hecht; two daughters, Miss Evelyn Hecht and Mrs. Audrey Bell, of the Woodley rd. address, and a son, Arthur, of 4012 Calvert st. nw., and 5 grandchildren.

Mrs. Abraham Dies; Wife of Army General

Funeral services for Mrs. Maude Willis Abraham of St. Petersburg, Fla., mother of Mrs. William F. Cass of Falls Church, Va., will be at 3 p. m. Monday in Fort Myer Chapel. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mrs. Abraham died Monday at her home in St. Petersburg. She was the wife of Brig. Gen Clyde R. Abraham, United States Army, ret., who survives her.

Dr. Ball, 87, Dies, Dean of Clergymen

Dr. John Compton Ball, 87, dean of local clergymen, died unexpectedly last night of a heart condition at Doctors Hospital.

Dr. Ball

For the past six years, he had been pastor emeritus of the Metropolitan Baptist Church, 6th and A sts. ne., the same church he served 41 years as pastor before his retirement in 1944. He held the record then in point of age and service among Washington pastors.

One of his many distinctions was that of opening the House of Representatives with prayer under eight different speakers—from the colorful "Uncle Joe" Cannon through William B. Bankhead.

He served only two pastorates in his 44-year ministry—the first being the Baptist Church of New Bethlehem, Pa., just after his graduation from Crozier Theological Seminary, Chester, Pa., in 1899. The Metropolitan Church here had 361 members when he came in 1903; when he retired, it had more than 3000.

A native of Northhamptonshire, England, Dr. Ball came to America in 1870, spending most of his early life in Philadelphia where he attended public schools and Temple University.

He was still active at the time of his death, performing both a marriage and a funeral service last Friday, the day before he was stricken.

His closest survivor is a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Mills of Harrisburg, Pa. He lived at 516 A st. ne.

Northern Virginia Pupils Meet Today

"Citizenship in the Elementary School" will be the theme of the annual meeting of the northern Virginia section of the Student Cooperative Association today at the Oakton School in Fairfax County.

Heart Attack Fatal to Ohio College Dean

Louis A. Deesz, dean of the college of engineering of Youngstown (Ohio) College, collapsed and died yesterday while waiting to testify before an Army Engineer board at Gravelly Point.

Dr. Deesz, about 70, was found about 2 p. m. in a washroom in quarters occupied by the Army Engineers opposite Washington National Airport. The discovery was made by a building guard on a routine check, according to the Military District of Washington.

A certificate of death due to a heart attack was issued by Dr. W. C. Welburn, Arlington County coroner.

According to friends, Dr. Deesz had come to Washington with a delegation from Ohio to testify before the Rivers and Harbors Board on the Mahoning-Grand River flood control project. His body was taken to the Fitzgerald Funeral Home in Arlington pending funeral arrangements.

For Roper Estate

Zoning Board Denies 4-H Club Request

The District Board of Zoning Adjustment yesterday forbade the use of the Roper Estate at 2700 Tilden st. nw. as a 4-H Club "school."

Spokesmen for the National 4-H Club Foundation of America, Inc., said they wanted to use the 8-acre estate with its 19-room house as a national training center for club leaders. They said groups of about 25 persons would stay there for periods of about a week at a time.

BZA member Robert O. Clouser said the board turned down the request for two reasons: (1) It felt the property would be used primarily as living quarters for groups visiting the city rather than as a school; and (2) the use sought was considered inappropriate in a residential neighborhood. Several residents in the vicinity had opposed the request on the latter ground.

Opponents also contended approval of the request would probably mean a loss to the District of the $2700 annual real estate tax payment. Foundation spokesmen said their semipublic organization was taxable, but that they might seek exemption.

In other actions the board:

1. Granted permission for establishment of a parking lot, which may hold 40 cars, at the northeast corner of 18th and N sts. nw.

2. Approved the request of the Blessed Sacrament Parochial School, 5841 Chevy Chase pkwy., nw., for permission to construct an addition containing an assembly hall, eight classrooms and a library.

3. Announced it will hear further testimony May 17 on a request for permission to establish the Maret School at the Woodley Estate, 3000 Cathedral ave., nw. The matter had been held up for further study after a hearing in March. Clouser said residents in the vicinity had asked the case be reopened to discuss the possibility of preserving the onetime "summer White House" as an historic site.

Prince Georges County Zoning Docket Is Heavy

Heaviest docket in the history of the county faced the Prince Georges County commissioners yesterday as they opened hearings on 31 zoning petitions at the County Service Building, Hyattsville, Md.

The hearings attracted more than 200 persons and lasted from 10 a. m. until 4:30 p. m.

The commissioners granted four light commercial zonings, denied one and took two under consideration. They granted two industrial zonings, granted one heavy commercial, denied one and postponed action on another.

Principal bone of contention, however, was in the petitions for R-35 or two-family dwelling zoning.

Two Pinecrest couples were given public acclamation by their fellow residents. A group of citizens had arrived to oppose H-20 zoning which would permit three-family dwellings but stayed to support the petitions when it was found that only two-family units were requested. The neighbors said that Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fricks and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Eggers were such good neighbors they were glad to approve two-family zoning so they would stay in the community.

Following the hearings, commissioners said they plan to work out improved methods of hearing the petitions so that it will not be necessary for crowds of citizens to remain all day for specific hearings.

At one time, Director of Planning Fred W. Tuemmler of the Maryland-National Park and Planning Commission, was crushed against the railwing while some 60 citizens pushed against him to register their objections.

Miss Beckham Dies; Served School System

Miss Blanche Beckham, 84, District school teacher and administrative principal for almost 50 years, died yesterday at the home of a sister, Mrs. John P. Moore in Marion, Ill. She had been ill for a number of years.

A native of Alexandria, Miss Beckham was the daughter of the late Cicero and Sophie Beckham of Georgetown. She was one of the earliese graduates of Central High School, and spent nearly a half century in the District school department. She retired at the age of 70 in 1936. For the past 8 years, she had lived in Marion.

She is survived by a number of nieces anr nephews.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday at the West Washington Baptist Church, 3101 N st. nw., of which she was the oldest member in length of service. Burial will follow in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Westchester Sale To Tenants Planned

15 Nominated

Trade Board To Elect 12 to Directorate

The Washington Board of Trade will elect 12 directors from a slate of 15 nominees at its annual meeting at 8 p. m. Monday at the Mayflower Hotel.

The 12 directors chosen will meet with the full board on April 25 to elect new officers for the 1950-51 term. The 15 candidates for directorships include: Edgar Balshaw, distribution division manager, Safeway Stores, Inc.; Howard C. Drake, owner, Drake Press; Edward T. Dunlap, architect; Ernest F. Henry, partner, Barnard & Henry, Lawyers; Harvey L. Jones, vice president, Sandoz, Inc., Real Estate; Frank J. Luchs, executive vice president and treasurer, Shannon & Luchs, Real Estate; H. Randolph Maddox, president, Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.; Harry J. Miller, president-treasurer, Caslon Press, Inc.; L. Gardner Moore, vice president and general manager, Shoreham Hotel Corp.; A. G. Neal, president and chairman of the board of directors, Potomac Electric Power Co.; Maury L. Nee, treasurer, P. J. Nee Co.; Sterling A. Parks, district manager, Gulf Oil Corp.; Milton H. Schlosser, proprietor, Milton H. Schlosser, Jeweler; Fred A. Smith, president, Fred A. Smith Co., Real Estate; and Lofton S. Wesley, owner and operator, Wesley Hall.

Polls will be in the promenade of the Mayflower Hotel and will open at 4 p. m. and close at 9 p. m. Voters must show their 1950 membership card.

Plans are underway to sell Washington's swank Westchester Apartments to the tenants as a cooperative, it was disclosed yesterday.

George N. Ray, president of Randall H. Hagner Co., acting as broker, said plans are in a "preliminary" state, with much depending on the tenants' reaction, but he expected completion of the cooperative sale this summer.

The Realest Corp., which is controlled by the City Investment Co. of New York, is the owner of the 553-unit Westchester, at 39th st. and Cathedral ave. nw. The Westchester is considered the largest elevator apartment development in the city.

65% Must Consent

Under the District Rent Control Act, 65 percent of the tenants have to consent to a cooperative sale before any evictions could be undertaken. The law expires June 30, however, and unless it is renewed cooperative sales could be made with only normal restrictions against evictions.

Ray, who said he hoped to discuss the cooperative project with a tenants' committee, said "we will have a fair plan, and there will be no effort to force people out."

Among the tenants of the Westchester's 553 apartments—which rent from about $65 to $300 each per month—are: Secretary of the Interior Chapman, Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, Undersecretary of the Navy Dan A. Kimball, Housing and Home Administrator Raymond M. Foley, Veterans Administrator Carl Gray, Commissioner W. E. Reynolds of the Public Building Administration, William P. Folger, chief national bank examiner in the Comptroller of the Currency's office, Senate Secretary Leslie Biffle, District Commissioner Guy Mason; and, among the highly placed Army and Navy personnel, Maj. Gen. Herman Feldman, quartermaster general.

7 Senators Live There

Seven Senators—besides other members of Congress—live there: Senators Harry P. Cain, Homer E. Capehart, Homer Ferguson, Irving M. Ives, Wayne Morse, Andrew F. Schoeppel and Alexander Wiley. All are Republicans.

Foley, the country's top housing official, could not be reached for comment yesterday. He has lived there nearly five years.

Cain, who has been prominent in his opposition to peacetime rent controls, said he had heard of the cooperative plan only as a rumor, and "as a tenant I will think about it when I hear from the management." The Senator added, "I would be against rent controls even if it meant in my case that I had to find other shelter."

The Westchester, comprising four buildings on a 27½ acre tract, was built about 20 years ago on the site of the former W. S. Kennedy mansion, which had been in the possession of the Kennedy and Kengla families for nearly a century. The original owners of the Westchester were Harvey Warwick, who was also the architect, Morris Cafritz and Gustave Ring. They sold it to Dutch interests representing the Queen of Holland in 1937, and it was sold to the Realest Corp. in 1947.

The property is carried on the District tax assessor's rolls at approximately $3,782,088.

Dr. Marshall Dies; Dentist Here 50 Years

Funeral service for Dr. Pemberton J. Marshall, 70, a dentist in the Washington area for nearly 50 years, will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will follow in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Dr. Marshall

Dr. Marshall died unexpectedly Tuesday afternoon at his home, 2007 Columbia rd., shortly after treating a patient.

A native of Rochester, N. Y., he studied dentistry in Buffalo, and was graduated from Georgetown University Dental College in 1901.

Dr. Marshall was one of the first dentists to use anesthesia and X-ray machines in a dental office, and had the first electrically operated dental chair, his family recalled.

For the past 28 years, he had offices at the Columbia rd. address. Dr. Marshall was a member of the District Dental Society and the American Dental Association, and was a founder of the old Capital Clinic Club, a group of dentists interested in research work.

Other affiliations include the Potomac Masonic Lodge, Almas Temple of the Shrine and the Kalorama Citizens Association. He was formerly a deacon at the Washington Heights Presbyterian Church, 1862 Kalorama rd. nw.

Dr. Marshall is survived by his wife, Mrs. Florence Owen Marshall; a daughter, Dr. Frances P. Marshall, 2007 Columbia rd. nw.; a son, Dr. Pemberton John Marshall, jr., of Arlington; and two grandchildren.

Mrs. Susan Cushman Funeral Rites Held

Memorial services for Mrs. Susan Wood Cushman, 79, wife of Comdr. Frank Cushman, were held yesterday afternoon at All-Souls Unitarian Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw.

Mrs. Cushman died Monday at Long Beach, Calif., after several months illness. Her husband, until his retirement several years ago, was consultant in vocational education, with the United States Office of Education, and during the war was in charge of the civilian training program in Navy shore establishments.

A native of Boston, Mrs. Cushman lived in Washington from 1921 to 1945. She was an active member of All Souls Church.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Robert W. Cushman of Long Beach; a daughter, Mrs. William G. Elliot 3d, of 4645 Chesapeake st. nw., and five grandchildren.

Isadore Hecht Dies; Retired Insurance Man

Funeral services for Isadore D. Hecht, 62, retired insurance agent who died Tuesday at his home at 3715 Woodley rd. nw., will be held at 10:30 a. m. today at Danzansky funeral home, conducted by the Samuel Gompers Masonic Lodge.

Burial will be in George Washington Memorial Cemetery.

Mr. Hecht, born in Czechoslovakia, came to the United States in 1905 and became an American citizen. He worked for the Prudential Insurance Co. of America and lived in Milwaukee for 42 years before moving to Washington in 1948.

He was a member of the Harmony Masonic Lodge and a past grand master of the Golden Links Odd Fellows Lodge in Milwaukee.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Irene Hecht; two daughters, Miss Evelyn Hecht and Mrs. Audrey Bell, of the Woodley rd. address, and a son, Arthur, of 4012 Calvert st. nw., and 8 grandchildren.

Mrs. Abraham Dies; Wife of Army General

Funeral services for Mrs. Maude Willis Abraham of St. Petersburg, Fla., mother of Mrs. William F. Cass of Falls Church, Va., will be at 3 p. m. Monday in Fort Myer Chapel. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mrs. Abraham died Monday at her home in St. Petersburg. She was the wife of Brig. Gen Clyde R. Abraham, United States Army, ret., who survives her.

Dr. Ball, 87, Dies, Dean of Clergymen

Dr. John Compton Ball, 87, dean of local clergymen, died unexpectedly last night of a heart condition at Doctors Hospital.

Dr. Ball

For the past six years, he had been pastor emeritus of the Metropolitan Baptist Church, 6th and A sts. ne., the same church he served 41 years as pastor before his retirement in 1944. He held the record then in point of age and service among Washington pastors.

One of his many distinctions was that of opening the House of Representatives with prayer under eight different speakers—from the colorful "Uncle Joe" Cannon through William B. Bankhead.

He served only two pastorates in his 44-year ministry—the first being the Baptist Church of New Bethlehem, Pa., just after his graduation from Crozier Theological Seminary, Chester, Pa., in 1899. The Metropolitan Church here had 361 members when he came in 1903; when he retired, it had more than 3000.

A native of Northhamptonshire, England, Dr. Ball came to America in 1870, spending most of his early life in Philadelphia where he attended public schools and Temple University.

He was still active at the time of his death, performing both a marriage and a funeral service last Friday, the day before he was stricken.

His closest survivor is a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Mills of Harrisburg, Pa. He lived at 516 A st. ne.

Heart Attack Fatal to Ohio College Dean

Louis A. Deesz, dean of the college of engineering of Youngstown (Ohio) College, collapsed and died yesterday while waiting to testify before an Army Engineer board at Gravelly Point.

Dr. Deesz, about 70, was found about 2 p. m. in a washroom in quarters occupied by the Army Engineers opposite Washington National Airport. The discovery was made by a building guard on a routine check, according to the Military District of Washington.

A certificate of death due to a heart attack was issued by Dr. W. C. Welburn, Arlington County coroner.

According to friends, Dr. Deesz had come to Washington with a delegation from Ohio to testify before the Rivers and Harbors Board on the Mahoning-Grand River flood control project. His body was taken to the Fitzgerald Funeral Home in Arlington pending funeral arrangements.

For Roper Estate

Zoning Board Denies 4-H Club Request

The District Board of Zoning Adjustment yesterday forbade the use of the Roper Estate at 2700 Tilden st. nw. as a 4-H Club "school."

Spokesmen for the National 4-H Club Foundation of America, Inc., said they wanted to use the 8-acre estate with its 19-room house as a national training center for club leaders. They said groups of about 25 persons would stay there for periods of about a week at a time.

BZA member Robert O. Clouser said the board turned down the request for two reasons: (1) It felt the property would be used primarily as living quarters for groups visiting the city rather than as a school; and (2) the use sought was considered inappropriate in a residential neighborhood. Several residents in the vicinity had opposed the request on the latter ground.

Opponents also contended approval of the request would probably mean a loss to the District of the $2700 annual real estate tax payment. Foundation spokesmen said their semipublic organization was taxable, but that they might seek exemption.

In other actions the board:

1. Granted permission for establishment of a parking lot, which may hold 40 cars, at the northeast corner of 18th and N sts. nw.

2. Approved the request of the Blessed Sacrament Parochial School, 5841 Chevy Chase pkwy., nw., for permission to construct an addition containing an assembly hall, eight classrooms and a library.

3. Announced it will hear further testimony May 17 on a request for permission to establish the Maret School at the Woodley Estate, 3000 Cathedral ave., nw. The matter had been held up for further study after a hearing in March. Clouser said residents in the vicinity had asked the case be reopened to discuss the possibility of preserving the onetime "summer White House" as an historic site.

Prince Georges County Zoning Docket Is Heavy

Heaviest docket in the history of the county faced the Prince Georges County commissioners yesterday as they opened hearings on 31 zoning petitions at the County Service Building, Hyattsville, Md.

The hearings attracted more than 200 persons and lasted from 10 a. m. until 4:30 p. m.

The commissioners granted four light commercial zonings, denied one and took two under consideration. They granted two industrial zonings, granted one heavy commercial, denied one and postponed action on another.

Principal bone of contention, however, was in the petitions for R-35 or two-family dwelling zoning.

Two Pinecrest couples were given public acclamation by their fellow residents. A group of citizens had arrived to oppose H-20 zoning which would permit three-family dwellings but stayed to support the petitions when it was found that only two-family units were requested. The neighbors said that Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fricks and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Eggers were such good neighbors they were glad to approve two-family zoning so they would stay in the community.

Following the hearings, commissioners said they plan to work out improved methods of hearing the petitions so that it will not be necessary for crowds of citizens to remain all day for specific hearings.

At one time, Director of Planning Fred W. Tuemmler of the Maryland-National Park and Planning Commission, was crushed against the railwing while some 60 citizens pushed against him to register their objections.

Postal Service Cut Divides Legislators

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson's "reduce service" order yesterday blew up a storm over the country with the center on Capitol Hill.

Donaldson, citing House Appropriations Committee advice, issued orders Tuesday for a Nation-wide sharp reduction in service, including curtailment of home deliveries to one a day.

In some quarters, the order was interpreted as posing the question whether the public wanted the present service and was willing to pay for it in taxes, or whether less service would do.

Negative Reaction on Hill

"Fifty million tired taxpayers have been hit in the mailbox," declared Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.).

He accused the Administration of trying "to save some money by firing a few $40-a-week substitute postal workers—most of whom are veterans." He declared there was need for more mail service, rather than less.

Representative Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.), Appropriations Committee chairman, implied to newsmen that he has strong suspicions about the timing of the "cut service" order.

He explained that a storm of protest will probably arise, which will be reflected when House members vote on postal funds in the omnibus appropriations bill next week.

Charges Organized Campaign

"There has been an organized campaign to increase almost every allotment in this bill. The bill already carries more money than the country can afford," he declared.

Another economy advocate, Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.) said he would demand not only that there be no increases, but that the bill's total be trimmed "substantially."

The bill now calls for $2,207,000,000 for the next fiscal year—a reduction of 28 millions from the President's request—but 105 millions more than the department's current budget. Donaldson declined to estimate how much his order will save, but associates put it at "several millions," which falls short of the department's half-billion-dollar operating deficit.

$700,000 Savings Here

Washington Postmaster Roy M. North estimated total savings here between $700,000 and $900,000 a year. This includes reduced payrolls from elimination of from 100 to 150 carriers, 50 to 100 clerks and 18 Directory Service employes.

The reduced service will start here on Saturday, May 20, North said.

North said the local force has sufficient substitutes to cushion the cuts so that the reductions will "not have to disturb the regular" employes. Carriers, however, will find their mailbags heavier as they trudge forth on lengthened routes. The single residential delivery will be made between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m.

Department Head

Dr. Dowling Takes Post At Illinois U.

Dr. Dowling

Dr. Harry F. Dowling, of George Washington University, yesterday was appointed professor and head of the newly established department of preventive medicine of the University of Illinois.

Nationally known for his research in antibiotics, Dr. Dowling has been clinical professor in medicine at GW since 1941.

He will assume his new post on June 1.

For years, Dr. Dowling has headed an extensive research program at Gallinger Hospital on the sulfa drugs, penicillin, aureomycin and other new antibiotics.

A native of Washington and 45 years old, he graduated from Franklin and Marshall College in 1927, and from GWU School of Medicine in 1931.

Following three years of graduate work at Johns Hopkins, Boston City Hospital and Harvard University, Dr. Dowling opened his office to the private practice of internal medicine here in 1934, at the same time becoming clinical instructor in medicine, at GWU.

Dr. Dowling lives at 2111 Bancroft pl. nw.; is married, and has three children.

15 German Legislators Get Briefing

By The Associated Press

Fifteen visiting West German legislators yesterday started learning first-hand how American democracy works.

Three State Department officials "briefed" them on the operations of the department at a morning meeting.

The West German politicians heard how the State Department's 15,000 employes throughout the world carry out their assignments daily under Secretary Acheson's leadership.

Officials who spoke to them were Henry J. Kellerman, head of the German-Austrian public affairs division; William C. Johnstone, jr., director of the office of educational exchange, and Oliver J. Caldwell, chief of the Federal programs branch of the exchange of persons division.

CHEESE BISCUITS FOR A CROWD: Ingredients: 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 tablespoons baking powder, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ cup (¼ pound) new-type lard, 1½ cups milk (about) 1½ cups grated sharp cheese.

Method: Sift flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in lard, using pastry blender until fat particles are tiny. Add milk gradually, using just enough to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured pastry cloth. Knead just enough (about 6 times) to shape. Divide dough into half. Pat or roll each piece to ½-inch thickness. Cut into diamond shapes. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Place about ¼-inch apart on baking sheet. Bake in hot (450° F.) oven about 15 minutes. Makes about 25 biscuits.

Jap, German Women Filling Key Positions

Women are taking on more and more responsibility in the occupied areas abroad, according to two speakers yesterday afternoon at a panel meeting on women's activities sponsored by the Commission on Occupied Areas, American Council on Education.

Speaking to an audience of representatives of national women's organizations, gathered at the American Association of University Women's clubhouse at 1634 I st. nw., were Miss Ruth Woodsmall, chief of the Women's Section of the Office of Public Affairs, Office of the High Commissioner for Germany, and Miss Ethel Weed, chief of Women's Information, Civilian Information and Education Section of the Supreme Command of the Allied Powers in Japan.

Miss Woodsmall pointed out that with women outnumbering men in Germany by a large proportion, they feel they must take their responsibility in industry and politics.

Miss Weed, discussing the large numbers of women in positions of responsibility in Japan, including representatives in both houses of the Diet, said that interest in women's welfare runs high. When there was talk of cutting out the woman's division of the labor department in an effort to pare the budget, the government received so many letters of protest that more money was allotted to it than had originally been asked.

Clare Boothe Luce To Speak Friday

Mrs. Homer Ferguson, chairman of the Congressional Club's program committee, will introduce Mrs. Luce. Tea will be served.

Dr. Helen Bragdon New AAUW General Director

Dr. Helen Dalton Bradgon, president of Lake Erie College, Painesville, Ohio, has accepted the position of general director of the American Association of University Women, it was announced today from AAUW National Headquarters in Washington, D. C. Her resignation was accepted yesterday by the board of trustees of Lake Erie College, and she will assume her AAUW office on September 15.

As administrative officer for the association, which now numbers 112,000 members and 1125 branches, Dr. Bragdon replaces Dr. Kathryn McHale who has served as general director for 20 years. Dr. McHale resigned last October but is remaining in office until June 30.

PRAISES VOLUNTEERS—Mrs. Olive Remington Goldman (left), newly appointed delegate to the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women, chats with Mrs. Bertram R. Abramson, presiding officer at the luncheon meeting of the Independence Chapter of B'nai B'rith held yesterday at the Statler Hotel. As guest speaker, Mrs. Goldman praised the volunteer work women's groups are doing in hospitals and with veterans, pointing out that it saves organized charities thousands of dollars for other work and adds the personal touch. Rehabilitation of a breadwinner may cost a women's organization about $450, and save a welfare agency from having to spend about $1400 a year to support the family, she explained

The Association of State Presidents and Charter Members, of which Miss Helen Estes is president, will hold its annual supper meeting Sunday at the Shoreham Hotel at 6:30 p.m.

On Monday, the regular session will opetn at 9:30 a. m.

Sharman Gains, Loses a Beau

London, April 19 (AP).—Hollywood Actor Peter Lawford escorted Sharman Douglas and her mother—wife of United States Ambassador Lewis Douglas—to a society wedding today.

Although Lawford and blonde Sharman have been seen together repeatedly of late, all hands have scoffed at rumors of a romance.

London, April 19 (AP).—The 26-year-old Earl of Westmorland, bachelor member of the social set in which Princess Margaret and Sharman Douglas are leading figures, is engaged to 22-year-old Jane Findlay, a colonel's daughter, it was announced today.

Last October United States Ambassador Douglas denied rumors of a romance between his daughter and the Earl.

Coins Fill 'Wishing Well'

Fashion Tea Aids Children's House

By Peggy Preston

SILVER coins tinkled into a plastic "Wishing Well" in the Shoreham Hotel ballroom yesterday, and the future of the little students at Children's House was thereby brightened.

The silver offerings were but a small part of the proceeds from the fashion show-tea which was staged for the benefit of Children's House. A training school for youngsters with emotional disturbances, the institution is a nonprofit organization and funds from the benefit will be used to provide additional equipment and personnel.

Fashions in the "Portrait Fashion Show" were by Washington's 23-year-old designer, Philip Robertson. Completely accessorized ensembles were presented, and the showing was climaxed with a bridal scene.

Those modeling included Mrs. John R. Steelman, Mme. Basil Toutorsky, Mrs. Adolph Buquor, Mrs. Gardner Luce, Mrs. Bernath E. Phillips, Mrs. William J. McClure, Miss Mary Hurley, Miss Gwendolyn Fairlamb, Miss Ann Gillespie, Miss Barbara Talbot, Miss Pierce Butler and Miss Betty Browder.

Miss Fairlamb, the "bride" in the wedding scene, wore a white organdy gown with bouffant skirt and train of organdy petals. Her attendant, Miss Browder, was costumed in a similar gown of pale blue, and little Carol Stephanie Merritt wore a miniature version of the same dress.

Gregory Carmichael, radio emcee with WQQW, was commentator along with Mrs. Lucie Eberly.

MRS. KINGSMAN DOUGLAS (Adele Astaire), who was named to this year's list of 10 best-dressed women in the United States, will be commentator at the May Fashion Review on May 5 in Middleburg, Va.

The 4 p. m. showing will take place at the Middleburg Community Center. Proceeds will be for the benefit of the Mary D. Neville Guild of Trinity Episcopal Church, Upperville. Fashions will be by Julius Garfinckel & Co.

A special gifts committee has arranged for a number of prizes to be awarded at the show.

Patronesses for the benefit include names of prominence throughout Northern Virginia. Included are Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan, Mrs. Cooper Person, Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, Mrs. George L. Harrison, Mrs. Cary D. Langhorne, Mrs. Victor duPont, Mrs. John Tyssowski, Mrs. Frederick Prince, Mrs. W. H. Lipscomb, Mrs. Burdette Wright and Mrs. Thomas N. deLashmutt.

Also Mrs. Walter Chrysler, jr.; Mrs. James Symington, Mrs. Amory Carhart, Mrs. Russell Arundel, Mrs. Melville Church, 2d; Mrs. Kenneth Gilpin, Mrs. Thomas Byrd, Mrs. Harry Byrd, jr.; Mrs. Victor Arthur, Mrs. Raymond Guest, Mrs. Justin Funkhouser, Mrs. William Rust, Mrs. George Cutting and Mrs. William Wilbur.

Chairman of the show is Mrs. George R. Slater, and vice chairman is Mrs. James Langhorne Wiley. Mrs. Paul Llewellyn is in charge of programs, and other committee heads include Mrs. Joshua Fletcher, Miss Anne Gochnauer, Mrs. W. Hunter DeButts, Mrs. Robert C. Fletcher, Mrs. Paul Mellon, Mrs. E. H. Delany Randolph, Mrs. Adamson Whitney, Mrs. John Gall, and Mrs. John D. Lawson.

MRS. TRUMAN is among the patronesses for the luncheon-fashion show to be presented by the Pi Beta Phi Mothers' Club of George Washington University which takes place Saturday. The event will be held at the Commissioned Officers Club, Naval Medical Center.

Other patronesses include Mrs. John W. Snyder, Mrs. B. Harrison Lingo, Mrs. Daniel Bell, Mrs. Elmer Cummins, Mrs. Charles Valentine Stiefel, Mrs. Frederick Morrison Babcock, Mrs. D. R. Johnson, Mrs. Maurice Browder, Mrs. George Horning, Mrs. Charles Lyman, Mrs. George D. Hyde, Mrs. Otis Wildman, Mrs. W. K. Mendenhall, jr., Mrs. Roger Ellis, Mrs. D. P. Weld and Mrs. George Gelly.

Among those who have accepted invitations to the event are Mrs. Truman, whose daughter, Margaret, is an alumna of Pi Beta Phi.

Scornfully Angry at Wife for Disparaging His Family, Man Hasn't Spoken to Her Since Christmas, and She Gets Tense, Can't Sleep

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am married into a very smug family. My father-in-law has a successful business, and his sons enter the business after they finish school. My mother-in-law thinks her family is superior to everyone else. My husband has always been generous, kind and loving; or was until Christmas.

We spent Christmas with Ben's family. His younger brother had brought the girl he intends to marry to meet his family. My heart ached for her; 14 strange people looking her over and the conversation, as usual, all about the wonderful family. After dinner I sat next to her and talked about clothes, shows, etc.

When we were leaving my mother-in-law said it wasn't necessary for me to make such a fuss over the girl; she was lucky to get into the family. When we arrived home my husband laughingly said, "I hope you realize how lucky you are to be married into our family." I exploded and said horrid things about his family, and things I did not mean about him. He did not answer and has not said one word to me since.

The next morning I apologized; no answer. He comes home when he feels like it, for dinner. If he stays out he never lets me know. I have tried to break his silence by crying, begging, promising. Still no answer. In February I tried to kiss him. He jumped up, gave me a look of contempt and locked himself in the bedroom for two hours. I suffered agonies, thinking he had committed suicide, as everything was so quiet in there.

The next day I asked if he wanted a divorce. No answer. Now I am flippant, but I don't sleep and my stomach is tied in knots. Please help me. I love him so much.

T. Y.

Lunatic Show of Resentment

DEAR T. Y.: Your husband's lunatic display of resentment since you hurt his feelings by batting his ears down, when he was echoing his mother's boast, to your annoyance, certainly yanks the rug from under her claim to superior breed.

Ben's performance is very sickly, psychologically. A person who pouts to this extreme is severely maladjusted, and the pouting means he lacks the natural flexibility in human relations, due primarily to having almost no respect for himself. And self-respect in the sense I mean consists of comfortable, c o n f i d e n t self-acceptance, keyed to the ingrained belief that one has great human worth in his own right; that he is essentially lovable, capable, etc.

Ben wasn't invested with real self-respect, but nurtured rather in the conviction that he is important because of his father's success or his mother's pretensions, or due to being "a member of the family," and lovable only insofar as he does his parents' will to their satisfaction.

In short, his psychological center of gravity is in "the family," not in himself, hence when you attacked them, and him incidentally, he was completely bowled over—for lack of true self-esteem, the inner ballast that permits a man "to keep his head" in emotional crises.

Wife Is Victim of Arm Twisting

AS FOR his mother's rude bombast, it couldn't be more vulgar, of course. But it may help both of you to know that her performance, as described, is a typical "mom"-device. It is deliberately contrived to enslave her sons to her person for life, and further designed to tyrannize daughters-in-law as acquired, and reduce them to appendage status too, in the opening rounds of acquaintanceship, by stripping them of precious importance in their future husband's eyes, which are trained to look through mama's retina, or to "see" per her pronouncements.

Owing to the sons' psychological conditioning, a girl who marries into the family is obliged to surrender her self-respecting attitudes and give mama hypocritical deference, in order to woo her tolerance and thus make good with the bridegroom, maybe. In blowing your top against this barbarous requirement, as you were doing indirectly, you gave evidence of excellent emotional health. A healthy personality couldn't stand mama's brand of arm twisting for long, without ventilating violence somehow.

Stop kicking yourself about the quarrel which sparked Ben's sensational tantrum. The whole ugly business stems from the mother's influence, and my advice is to get first-hand specialist help in reviving your sanity. Then decide what to do about Ben.

M. H.

Morning Sky

I like to do my work at night . . . And sleep throughout the day . . . Because I long to see the sky . . . When dawn is on the way . . . I watch the waning moon and stars . . . And see them disappear . . . And in the darkness on the ground . . . There is no sound I hear . . . And then the purple turns to blue . . . And gradually to white . . . With green and gold and crimson streaks . . . Diffusing in the light . . . The sun is rising slowly and . . . The hills are growing tall . . . And morning seems to hug the earth . . . Like some protective shawl . . . It is the time when nature paints . . . A masterpiece of art . . . And there is lasting solitude . . . And solace in the heart.

Ask Anne

Prints, Carefully Framed, Lend Character to a Room; So Do Color Schemes Varied to Suit the Outlook

DEAR ANNE:

We are buying a new house—a rambler—and I would appreciate some decorating advice. We have bleached mahogany furniture, a few lacquer pieces for contrast, and a number of good prints.

Since we are great art lovers and amateur artists, would it be bad taste to hang many prints in our rooms if they are arranged well? Can we use different color schemes in each room if the rooms are not too close?

Would draw draperies made of Chinese shantung in a very small print detract from the Chinese modern interior if used at the living room picture window? Most modern homes seem to feature large prints in draperies. My sectional divan will be a solid color. E. B. H., Washington.

If the prints are suited to the decor, carefully framed, and attractively arranged, they will add character to the rooms and reflect the personality of the people who live there.

Different color schemes for the rooms are perfectly permissible, too. The use of the same wall or carpeting color throughout a house adds to the feeling of space, but an independent color scheme for each room affords more excitement and variety. It also permits more consideration of the exposure of the room in planning colors. Of course, you want to guard against creating color clashes that hit you as you look through the door of one room into another.

About the small Chinese print for the draperies: I do not see why this should be objectionable in the modern room. You can introduce larger splashes of color in other ways—through upholstery, pictures and accessories. You can use a larger print on chairs if it is in keeping with the smaller pattern of the draperies.

DEAR ANNE:

Can you give me a recipe for a good, tasty casserole dish in the amount to serve 50 at a buffet supper? I would like one made with canned chicken or something of the sort that will not require troublesome preparation in advance.

V. S., Arlington.

If you favor food with a Mexican flavor—but not too hot—you and your guests will enjoy this:

Mexican Chicken Casserole
(50 servings of 1 cup each)

- ¾ cup margarine or butter
- ¾ cup flour
- 3 tablespoons salt
- 2 tablespoons chili powder
- 3 quarts hot milk
- ½ cup green pepper, chopped
- ¾ cup pimientoes, chopped
- 5 quarts cooked rice (5 cups before cooking)
- 3 35-ounce cans boned chicken, diced (or 6 16-ounce cans)
- 2 quarts buttered crumbs

Melt margarine or butter. Add flour, salt and chili powder. Stir until smooth. Add hot milk gradually, stirring constantly. Cook until thickened. Add green pepper and pimiento.

Arrange layers of rice, chicken and white sauce in oiled baking pans. Cover with layer of rice. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs. Bake 1 hour at 350 degrees Fahrenheit.

To E. R. G., who was looking for incense of ancient character: A shop that has a supply of sandalwood chips, sandalwood incense, gum myrrh and powdered myrrh can be reached by telephoning Michigan 9507. The keeper of this shop also says that she will order gum frankincense for you.

DEAR ANNE:

We have an oak rocker, originally finished "mission" style, which had been painted twice. We have removed the paint, but would like to get rid of the black mission finish. Sandpapering does not do the job. Can you suggest a bleach?

S. H. D., Washington.

With all paint and varnish thoroughly removed, the next step in lightening the chair, as you surmise, is to use a wood bleach. These are sold in paint and hardware stores.

DEAR ANNE:

Will you publish again your recipe for furniture wash?

Mrs. M. H. P., Washington.

Add 3 tablespoons linseed oil and 1 tablespoon turpentine to 1 quart hot water. Mix thoroughly. Let cool. Wring a soft cloth out of this solution. Wash a small area. Dry immediately with soft cloth. Continue until entire surface is cleaned.

DEAR ANNE:

How do you wrap home or store-baked pies for freezing? R. J. S., Washington.

First, wrap cooled, baked pie in moisture-vapor proof material, such as plastic film or aluminum foil. Either heat-seal or lock-seal (as the material permits) then slip packages into the stockinette sold for freezer use.

Anne answers questions through her column only. Address letters to "Anne," Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Names and addresses of questioners will be used, unless specifically requested otherwise.

PETUNIA!

I suds 'em and I rinse 'em
And I let 'em dry, and then
I take my little whisk broom
And I fluff 'em up again!

And it's a fine way, Petunia, to restore the soft fluffiness to chenille or tufted spreads and bathmats.

Embassy Tour To Witness Presentation

Mrs. Harold H. Burton, wife of the Supreme Court Justice, will participate in a special ceremony at the tea which Mrs. Martin Vogel is giving at her home this Saturday as a feature of the annual Goodwill Embassy Tour.

Mrs. Burton is presenting a check for $500 to Mrs. Vogel, who will turn it over to Mrs. Sidney Hechinger, president of the guild. The check represents Goodwill's share in a fund raised through a benefit of which Mrs. Burton was chairman.

Presentation of the check will be made during Mrs. Truman's appearance at the tea as honor guest. Mrs. Barkley is also attending.

All purchasers of tour tickets are invited to the tea between 4 and 6 p. m. The embassies of Brazil, Greece, Iran and Egypt, and the Legation of Luxembourg are to be open from 2 to 5 p. m. through the courtesy of their envoys. A guide book will be available at all embassy doors, complete with pictures of embassies, a brief sketch of their histories and the interesting furnishings in each.

Tour tickets will be available at all embassy doors, and this year the committee has arranged for junior and senior tickets.

Reciprocity Night For Junior Clubs

The Junior Woman's Club of Chevy Chase will entertain other junior clubs of Maryland at a reciprocity night at the Woman's Club tonight.

The business meeting will be called to order by the president, Miss Doris Long at 8 p. m. Following the meeting the drama section will present "Reciprocity," a one-act play by Martha L. Levering.

In the cast are Miss Betty Doyle, Miss Edith McChesney, Mrs. Kenneth W. White, Miss Imelda F. Murray, Mrs. John W. Springer, Miss Beverly J. Spencer, Mrs. Robert F. Eldridge, Mrs. John M. Rodier, Mrs. Carl B. Hongell, Miss Betty Anne Bell, Mrs. A. J. Andrews, Mrs. O. M. Martin, jr., and Mrs. Robert P. Dunlop. The play was directed by Mrs. Dorothy S. Bland.

The music selection will conclude the program with vocal selections under the leadership of Mrs. Vasilios S. Lambros.

21 Alexandria Homes Included On Annual Tour

Twenty-one of Alexandria's most beautiful and historic homes will open their doors on Saturday and Sunday, May 6 and 7, for the annual tour sponsored by the Alexandria Association for the benefit of its restoration projects.

The spotlight this year will be on the small restored house, although several mansions representative of the finest town house architecture of the eighteenth century also will be displayed. The tour has been planned so that all of the houses are within walking distance.

Each day's route will end at Gadsby's Tavern where tea will be served from 4 to 6 p. m. by hostesses in colonial costumes.

Tickets for the tour will be on sale at the American Automobile Association, 17th and G sts. nw.; the Questers, 1529 Wisconsin ave. nw., and the George Mason Hotel in Alexandria.

Youngsters Staging Drama Festival

By Jack Lartz—The Washington Post

SEVEN plays with international backgrounds have been chosen by the youngsters of the Rose Robison Cowen's Studios of Speech and Drama for presentation during the Children's International Drama Festival which they are staging from April 21 through May 8.

The festival is part of the international theater program cosponsored by the American National Theater and Academy (ANTA) and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

Studied Many Lands

AS THEIR contribution to the ANTA-UNESCO program, students at the Children's Studios discussed the peoples of many nations—their costumes, food, folklore, music and dances, then planned the International Drama Festival, which opens Friday. They helped select the costumes from pictures, chose materials and colors, and some of the teen-age children made their own stage attire. The older boys and girls had a hand in building and painting some of the scenery and props.

National bias is conspicuously absent in the list of plays the children will give during the festival. They chose the plays they liked best for dramatic content. "The Devil and the Blacksmith" has a Czechoslovakian background and is based on an old Bohemian legend. "The Dragon Who Giggled" is basically American, with a melting-pot flavor.

Drawn From Folklore

PAUL VINCENT CARROLL'S play, "Beauty Is Fled," has as its source an old German legend about a toymaker who refuses to sacrifice beauty for riches.

"The Princess in the Moon" springs from a bit of Mexican folklore about the Moon Princess and the Sun Prince and is acted by younger children. Spanish-speaking countries again are represented by a one-act play, "Martina and Perez," based on a Puerto Rican story. It will be acted through creative dramatics by the very small fry, aged 2½ to 4 years old.

The Junior Theater, also of teen-age boys and girls, will offer as part of the festival the American classic, "Little Women." This play was trouped to Paul Junior High School in March. It will be trouped to Alice Deal Junior High School on April 24 and to Macfarland Junior High School on May 1.

Tea Honors Pair Sailing for Europe Soon

Art Is the 'Cast' Of a Unique Film

By Richard L. Coe

A UNIQUE, totally fascinating picture has arrived at the Dupont—"The Titan."

This is the story of Michelangelo's life as seen by the works of art he left behind him 400 years ago. Painter, sculptor, architect and thinker, his genius was one of the glories of the Renaissance, and watching this remarkable film shows you why. It also whets the appetite to leaf back into your library to devour more detail on the life of this man who died at the age of 90 in 1564.

An imaginative, informative script takes you through Michelangelo's life as you watch his masterpieces caught in chronological order through a perceptive camera. You flow with his changing fortunes from the Florentine court of Lorenzo de Medici to the papal circles of Rome. You see at greater leisure and, in many instances, in finer detail, the statues and paintings that brought one human being immortality.

And as you are shown the David created for the Florentine square, the details of the Sistine Chapel, the Medici tombs, the sound track narrated by Fredric March and perceptive shots of cities and countryside trace some of the excitement of sixteenth century Italy. The ducal struggles, the papal plannings, the spectacle of artistic rebirth after the Middle Ages and the subsequent thunderings of Savonarola and Martin Luther, pass into your consciousness and move you in a fashion unlike any other picture.

There are no actors; we see no living people. Statues and paintings, buildings and landscapes, maps and drawings rivet your eyes, while the story itself comes to you through your ears. It is, indeed, a fascinating use of film.

The pictures were made 12 years ago by a Swiss producer, Curt Oertel, and, in fuller form, were exhibited during the war by the Nazis as an example of their culture. The American Army brought back a copy from France and fortunately Robert Flaherty caught a glimpse of it. With three young craftsmen, Producer Robert Snyder, Director Richard Lyford and Writer Norman Borisoff, the veteran producer of "Nanook" and "Louisiana Story," created the Dupont's feature-length picture.

It must have taken loving patience to edit and form the film we now see. In its stringent fashion, it tells a story of Renaissance Italy far more gripping than the sophomoric "Prince of Foxes," that poorly scripted but beautifully photographed film recently seen downtown. Without actors, it tells a far more gripping story.

Unusual Views of Works

This imaginative editing and proud use of the camera gives you views of some masterpieces you're unlikely to enjoy on the spot—as in the closeups of the Pieta, which, as I recall, is so placed above a St. Peter's altar as to be less visible to the tourist than it is to the camera. The views of the young David give some idea of the strength of the marble figure, though, naturally, the Sistine murals are but shadows of their warm, rich selves.

In 70 minutes, it's understandable that 90 years of turbulent history only whet the appetite, but one's only serious criticism is in the handling of the St. Peter's plans. This long, tortuous story is enough for several full-length pictures, but the glossing-over gives but little suggestion of the roles played by Bramante, Bernini, Maderno and Raphael.

But that is a criticism that stems from the research such picture as "The Titan" prompts. You'll find yourself dipping into the period, too, after experiencing "The Titan."

"THE TITAN—The Story of Michelangelo," a Pandora Films production, presented by Robert J. Flaherty in association with Robert Snyder and Ralph Aslwang; written by Norman Borisoff, adapted from the Curt Oertel film, "Michelangelo, Life of a Titan"; art interpretation by Michael Sonnabend; edited by Richard Lyford; narrated by Fredric March with other voices by Peter Capelli and Joe De Santis; music by Alois Melichar.

HOW IT WAS DONE: Unusual camera angles of the works of Michelangelo in "The Titan" give views ordinarily denied visitors. Here are two cameramen shooting the artist's David for the unusual new film at the Dupont.

THE CHEVERLY THEATER promises a spook show Saturday midnight, with Ray-Mond and a band of invisible zombies as the stage attraction; on the screen will be Bela Lugosi in "The Ape Man."

KIM HUNTER has joined the cast of the Gayety's incoming "Two Blind Mice" . . . Kim rocketed to attention in the role Jorja Curtright now plays in the current "Streetcar" . . . You also saw Miss Hunter in the British film, "Stairway to Heaven."

GEORGE Washington University's Players open a three-night run tonight in "The Warrior's Husband" at Lisner Auditorium . . . This is that farce that makes sport of the Amazons and the Trojan wars . . . Heading the cast are Lawrence Strawbridge, Davie Rogers, Charles Vorbach and Marilyn Earls.

KENMORE, that historic home of Betty Washington Lewis at Fredericksburg, will be the setting on Saturday for real-life tableaux, with personalities of the Washington family in each room . . . Originally devised three years ago by the Barter Theater's Robert Porterfield, the Kenmore "Episodes" have been an annual Garden Week feature ever since.

Miners' Board Backs Murray Plan for Unity

CIO President Phillip Murray's unity proposal yesterday got another boost when the executive board of the United Mine Workers unanimously indorsed the idea.

The UMW council officially indorsed the earlier sympathetic response of UMW President John L. Lewis and announced a three-man committee would be established to participate in the Murray proposal.

Murray's plan calls for setting up a joint committee of the Nation's major unions to undertake an immediate program of political, legislative and economic action, and to work for a large-range organic merger of the labor organizations.

Favorable, albeit general, responses have also been forthcoming from leaders of the American Federation of Labor, International Association of Machinists, and the Railroad brotherhoods.

UMW Vice President Thomas Kennedy, in announcing the board's action, said that the situation "looks pretty good for eal organic unity" of labor since the CIO's purge of its "Communist influences." The CIO has recently expelled eight affiliates on the charge of being Communist-dominated, and plans to throw out four more unions. Irionically, some of these left-wing unions were encouraged to join the CIO, in its formative period, by John L. Lewis, founding spirit of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Postlude

Hindemith Song Cycle Presented

By Paul Hume

One of the most important and imposing works of the twentieth century was given its Washington premiere last night.

Mary Alice Bennett, contralto, and Harry McClure, pianist, sang and played Paul Hindemith's song cycle, Das Marienleben, in the concert hall of the Institute of Contemporary Arts. The songs, translated "The Life of the Virgin Mary," have seldom been sung in this country. They were written in 1923 and revised in 1948.

The poems are by Rainer Maria Rilke. In them, Rilke poetizes events in the life of the Blessed Virgin. Her birth, the Annunciation and Visitation, the Flight into Egypt, and all the rest, culminating in the Passion of Our Lord, and the death of His Mother, form a panorama of religious beauty and poetic philosophy.

Rilke's insights are constantly matched and indeed illuminated by Hindesmith's music. Where the poems of are uneven value, so is the music. But when text and music achieve similar greatness, the result is veritable musical grandeur.

To bring such songs to performance pitch is a great test for a singer. Miss Bennett and McClure deserve the highest praise for finding and establishing the mood of such a cycle. Their total accomplishment echoed in hundreds of ways the elasticity of Hindemith's style, in sympathy with the beautiful lines.

Actually the tessitura of the music is too high for Miss Bennett to handle with comfort. Yet she so imbued her work with a musicianship and depth of feeling that technical shortcomings of enunciation and production were overlooked. It was an occasion of unusual reward.

The Broadway Spotlight

Joan Blondell of The Moom-Pitchas in Lindy's having her new $180 (per pair) Paris shoes hocus-focus'd by news photoggers . . . Margaret Truman, the Stork Club's newest patron . . . Bob Hope, whose first name is ackchelly Leslie . . . Mrs. George S. Patton, jr. (the General's widow) shopping along 5th Ave. . . . Lord Leslie Hore-Belisha, prob'ly the first Britisher ever caught in the rain without an umbrella, shielding his old hat with a Daily Mirror . . . Ernest Truex, due shortly in "House on the Cliff," who cannot include his wife and four children as dependents at income-tax time. All of them earn more than $500 per annum in the Thittir . . . Baba Jan (Sabu's brother) herding two elephants into a truck at an East Side dock and munching his first American hot dog . . . Mrs. W. Bedford Sharp, jr., the concert thrush (who invariably makes those Best-Dressed Lists), in slacks and no chappo . . . Batoneer Artie Shaw (ex-groom of the "Forever Amber" author and oodles of others) reporting that he is nowhere near the denouement of his book. He's jotted down 200,000 words but is only up to his 3rd wife.

Producers, agents and so-called talent-scouts are stumbling all over each other trying to sign up Isa Miranda after her Int'l prize-winning performance in the imported flicker, "Walls of Malapaga." Ten years ago Hollywood and Broadway sent her back to Italy, heartbroken, because "she looked too much like Dietrich."

Prince Obolensky, Julian Gerard and Philip Van Rensselaer (of The Social Set) may invade the disc-jockey ranks. More than 10 other top social names are being offered by agents . . . Mrs. Philip Truex (Yolande Donlan) flew from London to finalize her melting. She is practically unknown over here but is a star over there . . . Martin Fisher, who is building $25 million worth of apartment edifices (in Manhattan), just peddled his share of the Sherry-Frontenac Hotel in Miami Beach . . . Over 200 Eyeful Towers responded to M. Todd's show-gel call for his "Peep Show." Only 5 were picked . . . For-the-Don't Get-Discouraged Dept.: Variety's obit on Walter Huston revealed that in his first "bit" (in a Richard Mansfield show) he fluffed his 3-line role and was fired. Huston wound up winning an "Oscar" . . . When a Lindy's waiter died the other day more than 300 of his customers went to his funeral . . . Remember those two no-goods from the Bronx who robbed Sister Kenny's Polio Fund and the Runyon Cancer group of $700, which they collected without authorization? People like that will get a going-over on teevy's "The Lowest Man in the World" May 12th. Thankxxxxxxx! Summer-stock wages will be lower than ever.

Walt Disney's music publishing branch ("Mule Train" and "Cinderella" hit scores) have collared another new one after hearing Lorry Raine wax it. The title is: "Love Goes Round on a Merry Go-Round," co-auth'd by Clem Watts. He parented "If I Knew You Were Comin' I'd've Baked a Cake" . . . Mr. Watts isn't his name . . . He is Al Trace (the bandleader), whose "Mairzy Doats" had nearly everyone going mairzy a few seasons ago . . . "Baked a Cake" was snubbed by at least six Broadway publishers. Maurice Wells of Chicago grabbed it and now is the prop of his own mint.

The Ringling Brothers-Barnum-Bailey Circus pays $70,000 a week rental to Madison Square Garden and doesn't like it . . . It also doesn't appreciate the Garden's pending deal with Cole Bros. Circus for next season . . . Ringling freres may play at a Brooklyn and Bronx Armory next time . . . They are also working on a deal to build their own arena here . . . They have offers of backing from television people and soft-drink mfrs. . . . The Big Show's big peeve is over this arithmetic: It took in $1,300,000 last season—the Garden got $570,000 of it and the Ringling's got only $58,000, after a month of sellouts.

Not all the music oracles in Our Town appreciate Mme. Flagstad's art . . . The outstanding critic (who holds her in contempt as a person, if not as an artist) assigned his 4th string assistant to cover her Carnegie offering the other picket-chanting night . . . The N. Y. Times movie critic was stumped by M. Renoir's "Rules of the Game." Called it "one for the buzzards" . . . The Herald Tribune critic explained it scene by scene and character for character . . . He still didn't like it, but he knew What It Was All About.

The Runyon Fund Committee thanks Colleen Townsend for turning over her $500 wages from tonight's appearance on "The Second Mrs. Burton" program. She explains for the first time (over the air) why she is renouncing Hollywood stardom for church and missionary work . . . Peggy Wymes, lovely showgel hurt in a Florida motor crash, is wobbling around on crutches trimmed with leopard skin. Sech Airs! . . . Picture of the week: At Toots Shor's when Dorothy Thompson argued that the U. S. should drop paratroops over Hungary to rescue Vogeler—the way the Doochay was rescued by Hitler . . . "Now don't get emotional, Dorothy," cooed barrister M. Ernst, "don't get emotional." Vogeler's father was in the Overseas Press group . . . Don't miss 20th Century's next click, "The Big Lift," which glorifies The Berlin Air Lift crews. It opens at the Rivoli on the 26th. Proceeds to the Mirror's Youth Welfare Fund . . . Sid Field, Britain's No. 1 comic, died recently. Now they are readying a charity affair to aid his widow. Because hardly any coin remained after British taxes . . . Ever see snow-blonde hair? Then see Lynn Shipp. She's Le Vouvray's new hatchick.

Whittaker Chambers is writing his memoirs. Will Life mag publish them? . . . Frank Norris (former m.e. at Time) has a novel named "Nutro 29" due on May 4th. Rinehart is the pub. It kids the pants off the Henry Luce empire . . . Texas oilman Robert Ablin just bought half of Ciro's, the Miami Beach spot . . . The biggest juke-box in Our Town is at Hanson's Pharmacy at 51st and 7th. Plays 100 different ditties . . . If you've wondered whatever became of the widely quoted and unquoted crack which was once a "Sound-in-the-Night" here ("Time wounds all heels"), it's a laff-getter in Wm. Powell's starrer, "Dancing in the Dark" . . . They are looking for lyrics to the haunting "3rd Man" theme song. Why don't they use the wordage in "Easy Melody," written about 1923? It's the same tune.

Francis: CG Orders Mule to Start Talking

Synopsis: The lieutenant yesterday persuaded his nut doctor to come out and talk to Francis, the mule. Unlucky colonel. The mule insulted him. On the verge of collapse, he decided it still was all the shavetail's fault. His diagnosis was "violent hallucinations . . . maniacal hallucinations!"

By David Stern

Three psychologists, after listening to my stories of Francis, said I was crazy as a Burma bedbug. Three learned mental doctors said I was sane as they were. One medic of the mind, after questioning me for three hours, had a violent attack of shakes, said the walls of the hospital were caving in, had to be led away.

I was in a sad state.

"Visitor coming to see you, lieutenant. The commanding general."

"The CG himself!" I felt my hands begin to tremble.

There was a knock on the door. "C-C-C-ome i-n." I stood at attention.

The door opened and the commanding general entered. He closed the door behind him and faced me. He was a tall, weathered man with friendly blue eyes. A pale scar on his left temple added an air of distinction. The three stars on the right side of his collar shone brightly.

"At ease, lieutenant." The general had a friendly way of speaking.

I was trembling so violently I felt I'd be safer sitting. I stumbled backward and came down on the bed.

The general's eyes were searching me. "Just take it easy, my boy. Nothing to be upset about. You and I had better have a little talk."

"Yes, sir."

"My boy, I want you to understand the position in which you place both me and my command." The general was bobbing his head for fatherly emphasis. "You have performed services of the highest value to our forces in this theater. Your actions are worthy of the highest commendation. But your explanation of those actions is an affront to the intelligence, to the dignity, of my command."

The general lowered his head and looked at me through bushy eyebrows. "How do you suppose this tale of a talking, flying mule would sound in a communique?"

"But it's true, sir," I said.

The general rubbed his hand over his chin, looked thoughtful. "I'm stumped, young fellow. I'm completely stumped. You really believe a mule talked to you?"

"I know it, sir."

"But mules can't talk, lieutenant."

"That's what I thought, sir. But Francis can."

"Francis, is that the animal's name?"

"Yes, sir."

"How do you know?"

"The mule told me, sir."

"You certainly stick to your story, lieutenant." The general patted the back of one hand with the other. "Positively the damnedest story I ever heard. Thirty-five years in the Army. West Point. Nine campaigns. Seven children of my own, four of 'em in the Army. I thought I'd bumped into everything. But a lieutenant who insists he knows a mule that can talk! I'm stumped. What do I do now?"

"I don't mean to be out of line, sir. But perhaps you would go and have a talk with Francis?"

"You mean, I can meet the animal?"

"Why, yes, sir."

The general made a turn of the room. "This will probably cost me my command," he said, "but I'll go."

The general's car stopped some 50 feet from the banyan tree. Francis stood in its shade, seemingly asleep.

The general approached the mule. I trailed along 3 feet behind.

Francis stiffened from tail to nose. Ears stood straight and trembling. Eyes became pin-point sharp.

"Hello, Francis," I said. "How are you today?"

I could tell the mule was highly excited. But there was no answer.

"What do we do?" asked the general.

"Well, Sir, Francis has been in the Army for a long time. He takes great pride in the military. I believe, Sir, if you gave him orders he would obey them."

"You mean, if I ordered that animal to talk it would?"

"If you give him a series of commands, one of which would require him to answer, it might work.

"'tainSHUN!" barked the general.

Francis had been standing stiffly. He stiffened more.

"Right fHace!"

The mule's hind legs pivoted neatly, while his front legs carried him around to the right with precision.

"About FHace!"

The general gave "Right FHace!" and brought the mule around facing him.

"Parade Rest!"

The mule's feet snapped to position 12 inches apart. The tail was stiff.

The general had a startled look on his face. He glanced at me.

Francis looked straight ahead.

The general shook his head.

"One step forward mHarch!"

The mule moved forward the prescribed 30 inches, stopped.

"Report!"

Francis was frozen. No sound came from him.

"Atease!" roared the general.

The mule relaxed.

The general motioned to me and I came over to where he was standing.

"Remarkably well-trained mule, lieutenant. No doubt about it. But there is no indication the animal can talk."

"Francis," I said, "you and I have gone through a lot together. We've faced death together. Francis, for my sake, talk to the general and get me out of this."

Francis was looking in the other direction. He gave no indication of hearing me.

(Tomorrow: The General takes over.)

So It's Crisis Time In Year '2000 Plus'

—By John Crosby—

SINCE Hiroshima, scientists and science itself have been accorded the most flattering respect by the ordinary or nonscientific public. The scientists are listened to with the most earnest attention, even when they wander quite a bit out of their orbits and into the fields of foreign affairs and politics, where their opinions are no more professional than yours or mine.

It was only a matter of time before radio began making its obeisance to the men of science. Science, or what passes for science, is now the subject of a couple of radio programs, "Dimension X" on NBC, 8 p. m. Saturdays, and "2000 Plus" on Mutual 9 p. m. Wednesdays.

Others are coming up. I haven't heard "Dimension X" yet. I have heard "2000 Plus," though, and I'm afraid I'll have to report to the scientists that they are being maligned. In fact, this program may be a Communist plot to restore science and scientists to their old position of low esteem.

The general message of "2000 Plus," whose title refers to the twenty-first century, is about on a level with that of "Amazing Stories." The idea is that scientists are terribly, terribly bright but that you have to keep an eye on them. They get possessed by devils from time to time, and, unless carefully watched, thy'll smash things up—whole planets, preferably.

Even as Now

ONE of the recent stories, something called "The Diamond Helmet," opened with the statement: "It is the spring of the year 2050. The trees are budding, the flowers are bursting, but fear is present. A crisis has arisen." It sounds, in fact, exactly like right now (except that the flowers in my vicinityity aren't bursting). The difference is that the crisis is rather more deadly than our present ones, unlikely as that sounds.

The planet Nocturne—I love that name—is hurtling toward the earth at the rate of 50,000 light years a minute (or something like that). The problem is to deflect it. As you can see, our own crises are relatively minor.

The task is entrusted to one of these science fellows, name of Martin Goodhue, who is monstrously bright but suffers from a weak heart which prohibits further interplanetary travel. They transplant a new heart into him. Then his lungs give out. They equip him with a new pair. Pretty soon, he acquires new kidneys and endocrine glands and practically a new body. By this time he's 102—that planet is still hurtling toward the earth during all this—and he's lost all interest in stopping it. In fact, he's fallen in love with a young pretty, one fifth his age, and is naturally reluctant to tangle with a planet, an operation that will take his life.

Goodhue is finally undone by his monstrous brain. It grows too large for his skull, which has to be supplanted by a diamond skull, so hideous his girl friend runs out on him. That brings him around. He spins off into space, pushes Nocturne aside and perishes nobly. As you can see, love still manages to mess things up even in the highest scientific circles.

Court Says Driver Blinded by Lights Must Slow Down

Annapolis, Md., April 19 (AP).—It's your duty to slow down if you are blinded by headlights from oncoming cars at night, the Maryland Court of Appeals ruled today.

The court unanimously reversed a Washington County Circuit Court decision and ordered a new trial of damage suits against Lowndes W. Roman, 53, of Hancock.

Two women passengers who were injured when Roman's car struck a concrete culvert at 50 miles an hour on Route 40 near Cumberland in December, 1948, sued but were denied damages by a jury. Roman said he was blinded by lights of three approaching cars.

The high court ruled Circuit Judge George Henderson should have instructed the jury that if Roman was blinded by glare it was his duty to reduce speed.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Drew Pearson Gets an Official Escort

I don't know how the news desks missed this one, but there was a flurry of excitement around the ABC studios last Sunday.

Network headquarters in New York had gotten a tip that a couple of hoodlums would be "laying" for Drew Pearson—possibly because of his blasts against the gamblers.

New York teletyped Washington to take appropriate action to protect Pearson, who is a valuable network property.

Drew, as usual, yawned at reports of threatened violence. But nevertheless two sturdy Metropolitan Police plainclothes men escorted him to and from the studios—and had an enjoyable evening watching a big time broadcast.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Very affectionate one-eyed dog, mixture of spitz and collie." (Sterling 8290.)

"Thoroughly housebroken, immaculately clean kitten; most wonderful pet in the world." (Randolph 1504.)

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I have just been reading Graham Green's book, "The Third Man," and I came across this passage on Page 30 of the Bantam Edition:

"He picked up 'The Lone Rider.' 'I am so glad to have met you. A master of suspense,' and one hand smoothed the toupee, while another passing softly over the mouth brushed out the smile, as though it had never been."

Not only are there three hands busy, but the writer makes it sound as though there may have been some unoccupied hands as well. I am real eager to see this character in the movie.

R. L. Phelps
Laurel, Md.

Dear Mr. Phelps:

A good catch. "The Third Man" seems to have developed a third hand.

I haven't read the book, but I can assure you that the movie is slightly terrific.

It seems strange to see such words coming out of my typewriter, because the lady at our house says I am a grouchy old crab about movies. I think most of them are very poorly done.

That's why I have a set policy against standing in line for them. I say it just isn't worth it. And when (once a year) she does talk me into waiting in line, I pan the picture twice as hard as usual.

But not so with "The Third Man." I stood in line, and loved it.

Even the incidental music was done so skillfully it didn't irk me—and you know how I feel about mood music in movies. Can I say more? Bill

MISCELLANY

Attendance at White House press conferences has been so heavy lately that there's talk of moving Mr. Truman's meetings with reporters from the President's office to a larger room . . . R. S. Hollingshead of 1569 44th st. nw. wonders why it is that when we milk a cow we take milk from her, but when we water the milk, we add water . . . WRC's Steve Douglas says he mailed his pennant predictions in time for publication, but the mailman just shrugs and says: "I can only deliver what they turn over to me." Steve picks 'em in this order: Boston, New York, Detroit, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Chicago, Washington (Traitor!) and St. Louis. In the National League he puts Brooklyn on top and my Cincinnati Reds on the bottom . . . Mrs. Anne M. Cowan of 3060 16th st. nw., chides me for forgetting Pennsylvania in my list of the 13 original States. She writes: "Pennsylvania was the keystone that held the arch of the 13 Colonies together" . . . "Paul Revere's" ride proved one thing, at least: It's still possible to ride a horse down F st. without frightening any of the horseless carriages one encounters.

ADD SIGNS

Harry Traub reports that there's a sign in a Clarendon restaurant which reads:

"Wanted: Assistant Manager (Who Can Also Wash Dishes)."

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

W. M. Devine of 234 F st. nw. suggests that to turn a pessimist into an optimist all you have to do is look in the mirror—and grin.

KID STUFF

Mrs. Sylvia Saftlas of 8039 Eastern Ave., Silver Spring, Md., tells me that her daughter, Judy, got quite excited while watching a horse race on television the other day.

Judy, who is 5 years old, explained her unusual interest in the improvement of the breed by exclaiming:

"Look at that horse, Mother. He's only four years old and he's winning a race."

LAYMAN'S REVENGE

It must be my warped sense of humor, but I think the funniest story in the news columns in recent months was the one about the local lawyer who left six wills—all invalid.

SUBSTITUTE

Reservoir Is Heaven For Fishermen

Ardent devotees of the sport of Izaak Walton can find expression for their desires at Triadelphia Lake, 14 miles north of the District Line.

Joint efforts of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission for several years have resulted in stocking the lake with a variety of game and pan fish.

Triadelphia Lake is the main reservoir for water supply to the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission consumers in the metropolitan areas of Montgomery and Prince Georges counties. The lake is in Montgomery County at Brighton Dam on the Ashton-Sunshine rd., 14 miles due north of the northernmost tip of the District of Columbia. It has a full pond surface of 775 acres, providing ample bank space to permit fishing without crowding. Row boats also are permitted on the lake with a permit. The WSSC expects in the near future to have row boats for hire to fishermen.

Fishing permits for the lake are issued by the WSSC for 50 cents daily or $5 for a seasonal permit. They may be obtained from the operator at the Brighton Dam.

Lattimore Is New Budenz Topic

By Drew Pearson

Louis Budenz, star witness in the Senator McCarthy charges, was born in Indianapolis 59 years ago of German Catholic parents.

Budenz has been tried 21 times in labor disputes, acquitted 21 times.

Educated at St. Xavier's College and St. Mary's College, Budenz forsook his religion to become one of the most effective Communists in the United States, though at first he worked with the right-wing American Federation of Labor.

His first job was as editor of the Carpenter, official newspaper of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners. Later he became an executive of the German-American Central Verein in St. Louis, leaving it when World War I broke in Europe. During the period of the first war he worked for the St. Louis Civic League and the Federal Electric Railways Commission. He had no war service.

Shortly after the war, Budenz went back to labor activities as editor of Labor Age for a 10-year period—1921-31; though during part of this time he was also special strike organizer for the AFL and handled such important strikes as the Paterson silk strike of 1930, the Toledo Auto-Lite strike of 1934.

Becomes Communist

It was shortly after the Toledo Auto-Lite strike that Budenz went over to the Communist Daily Worker, first as its labor editor, later as its president and managing editor. There he remained for approximately 10 years, until 1945, when Monsignor Sheen persuaded him to return to his original Catholic faith.

Since then he has been teaching economics at two Catholic universities, Notre Dame and Fordham, and has also been a star witness in the trial of the 12 leaders of the Communist Party.

Budenz has also published numerous magazine articles and a book, which have been extremely helpful in letting the outside world know the inner workings and machinations of the Communist Party. A new book, "Men Without Faces," to be published by Harpers in May, is already in galley proofs.

Today, Budenz is testifying that Frederick Field, a millionaire Communist, and Earl Browder, former head of the Communist Party, told him about Lattimore and referred to him in such a way as to indicate he was being used by the Communist Party or was even a member.

However, it is significant that in all his previous writings Budenz never mentioned Lattimore's name.

In the original manuscript of the forthcoming book for Harpers, Budenz tells about the Institute of Pacific Relations, of which Lattimore was a member, and names Philip Jessup, now of the State Department, as a member of the institute. He also names a great many others, but not Lattimore.

However, a few days ago and after the book was in galley-proof form, Budenz suddenly inserted Lattimore's name. The reasons for Budenz's afterthought and what pressures, if any, influenced him may be something the Senate committee will want to inquire about.

Furthermore, in all his magazine writings and in the large volume of original information he gave the FBI, Budenz also failed to mention Lattimore's name. Budenz spent days on end with the FBI earlier, telling them every detail about the operation of the Communist Party; but up until last week, after he was appealed to by Senator McCarthy, he had not told the FBI anything about Lattimore.

Plot Against Trotsky

Budenz is extremely frank, and in one Collier's article he states: "It was then that I was assigned to work with a Russian police agent in forging the murder ring which ultimately assassinated Trotsky."

In another Collier article Budenz takes pains to describe the Institute of Pacific Relations, the organization that Senator McCarthy indicates was used by Owen Lattimore to influence State Department policy toward China.

"The institute is, as I said, not a Communist front," Budenz wrote. "Most of the 1600 members of the American section of its 10-nation Pacific Council are patriotic United States citizens. But party members and apologists have infiltrated its most influential committees and publications. Their articles and speeches have been used as reference material by the Far Eastern division of our State Department."

Budenz's description of how the Communists used well-meaning and well-known Americans as fronts is especially revealing. For instance, when the Soviet government staged its famed purge trials, the American reaction was bad. So American Communist agents set out to get a list of leading Americans who would approve the Moscow purge trials.

Fooling the Public

They selected, as their top name, Corliss Lamont, son of the J. P. Morgan partner, whose Wall Street background would give solidarity and respectability to their list. From that point on they enlisted 150 names of "American artists, writers, composers, editors, college professors and Broadway figures."

"Few, if any, of those who signed the whitewash of the trials," wrote Budenz, "could possibly know that the idea was hatched by top Communist officials in conference with NKVD agents."

Budenz went on to tell how he had set up another front organization, with Mrs. Roosevelt as honorary chairman and Harry Truman as a member, to serve as a screen for Marshal Tito, then under Moscow's wing.

"As editor of the Daily Worker," he wrote in Collier's, "I reported the launching, in 1944, of the American Committee for Yugoslav Relief. Under the guise of charity, this was simply an innocents' front to help Marshal Tito fasten his fangs on his country.

"But Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt became honorary chairman. Among the sponsors were the then Senator (now President) Harry S. Truman, Dr. Albert Einstein, Rita Hayworth, William Green and Philip Murray. These names speak volumes for the skill with which party-line boys handled the project. These and other sponsors dropped out when the Communist influence became increasingly evident in the following years. Over three million dollars was collected from soft-hearted Americans."

Budenz Deserves Credit

There are several points to be emphasized about the above.

1. The American public has the right to know how it was fooled in the past, and Budenz deserves credit for bringing it out.

2. Most of this happened during the war when we were allied with Russia and when millions of people were praying for the Red army's success, not only to hasten the war's end but in order that American lives might be saved.

3. One harm accomplished by Senator McCarthy is to make suspect as a Communist any public official who sided with the Russians while we were allies. Mrs. Roosevelt and Harry Truman are strong enough to take care of themselves. But there are many little people.

They were gullible, susceptible to flattery, and made the mistake of lending their names to some "front" organizations. But they were no more Communist than Harry Truman. However, a speech on the Senate floor—and they may be ruined.

... with Pat Parker

CUCUMBERS are such wonderful vegetables that we'd like to tell you a bit about them—of course, they're plentiful now at Center Market City, too.

If you've never stopped to think about the origin of the vegetables we now enjoy, perhaps you'd like to know that the cucumber supposedly originated in India. The English word "cucumber" comes from the Latin name "cucumis."

The supposed birthplace of the cucumber is the great Indian center of plant origins which lies between the Bay of Bengal and the Himalayas. While it has never been found in a wild state anywhere, species closely related to it have been found in this region.

The Romans used artificial methods of growing cucumbers in order that the Emperor Tiberius might have them out of season. Tiberius is supposed to have eaten cucumbers every day in the year.

ALL of this research on the cucumber is not ours, but that of the staff of that wonderful magazine, The National Geographic Magazine, which recently had a series on vegetable origins.

AMERICANS are fast becoming as fond of the cucumber as the famed Roman emperor, and of course it has always been a great favorite in the Russian and Baltic cuisines.

If you'd like to experiment with a new cucumber dish, may we recommend baked cucumbers?

BAKED CUCUMBERS

6 cucumbers
4 slices cubed bacon
1 tiny slice garlic
Grated cheese, bread crumbs
1 green pepper, cut up
1 can whole kernel corn
6 medium tomatoes, peeled

Cut cucumbers in half, lengthwise, and hollow out the seeds. Fry bacon bits, add the small slice of clove garlic, green pepper, corn, tomatoes and cook until rather thick. Season to taste. Strain the juice away. stuff the cucumbers with mixture, cover with cheese and crumbs and bake 1½ hours. Baste with vegetable juice remaining. Oven temperature, 325 degrees. Serves 6.
